Wiskow tried to ice the game with a shot at the open net from center ice with 36 seconds left, but the puck bounced off the goal pipe. Roseau had a last shot with a face-off in the Thief River Falls zone, to the left of Solheim, with 18 seconds left, but Bakke won the draw and the Prowlers won the game, their eighth win in their last nine games (including a forfeit win over Moorhead because of a teacher's strike).

"We feel our kids played a pretty good hockey game," said Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "Obviously we're delighted with the win."

Thief River Falls, 10-6, hosts Hallock Tuesday.

Prowlers Beat Pirates, Again

Coach Tom Hunt says his Lincoln high school basketball team is a good free throw shooting squad. Friday the Prowlers proved him right by making 24 of 31 foul shots in a 58-54 win over rival Crookston.

It was Thief River Falls' second win of the 1983-84 season over the favored Crookston ball club. The Prowlers edged the Pirates 45-44 in overtime back on Jan. 13.

Crookston out-scored Thief River Falls by 10 points from the field, but the Prowlers' success at the free throw line made up the difference. The Pirates, meanwhile, were 10-for-20 at the line.

That's not to say the win was a gift for the host Prowlers. They "earned" those free throw opportunities with hard work — both in running their now more deliberate offense and with their aggressive defense.

"I think it was one of the better team games we've played since I've been here," said Hunt. "Everybody contributed. I thought we executed our offense really well. They followed the game plan real well."

First half was extremely close. Thief River Falls overcame an early deficit to lead 8-7 at the end of the first quarter and the Prowlers led 26-22 at halftime — the biggest point spread of the game to that point. Thief River Falls, after breaking a 20-20 tie on a Jeff Hamerlinck rebound bucket with 1:41 remaining in the first half, never lost the lead the rest of the night.

Third quarter found the two teams alternating baskets the full eight minutes, with the Prowlers' lead fluctuating between three and five points on every bucket — the last one a corner jumper by the Pirates' Jay Huseby with 1:30 left that made it 36-33.

Two free throws by Randy Erickson, along with a steal and a fast break basket by Mark Bondy in the first 34 seconds of the fourth quarter quickly opened up a 40-33 Thief River Falls lead. That set the stage for a steady parade to the free throw line down the stretch as the Prowlers sank 14 of 18 charity tosses in the fourth quarter.

It was two free throws by John Brandt with 1:34 left that gave the Prowlers their biggest lead of the game, 55-47. And two free throws by Jeff Langan on a 1-and-1 situation with just 24 seconds left iced it, 58-51, as Huseby, the game's leading scorer with 23 points, got the final three points in the last 16 seconds.

Brandt led the Prowlers with 16 points, followed by Erickson with 12 and Hamerlinck 11. Brandt was 8-for-8 at the free throw line. Outside shooting of Huseby and Will Schnabel, who had 11 points, kept the Pirates in the game when center Jim Reitmeier, plagued by an ankle injury that severely limited his playing time and effectiveness, failed to score.

Thief River Falls shot 43 per cent from the field (17-for-40) while Crookston shot 39 per cent (22-for-57). The Pirates had a 29-24 rebound edge, which included 15 offensive boards to the Prowlers' 11. Thief River Falls topped the turnover charts 15-12, but 10 of those came in the first half.

Thief River Falls, 5-9, will host a weekend doubleheader when Fergus Falls visits the Lincoln gym Friday and Middle River arrives Saturday.

Northmen Beat Brainerd 92-74 . . .

NCC, UMC Basketball Teams Will Meet Tues.

Northland community college basketball team, a 92-74 winner over Brainerd Friday, will try to protect its second place position in the Northwest Division standings Tuesday when the Northmen host rival University of Minnesota-Crookston in an 8 p.m. Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) game.

Fergus Falls is the current Northwest Division leader at 7-0, followed by Northland and Brainerd at 5-2 and UMC 4-3. Top two teams in each of the four MCCC divisions across the state earn post-season tournament berths. The Northmen, 11-5 overall, will close out their regular season against divisional rivals UMC Tuesday, at Brainerd Saturday, at home against Fergus Falls, Feb. 14 and at UMC Feb. 16.

"It'll be an interesting game," predicted Engelman about the Northland-UMC clash. "They have a good team. It should be a good game." UMC lost to Brainerd 87-75 Saturday.

Two Northland offensive bursts at the end of both the first and second half netted the Friday night win over Brainerd. Northland trailed by as many as 10 points throughout much of the first half when the cold-shooting Northmen connected on just 13 of 52 field goal attempts (25 per cent). They managed to stay within range, though, by making 12 of 13 free throw attempts, and they caught the Red Raiders 38-38 at halftime by out-scoring the visitors 13-6 over the final five minutes of the first half. Brainerd, in fact, didn't score the final three minutes.

It was close in the second half until Northland expanded on a 70-62 lead by outscoring Brainerd 22-12 over the final five minutes to win by 18.

Sophomore forward Shorty Johnson of Kenai, Alaska led the Northmen with a 23-point, 21-rebound performance. Rod Scales added 16 points and 21 rebounds, while three others also cracked double figures in the scoring column — Jon Neumann and Kevin Sanders with 11 each and Kyle Ramsey with 10. Ramsey, who also had 15 rebounds, had his playing time limited when he cut his hand on the backboard going for a first half rebound and then suffered a badly sprained ankle early in the second half.

Northland shot 40 per cent from the field for the game (34-for-84) and was a busy 24-for-32 at the free throw line (75 per cent). Brainerd shot 38 per cent from the field (36-for-96) and was only 2-for-6 at the free throw line. The Northmen built a sizeable 78-55 advantage on the boards and also topped the turnover figures 27-16.

Engelman said he was very happy with the play of Johnson. "He has really been coming on. He works awfully hard," noted Engelman, who also expressed pleasure at the Northland defensive efforts, particularly the inside work of Scales, Neumann and Johnson.

Corliss Rink Is Winner In TRF Curling Finals

Marge Corliss rink defeated the Sylvia Sjoberg rink Wednesday night in the finals of the double-elimination women's city curling playdowns at the Thief River Falls Curling Club.

Competition in the seven-team event started the previous weekend. The once-beaten Corliss rink defeated the unbeaten Sjoberg rink in a Monday night match to force Wednesday's finals.

LHS Freshmen Lose Overtime Game 40-37

Lincoln high school freshman basketball team lost a 40-37 double-overtime decision to Crookston Thursday in the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

Trailing by eight points with less than two minutes remaining in regulation time, Thief River Falls rallied to gain a 35-35 tie. First overtime session ended in a 37-37 draw, with Crookston scoring three unanswered points in the second extra session to win it.

Griff Newland scored 14 points for Thief River Falls, trailing 10-6, 17-15 and 23-19 at the first three quarter stops.

Thief River Falls, 3-8, was scheduled to play a 5:15 p.m. game at Newfolden tonight (Monday), then visit Warren Thursday for a 4:15 p.m. game and travel to Grafton Saturday for a 1:30 p.m. make-up contest.

Sno-Drifters Meet Tonight

Thief River Falls Sno-Drifters membership meeting will be held tonight (Monday) at 8 p.m. at Lon's Restaurant meeting room. All snowmobilers are welcome.

Brainerd Tops NCC By 62-54

Underdog Northland community college women's basketball team played a strong Brainerd squad on near-even terms Friday, but the host Northwomen still came out on the short end of a 62-54 Northwest Division decision.

Brainerd led only 28-26 at halftime. The Red Raiders never lost the lead in the second half, but they were never able to shake the Northwomen, either.

"I was very, very pleased with the game," said Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "That might sound funny after you've lost, but the girls felt good about the way they played. They have a very good ball club, and we gave them a good game."

Neither team shot very well. Northland was 21-for-66 (32 per cent) and Brainerd was 27-for-87 (31 per cent). The Northwomen were 12-for-21 from the free throw line (57 per cent), where the Red Raiders were 8-for-19 (42 per cent).

Brainerd built up a 64-51 rebound advantage, but the visitors also topped the turnover figures 30-24.

Northland hosts rival University of Minnesota-Crookston Tuesday at 6 p.m. and will meet Brainerd again Saturday at 12-noon on the road. The Northwomen are 7-8 for the year, 2-5 in the Northwest Division.

Prowlers Swim At Bemidji Event

First place honors Friday night in the five-team Bemidji high school invitational swimming meet went to Grand Rapids, with the Indians beating the host Lumberjacks — the runner-up team — by a 35-point margin.

Grand Rapids finished with 329 points, followed by Bemidji with 294, Thief River Falls 190, International Falls 135 and Fosston 126.

Thief River Falls had four first-place finishes in the meet, two of them by junior Todd Wing, who won the diving competition with 222.80 points and then took the 100-yard backstroke in 1:03.51.

Senior Dave Ose was a winner in the 100-yard individual medley in 2:14.73. He also gave the Prowlers a 1-2 finish in the backstroke by finishing behind Wing in a 1:04.40.

Thief River Falls also had a 1-2 finish in the diving competition, where Wing was followed by senior Jeff Rosetta, who accumulated 171.65 points.

Fourth win for the Prowlers came in the meet-opening 200-yard medley relay where Ose, junior Paul Wefald, senior Craig Goodrich and sophomore Eric Ose swam a 1:52.42.

That was actually some five seconds behind a 1:47.81 turned in by Bemidji, but the Lumberjacks were disqualified in the event, which ultimately cost them a shot at overtaking Grand Rapids for the team title.

Other top Thief River Falls finishes included a third by Goodrich with a 1:00.1 in the 100-yard butterfly; a fourth by Eric Ose with a 55.16 in the 100-yard freestyle; and a fifth by Wefald with a 1:14.01 in the 100-yard breaststroke.

Thief River Falls will make just its second home appearance of the 1983-84 season — and the first since Jan. 5 — when the Prowlers host Fosston Tuesday in a 5 p.m. meet at the Franklin middle school pool.

Roseau Blanks Hockey JV 3-0

Out-shooting Thief River Falls 28-8, Roseau scored once in the first period and added two goals in a 59-second span midway through the final period.

Thief River Falls fell to 6-7 with the loss.

Eagles Handle Nordics For Second Time, 49-32 . . .

Argyle Easy Winner Over MCC

Scoring generally hasn't been a big problem for the Marshall County Central high school basketball team. But it was Friday night as the Nordics' fast-breaking offense was brought to a halt in a low-scoring 49-32 home court loss to Argyle.

Marshall County Central was within 15-14 when the first quarter ended, but the Nordics produced just 18 points the rest of the night in losing their second one-sided decision of the season to the Eagles. Argyle ended a 3-0 Marshall County Central season start with a 61-46 verdict in the Thief River Falls Christmas Classic Invitational tournament semifinals.

"We played much poorer this time than we did the first time we played them," explained Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland, who wasn't too keen on the Nordics' play in that first meeting with Argyle, either. "This was the worst we've played this year."

Argyle went ahead 29-20 at halftime and opened up a 38-23 third quarter cushion.

"We were able to play with an up-beat tempo in the first quarter," noted Ueland, "but after that they controlled things. They slowed things down."

While the Nordics were able to hold down the scoring of center David Durand (9) and guard Donnie Magnusson (10) — two ball players who really burned them the first time around — Matt Schmidt and Ray Safranski helped pick up the slack and add to a balanced Argyle attack with 12 and 11 points, respectively. Scott Gustafson was the only scorer in double figures for the Nordics with 10 points. They were without starting guard Kevin Boe, who sprained an ankle in practice Thursday.

Argyle shot its usual high percentage from the field, hitting 23 of 42 shots off its deliberate attack — 55 per cent. Marshall County Central got off just 32 shots, hitting 14 of them for a 44 per cent figure. The Nordics were 4-for-10 from the free throw line, where the Eagles were 3-for-8. Marshall County Central had a 23-22 rebound edge and topped the turnover figures 12-9.

Without much offense, Ueland simply noted that it was a "boring" basketball game.

Marshall County Central, 9-5, will host Grygla Tuesday and entertain Middle River Friday in a pair of North Border Conference outings.

Middle River didn't win, but the underdog Skippers made a good showing Friday against North Border Conference leader Lake of the Woods in a 58-49 win for the heavily favored Bears.

"We played well," reported Middle River coach Eldon Sparby, who hadn't been happy with his team's play of late. "We lost, but I wasn't displeased. The kids hustled and we hung in there till the end. I was real pleased with our game."

Middle River opened with an 18-13 first quarter lead and nursed a 24-23 lead into intermission. Lake of the Woods came out of the third quarter ahead 42-37.

Joe Krouss of the Bears led all scorers with 27 points. Sophomore forward Darrin Peterson led the host Skippers with 16, while Kevin McKeever added 13 and Sheldon Peterson had 10.

Lake of the Woods put up just 36 shots, but the Bears connected on 25 of them for an impressive 69 per cent shooting figure. Middle River was 23-for-59 for a 39 per cent showing. The Bears were 8-for-19 from the free throw line, where the Skippers with 3-for-7. The smaller Skippers actually finished with a 23-17 rebound edge, but there weren't many to be hand at the Lake of the Woods end of the court.

Middle River, 6-7 for the year with its third straight loss, had a Saturday game against Tri-County postponed by the weather. The game will be made up Tues., Feb. 28, in Middle River. The Skippers visit Red Lake Falls Tuesday.

Plummer avenged an early 20-point loss to Red Lake Falls with a fourth quarter rally Friday that netted the visiting Cardinals a 51-47 Polar Conference victory over the Eagles.

"We were a little sloppy at times, but we played good defense and we kept them off the offensive boards," explained Plummer coach Jim Baron.

Red Lake Falls led at the first three quarter stops 16-11, 26-24 and 40-36 before Plummer took over in the final eight minutes.

Working the ball around found Duane Franklund underneath the basket often enough to produce a season-high 17 points for the junior. Tim Gagner added 16 to the Cardinals' total. Jeff Thompson scored a game-high 19 points for the Eagles.

Neither team shot well percentage-wise. Plummer was 22-for-58 (37 per cent) and Red Lake Falls was 20-for-56 (36 per cent). The Cardinals were 7-for-17 from the free throw line and the Eagles were 7-for-9. Plummer had a 36-30 rebound edge and topped the turnover charts 18-13.

Greenbush shot 67 per cent from the field for the game Saturday as the host Tigers surprised Grygla 55-48.

Grygla guard Tony McLean scored 30 points in a losing effort as the Eagles fell to 5-8 for the year.

"We didn't play up to our capabilities," acknowledged Grygla coach Vern Johnson, "but I don't want to take anything away from Greenbush; they deserved to win.

But even in defeat Johnson took time to praise the play of McLean who continued a high-scoring pace he started since the first of the year. "He is really playing well right now," pointed out Johnson. "I've never had a player on a scoring streak like that. I haven't seen a better guard around here."

Greenbush put up just 35 shots, but the Tigers made 21 of them for the victory.

Grygla, 5-8, will be at Marshall County Central Tuesday.

Goodridge Girls Lose Two Games

Goodridge high school girls basketball team faced the same dilemma two nights in a row — a distinct size disadvantage and poor shooting — and the result was nearly identical home court losses to East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 63-42 Thursday and to Stephen 64-43 Friday.

Those setbacks dropped the Huskies to 3-10 for the year. They visit Plummer Tuesday and host Grygla Thursday in a pair of neighborhood rivalries.

East Grand Forks Sacred Heart had the big size advantage and the Eagles worked the ball inside for the high-percentage shots, while Goodridge was forced to throw 'em up from the outside Thursday in the Huskies' 63-42 loss.

Sacred Heart finished the game 28-for-52 from the field, a nifty 54 per cent showing. Goodridge, meanwhile, went just 17-for-61, a poor 28 per cent figure.

Jeannie Ripp scored 10 of her game-high 19 points from the inside in the first quarter as Sacred Heart jumped out to a 17-9 lead. The Eagles maintained a 31-20 spread at halftime and opened up a 46-28 third quarter cushion.

Nobody else reached double figures for the Eagles, but five others scored in the 6-to-8 point range. Sophomore Jennie Boutain led the Huskies with 18 points.

Size played a role Friday, too, as Stephen used the boards to spring a fast break that led to a 64-43 win over Goodridge.

Goodridge stayed within 11-9 and 31-25 at the first two quarter stops, but the Stephen fast break took its toll in the third quarter when the Tigers opened up a 49-32 lead.

"We played them pretty even most of the night, but we came up too many fast breaks in the third quarter," reported Goodridge coach Patti Johnson.

Another poor shooting percentage haunted the Huskies, who were 16-for-60, a 26 per cent showing. Stephen, on the other hand, was 28-for-69 — 40 per cent.

Three Stephen scorers reached double figures, led by Connie Lundeen with 18 points. Senior Diana Troska scored 14 for the Huskies, who were 11-for-19 from the free throw line (58 per cent). Stephen was 8-for-13 from the line (58 per cent).

"They played well. They took it to us," pointed out Brinkman. "They came out and played an extremely good game. We didn't have one of our better nights of the year, and the combination made for the final score."

Stephen owned quarter leads of 12-7, 30-17 and 41-27.

Goodridge shot just 33 per cent from the field (16-for-49), while Stephen shot 57 per cent (29-for-51). The Huskies were 11-for-18 from the free throw line (61 per cent), where the Tigers were 12-for-24 (50 per cent). Goodridge finished with a 24-20 rebound edge, but had 21 turnovers.

Goodridge, 6-9, was scheduled to visit Red Lake Falls tonight (Monday).

DNR hotline

Yes, the park is open for camping during the winter. The camper(s) must first register at the park office and will have access to rustic camping. The camping fee is $5. A vehicle permit is also required on all motorized vehicles entering the park. Regulations are the same as for summer camping. The only outdoor facilities available will be pit toilets. Russell Simmons, Lake Bemidji State Park manager.

2. What types of wild birds are common to the northern Minnesota area in the winter?

A total of over 45 species of wild birds could be seen depending on where you are in the region. Common birds around feeders include blue jays, black-capped chickadees, white and red-breasted nuthatches, evening grosbeaks, red polls, pine siskins, American goldfinches, red grosbills and two non-native birds — the house sparrow and starlings. Hairy and downy woodpeckers are also common.

Birds commonly seen along roadsides include snow buntings, blue and gray jays, house sparrows and starlings. From the Bemidji area on up north, watch for magpies, snowy and great gray owls, farther south, watch for horned lark feeding along the shoulders of the road.

Ravens and crows can be seen almost anywhere in the region as can rock doves (common pigeons).

Around open water areas watch for some of the various ducks that may stay over in winter. Also watch for goshawk, rough-legged hawks and bald eagles. The last species are rare, but are still a treat for the birdwatcher to see. Paul Rundell, Regional Resource Coordinator.

3. Do you have a question, complaint, or suggestion regarding how your natural resources are managed?

DNR Hotline is your direct channel to a representative who will answer you, whether it concerns parks, fish, wildlife, forests, waters or minerals. Write: DNR Hotline, 2115 Birchmont Beach Road NE, Bemidji, MN 56601; telephone 755-3976.

NCC, Mesabi Split Series

Mesabi snapped a season-long 17-game losing streak — which included a 7-4 Friday night setback to Northland — with a come-from-behind 5-4 overtime win against the host Northmen Saturday afternoon to complete a Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) weekend hockey series in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Northland let 3-0 and a 4-1 second period leads get away, and coach Tony Dorn, Jr. wasn't at all pleased with the results.

"They just plain gave up. They just stood around and watched," he said. "We didn't deserve to win it by any stretch of the imagination, but I thought we could just outlast them by sheer luck."

But Northland's luck quickly evaporated as freshman Darren Saari of Mt. Iron finished off a length-of-the-ice rush to tie it 4-4 at 17:44, and then got the game-winner, as well, off a 2-on-1 rush just 38 seconds into a scheduled 10-minute, sudden-death overtime. He beat Northland goalie Jay Boomgaarden cleanly by letting go with a long slap off the right wing.

It was a match-up of two shorthanded squads. Mesabi dressed just 11 players — two of them goaltenders. Northland had 14 in uniform, including two goaltenders.

Sophomore center Ladd Bjugson staked Northland to a 3-0 lead in the second period after a scoreless, lackluster first period. He scored on a clean breakaway while both teams skated a man short at 5:45; came around the net to stuff one by Mesabi goalie Dan Rogers at 6:50; and slammed home a rebound on a Northland power play at 11:33.

Mesabi's Scott Mackel, one of three Norsemen from the unlikely hockey hometown of Albuquerque, N.D., sandwiched a pair of goals around a Chris Jorde goal for Northland for a 4-2 game as the second period ended. Mackel scored on a breakaway at 12:30; Jorde drilled a centering pass from the corner from Scott Stenbach at 14:39; and Mackel scored on a power play at 17:42.

Tim Goss, another Albuquerque native, scored 14 seconds into a power play at 9:56 of the third period to make it 4-3, setting up Saari's heroics.

1984 Minnesota State Tournaments Draw Near

Experiencing the symptoms of the "Maddening Pace of March" can be contagious. All 500 high schools who are members of the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) catch its fever in some fashion.

Ask any Minnesotan what the goings-on are in the state in the month of March and most will reply, "It's state tournament time," reports MSHSL director of information and publications Larry Larson.

Two Twin Cities television stations will devote nine afternoons and evenings to live play-by-play broadcasts of action in hockey and basketball. Pedestrians in St. Paul, site of three state tournaments, will spot a sea of yellow school busses headed for the Civic Center Arena.

Nearer the arena clusters of people mill about, and a stray trumpeter in uniform will run by. The weather is usually relatively mild, in the upper 30's or 40's. It is bright, and sometimes not much snow is left on the ground.

March sunshine brings out the vigor in people, who have spent the previous three months in cold-like conditions of traditional Minnesota winters.

Why do thousands of youngsters strive to be a part of the state tournament scene? Why do hundreds of thousands follow these athletes into state tournament arenas? The answer is simple — the desire to be associated with something that rises above the mediocre.

When the winter state tournament March scene comes to an end on the 24th of the month, more than 300,000 persons will have attended championship events in wrestling, girls gymnastics, boys swimming and diving, hockey, and girls and boys basketball.

Wrestling

Dates: March 1-2-3.

Site: St. Paul Civic Center Arena.

Forty-seventh annual state Class AA and Class A wrestling tournament is the first of the six events to begin competition in March.

Championships will be decided in both team and individual categories. The team dual meet format has been in existence since 1975 and Minnesota was the only state nationally to have it a part of state championships until Illinois implements its dual meet event this year.

Individual state titlists will be crowned in 12 different weight categories in both Class AA and A.

Apple Valley, rated No. 1 all-season long, is the pick of some observers to repeat as team champions in Class AA, while Staples, who through 1983 had won 43 consecutive dual meet matches dating to 1981, is once again the choice to capture a fifth straight state title and sixth in the past seven years.

In the individual competition as many as six wrestlers who won state titles a year ago as underclassmen hope to repeat as state champions.

Attendance at the state wrestling tournament is likely to surpass the 55,000 mark for a fourth straight year.

There are 317 teams statewide competing in interscholastic wrestling this 1983-84 season.

Girls Gymnastics

Dates: March 2-3.

Site: Minneapolis Auditorium.

Another state tournament to be conducted by the MSHSL during the first weekend in March will be the tenth annual state Class AA and Class A girls gymnastics meet. Girls will compete for team laurels on Friday, March 2, and will vie for top honors in the individual all-around, vaulting, floor exercise, uneven parallel bars, and balance beam competition on Saturday, March 3. Class A will compete from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and Class AA will run from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. each day.

State team champions in 1983 were Robbinsdale Armstrong in Class AA and Blake in Class A. Bloomington Jefferson in Class AA and Mahtomedi in Class A were rated tops in their respective classes by the state coaches association at mid-season this year.

In the Class AA individual competition, new champions are assured in all but one event as last year's champions have graduated. The lone winner expected to earn a state berth again is junior Vicki Lundquist, Anoka, who won the balance beam event in 1983 as a sophomore.

In Class A, last year's individual titlists were two individuals from Blake, both of whom graduated.

Last year's state meet attendance was 6,143, the second highest ever, and only 18 behind the record total of 6,161 that witnessed the event in 1982.

There are 153 teams statewide competing in interscholastic girls gymnastics during the 1983-84 season. Ninety-four of those teams are assigned to Class AA and the other 59 compete in Class A.

Hockey

Dates: March 8-9-10.

Site: St. Paul Civic Center Arena.

Two more state tournaments take place during the second week in March. The first to get underway will be the 40th annual state hockey tournament.

Home of the tournament since 1976, the St. Paul Civic Center Arena will again be filled with spectators in excess of 100,000 for the three-day, six-session, 11-game tournament.

Again a sell-out for the championship series for the umpteenth year, 1984 will mark the sixth consecutive year that attendance will surpass 100,000. More than 2-million fans have attended this classic event since it first began in 1945.

Hill-Murray, the defending state champion, is one of 149 high schools playing interscholastic hockey this year. Through mid-season perennial state tournament entry and champion Edina was rated as the top team by most pollsters. Through the years teams from Edina and International Falls have won the most state titles — six.

First televised in 1965, the 1984 state tournament will be the second of a three-year contract with WCCO-TV (channel 4), Minneapolis.

Like what was implemented a year ago, one semifinal game will be played Friday afternoon and the other Friday night. Previously both semifinal games were played during the Friday evening session. The change was made so as to provide additional tickets to participating schools.

Boys Swimming and Diving

Dates: March 9-10.

Site: Cooke Hall Pool, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis.

Sixty-first annual state boys swimming and diving meet will be another interesting event with sell-out crowds on hand for the two sessions.

Defending state team champion Mounds View may be hard-pressed to repeat as titlist. No school has repeated as state champion since the years when Hopkins Eisenhower (1974-1977) and Rochester (1953-59) won four or more consecutive crowns. Only Biwabik (1960-61), Edina (1967-68) and Golden Valley (1971-72) can boast of back-to-back state titles with Hopkins Eisenhower and Rochester as schools that have captured top honors in two straight years during the last three decades.

Two underclassmen who won individual championships in 1983 are expected to win their way back into the 1984 meet through section meet qualifying. They are senior Jeff Lee, Richfield, and junior Mike Yasis, St. Paul Johnson.

Lee, an outstanding 500-yard freestyler who owns the state record in that event — 4:37.23 set in 1983 — will try and win his fourth and fifth gold medals in swimming if he qualifies in the 200 and 500-yard freestyle events once again this year. The defending champion in those two events, Lee also captured the 500 free title as a sophomore. Should he win a third straight 500 free title in 1984, his three consecutive championships in that event would be the first since T.R. Lundquist, Golden Valley, accomplished the feat in the period 1971-73.

Yasis, meanwhile, hopes to repeat as diving titlist. The last diver to win back-to-back titles was Mark Anton, Rochester Mayo, 1976-1977.

Boys swimming and diving interscholastic competition is being conducted in 109 high schools this winter season.

Girls Basketball

Sites: Met Center, Bloomington, and Minneapolis Auditorium.

Ninth annual State Class AA and Class A girls basketball tournament takes over the state tournament spotlight during the month's third week.

Three-day schedule finds the first day, Thursday, March 15, with games being played at two sites — the Minneapolis Auditorium (Class A) and the Met Center in Bloomington (Class AA). Eight teams in each class will win their way through district, sub-region, and region tournament play to the state event.

Semifinal and championship games will be held on Friday and Saturday, March 16 and 17, at the Met Center. Class A will play semifinal games Friday and Saturday afternoons with Class AA devoted to the two evening sessions those days.

Tournament ranks among the highest in the nation in attendance. Four of the past five years total attendance figures have surpassed the 50,000 mark.

Scheduled to be televised all three days by WTCN-TV (Channel 11), Minneapolis, a new state champion is certain in Class AA in 1984 as defending champion Albany is now a Class A school. 1983 Class A kingpin Henderson hopes to repeat its crown. Henderson completed a perfect 26-0 season last year and had hiked that winning skein to more than 30 in a row into January of this season.

Top rated teams this season in Class AA have been Burnsville, Derham Hall and Little Falls, while in Class A, Chisholm and Lake City, a pair of state entries last year, and Staples, are among the better squads in 1984.

Boys Basketball

Dates: March 22-23-24.

Oldest of the state tournament events in March, the 72nd annual state Class AA and Class A basketball tournament rounds out the March calendar of state tournies.

First day of quarterfinal game competition for the eight teams in each class will take place in two buildings — Class AA in Williams Arena and Class A in the St. Paul Civic Center Arena.

Semifinal and championship games the next two days, Friday and Saturday, March 23-24, will be held at the St. Paul Civic Center Arena. 1984 marks the 11th consecutive year the tournament will be conducted in St. Paul. Class A semifinal and championship games are scheduled for Friday and Saturday nights.

Televised in its entirety since 1954, the popular state tournament drew 94,487 fans last year. WTCN-TV, Channel 11, Minneapolis, will once again televise the 1984 tournament all three days.

Defending Class AA champion Woodbury graduated its starting five and is not expected to qualify for this year's tournament. Top teams in Class AA hopeful of winning top honors in 1984 include Robbinsdale Armstrong, Minneapolis North and Prior Lake, all of whom were undefeated heading into the 1984 portion of this season's schedule.

In Class A, 1983 champion Barnum is hopeful of repeating as state champion in 1984. With four starters returning from last year's squad, Barnum completed an undefeated season of 26 games last season and were unbeaten in its first six games this season. Another team expected to seriously challenge once again for a state berth is Luverne, the 1983 state runner-up who again has a fine team.

There are 483 boys basketball teams competing this season throughout Minnesota.

Tickets

Advance tickets to the general public are not available for the state hockey tournament and state swimming and diving championships. Those events are virtually sell-outs with tickets remaining held for participating schools. Advance tickets are available for the state wrestling, girls gymnastics and basketball tournaments. Persons interested in purchasing advance tickets are asked to write the MSHSL Office, P.O. Box 309, Anoka, MN 55303, or telephone (612) 427-5250 for ticket information.

DNR Produces New Bluebird Slide Program

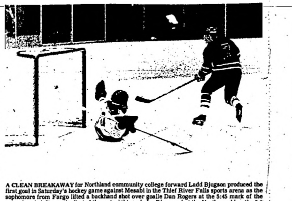
Nongame wildlife program in the Department of Natural Resources has produced a 15-minute slide-tape program about bluebirds. The program, an automated slide-tape, includes information about bluebird ecology and the problems of bluebird survival. Information is also presented on how people can build and maintain bluebird houses to help preserve this beautiful songbird.

This program has been produced using donations to the nongame wildlife fund on Minnesota's income tax and property tax forms.

Bluebird slide-tape is available for loan, free of charge by requesting it from Jeanne Bertram, Bureau of Information and Education, Department of Natural Resources, Box 46, Centennial Bldg., 658 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Minnesota taxpayers are reminded that they can help bluebirds and other nongame wildlife by donating to the nongame wildlife fund on their state income tax and property tax forms. They should look for the loon on their tax forms. Donors may give more than a dollar, and donations are tax-deductible on the following year's return.



A CLEAN BREAKAWAY for Northland community college forward Ladd Bjugson produced the first goal in Saturday's hockey game against Mesabi in the Thief River Falls sports arena as the sophomore from Fargo lifted a backhand shot over goalie Dan Rogers at the 5:45 mark of the second period. It was the first of three straight goals for Bjugson, but the Northmen blew the 3-0 lead in a 5-4 overtime loss to the previously winless Norsemen.

Unbeaten Middle River Is Easy Winner Over Rams

Middle River rolled over Roseau 63-19 Thursday in girls high school basketball action, stretching the Skippers' season-long winning streak to 15 games.

It was a near-carbon copy of a 55-15 Middle River win over Roseau earlier this year as the Skippers out-scored the Rams 118-35 in the two meetings. A 70-23 winner over Badger in their last outing, the Skippers have out-scored the opposition 133-42 in the past two games.

"Our passing game was good," reported Middle River coach Tom Neibauer after the latest rout. "That's the first time all year I've been pleased with it. We really chopped up their zone with our passing. I've been waiting 15 games for that to happen."

Middle River led 18-2 at the end of the first quarter, had a 40-7 halftime cushion and carried a 53-15 lead into the fourth quarter.

Paula Rantanen scored 21 points for the winners, with Jody Christofferson getting 14 and Diane Black 12. No Roseau scorer had more than six points.

Middle River had a busy 25-for-39 night at the free throw line (64 per cent), with Roseau going 9-for-16 at the line (56 per cent).

A pair of home games await the Skippers this week as they host Badger Tuesday and entertain Lake of the Woods Thursday.

Freshman Jodi Foss came off the bench to score 15 points for the Nordics, who led at the quarter breaks 12-6, 24-21 and 35-30.

Sophomore Becky Knutson, playing for the first time as the Nordics' point guard, also had a good game, pointed out Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde as she handed out seven assists.

"I was really pleased with Becky Knutson, and Jodi Foss did a nice job off the bench," praised Mjelde. "We finally got a little more aggressive offensively."

Marshall County Central charts showed the Nordics shooting 43 per cent from the field (20-for-46), while Grygla charts showed the Eagles shooting just 24 per cent (14-for-57). The Nordics weren't very effective at the free throw line, however, shooting just 38 per cent (9-for-24). The Eagles shot 42 per cent at the line (10-for-24). Marshall County Central figures showed the Nordics with a 31-26 rebound edge, and a high 22-16 number in turnovers.

"We really wanted to win this one," said Grygla coach Mike Gast. "I thought we played pretty well. I'm not disappointed. We've got a lot of young kids, and they work awfully hard. They thought they could pull this one out. They were pretty disappointed with the loss."

Grygla fell to 4-11 with the setback. The Eagles visit Warroad tonight (Monday) and play at Goodridge Thursday. Marshall County Central took a 7-6 record into a scheduled Saturday game against Lake of the Woods. The Nordics visit Argyle tonight and host Roseau Thursday.

Marshall County Central controlled things both offensively and defensively Saturday afternoon in a 53-18 North Border Conference win over Lake of the Woods at Newfolden.

Nine field goals represented the total Lake of the Woods offense as Marshall County Central easily collected its eighth win against six losses this winter.

Marshall County Central had quarter leads of 11-2, 23-10 and 37-14.

Senior Nancy Nelson scored 19 points for the winners, with junior Barb Garthus adding 10.

Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde admitted to being pleasantly surprised at the margin of victory for the Nordics. "I thought we played real well," he said. "Our offense worked well, and our full court pressure defense produced some turnovers."

Lake of the Woods went just 9-for-47 from the field (19 per cent) and missed on all five free throw attempts. Marshall County Central was 26-for-57 from the field (45 per cent), but just 1-for-8 from the free throw line. The Nordics had a 29-27 rebound edge and the Bears topped the turnover charts 31-13.

Crookston JV Tips TRF 41-34

Crookston broke open a close ball game in the final minute of play Friday en route to a 41-34 junior varsity high school basketball win over Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls led 6-5 at the end of the first quarter and stayed in front 18-17 at halftime before falling behind 27-26 in the third quarter.

Mike Kloety scored 11 points and Kevin Nelson had 10 for Thief River Falls, 3-8 for the year.

Term "acid rain" was first coined more than 100 years ago by a British chemist, Robert Angus Smith, says the National Wildlife Federation. In 1852, Smith observed that as skies over Manchester became increasingly dirty, the rain became increasingly acidic. It wasn't until the mid-1960's however, that acid rain became a focus of scientific study around the world.

How can you save $2,000 a year and deduct it from your taxes?
Your AAL representative has the answer.
All wage earners can now save up to $2,000 a year in an Individual Retirement Annuity (IRA) and deduct this amount from their income taxes.
That's right — you can save for the future and get a tax break right now. The growth of your plan is guaranteed and you pay no taxes on it until you retire. By then, you'll probably be in a lower tax bracket.

Local Motorists Survive Close Calls During Storm

While the blizzard conditions which struck Minnesota and eastern North Dakota Saturday apparently caused only inconvenience and worry in the immediate Times area, a number of people from this area had close calls while traveling to or from Thief River Falls. Reports of several incidents involving local people have been checked out and are presented in this article.

Despite the sudden onslaught of the storm and its severity from wind and cold, problems seemed to be few in the immediate area. Pennington county law enforcement center said there were no rescue missions required and Northwestern hospital had no cases of exposure or frostbite to treat as a result of the storm.

A number of people in Thief River Falls from out of town for events such as the Roseau and Thief River Falls high school hockey game and the gun show at the national guard armory were compelled to change plans for returning home and decided to stay in town overnight.

According to a Times telephone survey, only Best Western inn was filled to capacity among Thief River Falls motels. Travel Host, Noper's, Holiday and T-59 motels all had increased business beyond what they had expected but none had to turn away people who requested a place to stay. "Some good comes out of even a bad situation," one motel owner commented with a chuckle.

Minnesota state patrol office dispatcher noted that the night was quite busy with phone calls and radio work since the office here handles a several county area. He said cooperation by local people in avoiding travel helped greatly. But he also noted that severity of the storm was a surprise since weather service reports from Fargo as late as 3 p.m. were that expectations were for no less than one quarter mile visibility.

Among the experiences of Thief River Falls motorists were several involving people who were scheduled to fly out of Grand Forks on an Elks lodge sponsored weekend trip to Las Vegas, NV. Instead of soaring into southwestern sunshine they shivered in the sudden snowstorm.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Burstad and Mr. and Mrs. Danny Hanson left Thief River Falls about 3:15 p.m. for Grand Forks. Visibility became very poor about the time they crossed highway 75 and shortly afterward they heard on the car radio that highway 2 had been closed. They couldn't see to turn around and decided to keep going, reaching Sherack about 5 p.m. They talked to another motorist there who had gone to a nearby house in Sherack but found nobody home. They knew of a residence about four and one-half miles further west and decided to try and reach it.

An house later they had gone about four miles. Unable to see due to the blowing snow, they stopped on the roadway and let the car run. In about a half hour the engine died and wouldn't restart. Dressed for Las Vegas weather instead of Minnesota, the two couples soon became chilled. Milton Burstad went out and retrieved his wife's suitcase from the trunk and she tied a blouse around his head for protection so he could get the other suitcases. They all put on as many layers of clothing as they could, removed their shoes and sat on each other's feet.

About 3 a.m., after nine hours without heat in the Burstad car, a young fellow with a pickup stopped but he already had five other people in the pickup cab with him. He assured the Burstads and Hansons he would be back for them, but before he left two other pickups came from east. They took four of the young people who had been in the crowded pickup and left for East Grand Forks.

Rescue finally came in the form of Gerald Maruska, driving a tractor with a snow plow and followed by his son driving a four-wheel drive Blazer. Maruska was looking for members of his family and was prepared to go all the way to East Grand Forks with the tractor. It turned out the people he was looking for were those who had been in the pickup and left for East Grand Forks. The Burstads and Hansons were taken to the Maruska home where the Burstads' son-in-law, Ken Kalsnes of Thief River Falls, picked them up about 7 a.m.

Mrs. Burstad said she believes the two couples would have been in severe difficulty in a couple of more hours. They reported being stiff from being in cramped positions in the car but apparently suffered no serious frostbite.

Mr. and Mrs. Irv Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Flynn and Mr. and Mrs. Loren Klopp had left Thief River Falls for Grand Forks about 4 p.m. and by 7 p.m. were only 25 miles down the road. They finally saw a yard light at the Willis Owen farm east of highway 75, backed their car into the driveway and sought refuge in the house which was unlocked but unoccupied. It was discovered later that Owen had himself been snowbound elsewhere. The storm had lifted enough by 11:30 p.m. so that the three couples returned to the car and made it back to Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cork left Thief River Falls about 4 p.m. and ran into a "white-out" between highway 75 and St. Hilaire as they were also "OPERATION CHILD PRINT" is underway this week in Thief River Falls public schools under sponsorship of the Minnesota association of police chiefs with local assistance by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Kiwanis club. The voluntary program involves fingerprinting of most of the 980 children in kindergarten through fifth grade and returning the fingerprint identification card home with the students. No record of the prints is kept at the schools or by law enforcement. Parents are urged to retain the cards, attach a recent photo of the youngster, and update information on height and weight of the child on an annual basis. In the photo above, deputy police chief Duane Holland takes the prints of Jamie Srnsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Srnsky, and a first grader at Washington elementary school.

Education For Young Children Meeting Topic

Midwinter conference of the Northwest chapter of the Minnesota Association for the Education of Young Children will be conducted Saturday at Discovery Place in Thief River Falls with registration from 9 to 9:30 a.m. Noon lunch will be served and activities will conclude about 3 p.m.

Fifteen presenters will conduct sessions on various topics of interest to parents of young children and people participating will have an opportunity to select five sessions to attend from among the 15 offered.

Films will be available for viewing over the lunch period and six displays will be set up for the entire day. They will feature books, toys and infant car seats. Registration at the door will be $6 and in advance will be $5. The fee includes lunch and advance registration may be sent to Joyce Brandt at 113 Maple av. S., Thief River Falls.

Parents, teachers, nurses, grandparents, child care providers and friends of young children are welcome, according to LuAnn M. Giles, publicity secretary for the chapter. Membership in the northwest chapter includes people from throughout northwest Minnesota. The nearest chapters to Thief River Falls are in Moorhead and Duluth.

Learning To Talk: A Big Step — Mary Jo Schill, M.A., clinical instructor, department of communications disorders, UND.

The Tie That Binds: A Layman's Guide to Stages of Family Development — Dr. Stephen J. Olson, licensed psychologist.

Parents Are The Facts Of Life — Alice Collin, Planned Parenthood.

Crop Choices For 1984 Are Program Topic

Meetings on what to grow in 1984 are scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, February 15 at the Goodridge senior citizen center and Friday, February 17 at the courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls.

Meetings are provided by the Pennington county extension service and the county ASCS office. "Area farmers are facing important decisions on what crops to grow and to what degree they should sign up to participate in the 1984 farm program," said Pennington county extension director Terry Courneya. He added that the main emphasis of the meetings will be wheat and feed grain supply-price indicators for the 1984 crop and the influence of farm program participation on net farm income.

"Close examination of each field with regard to yield expected and variable costs per acre are necessary to permit accurate projection of the value of farm program sign up," Courneya emphasized. Computer examination of a large number of individual farm examples indicate that farm program participation can significantly improve farm income by reducing the number of acres planted on fields not ready for good yield performance in 1984. Work sheets and planning information will be provided that will assist each producer in making the best choice for his farm. Phil Bergland, county ASCS executive director, will assist in the program presentation and answer questions related to program benefits, deadline dates and compliance requirements.

Jazz Clinic Thursday At Northland CC

Director of concert bands and jazz bands at the University of Minnesota at Morris, Dr. James Carlson will be guest clinician at an instrumental jazz ensemble clinic Thursday at Northland community college in Thief River Falls. The clinic will be conducted in the commons area throughout the day and area schools are being invited to participate.

Concluding the day at 7:30 p.m. will be a concert in the commons area. Featured will be the Roseau and Lincoln high school jazz bands, NCC jazz choir and bands, and Jazz Bands I and II with Carlson as soloist from the University of Minnesota at Morris. Admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Carlson graduated with distinction from the University of Minnesota at Morris with a BA degree in instrumental music in 1965. He received a master of music degree with high distinction from Moorhead state university in 1968 and Doctor of Music Education with high distinction from Indiana university at Bloomington in 1970.

Among his college work experiences have been assistant professor of music at Manchester college in North Manchester, IN, for three years, assistant professor of music at Augsburg college in Minneapolis for five years and associate professor of music at the University of Minnesota at Morris from 1976 until the present.

Dr. James Carlson

Marshall 4-H Holds Speech Competition

Annual 4-H speaking contest was held following the Marshall county 4-H Federation meeting on January 24 at the Newfolden community center. Mrs. Rita Dalzell, speech instructor from Warren high school, served as judge.

Charlene Fillmore of Ringbo Bobcats 4-H club received the award for the 15-19 age group. Charlene's speech on "Prejudice" will now represent Marshall county at the Red River Valley winter shows. KROX will be broadcasting county winners beginning at 1 p.m. Saturday. Winner of the regional contest advances to state competition.

In the 12-14 age group, Darcy Gonsorowski of the Viking Volcanoes won. "Why I Like Living in America" was the title of her speech. She will represent her age group for Marshall county during the winter shows also.

Minto Spencer from the Oslo Super Stars won in the 8-11 age group.

Senior & Home Delivered Meals Program Active

Senior meals and activity program and the home delivered meals program of Region I served 156,543 meals in 1983. Senior meals served 124,300 meals and the home delivered meals program served 32,243 meals.

Congregate meals are provided at 21 community sites throughout the region. Those communities are Ada, McIntosh, Warren, Crookston, Red Lake Falls, Karlstad, Hallock, Kennedy, Lake Bronson, Thief River Falls, Twin Valley, Roseau, Badger, Greenbush, Lancaster, East Grand Forks, Newfolden, Oklee, Halma, Winger and Warroad.

Region I home delivered meals programs are located at 14 locations: Ada, McIntosh, Warren, Crookston, Red Lake Falls, Oklee, Newfolden, Twin Valley, Halstad, Shelly, Winger, Alvarado, Erskine and Thief River Falls.

Goal of the congregate program is to provide a hot, nutritious meal, Monday through Friday, for seniors with an addition of socialization and other services. Meal sites are open 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. the days they are in operation so the seniors can come and participate in activities available.

Goal of the home delivered meals program is to provide meals to those homebound seniors who are unable to cook for themselves due to health or other reasons. Another goal is to help seniors maintain in their home for a longer length of time.

Anyone 60 years or older is eligible for the program. If a person is a spouse of one over 60, they are also allowed to attend.

Seniors contribute what they feel they can afford toward the cost of the meal. Confidentiality is maintained by use of envelopes. Tri-Valley transportation program provides service to many communities. This service allows seniors to attend the meals who have no other meals of transportation. Service varies according to various communities.

Referrals are made when needed to and from the weatherization and energy program, Valley chore service, home nursing care, independent home delivered meals programs and other

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Six Residents At Oakland Park Note Birthdays

Six birthdays were celebrated at the monthly birthday party held January 9, at Oakland Park Nursing home. Hosting the party and serving angel food cake to all the residents and staff were members of the Catholic Daughters.

Residents honored and the date of their birthdays were Carol Urdahl, January 1; 1897; Arvid Gustafson, Jan. 4, 1897; Ragna Efteland, Jan. 7, 1900; Jean Wright, Jan. 12, 1912; Pearl Sheedy, Jan. 19, 1894 and Annie Lindblom, Jan. 30, 1895.

On Mrs. Sheedy's birthday, her 90th, her family hosted an open house in her honor. They served cake and ice cream to the many relatives and friends who came to extend birthday wishes. The family also served cake and ice cream to all the residents and staff.

Also serving ice cream and cake to the residents and staff was the family of Annie Lindblom. She celebrated her 89th birthday with her family.

Special events included the Happy Hour on January 20. Doughnuts were served. Art Stordahl provided the accordion music for the afternoon social hour. On January 22, the Hodne family and friends from Middle River, Newfolden and Gatzke area presented sacred concert; and on January 31, Floyd and Pearl Dalzell provided an inspirational service with music and devotional message.

Members of the Eunice circle of Trinity Lutheran church visited with the residents on January 24 and served the afternoon lunch.

At the regular bowling game with the Valley Home team, Alfred Hermanson and Louie Meyer, both of Oakland Park, had the high scores of 87 and 85, respectively. The Valley Home team won the game with a score of 457. Oakland Park's score was 348.

Visiting clergy during January were Rev. Berton Hushagen of Trinity Lutheran, who offered communion to the residents; Rev. Melvyn Budke of the United Methodist church, Sister Denise Miller of St. Bernard's Catholic church and Rev. Duaine Espeseth. Also leading devotional services were Harvey Dyrud and a group from the Miracle House.

Four residents hosted private Sunday dinners during January. The hosting residents together with the dates and guests were Sena Chervestad, January 8, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Tasa; Mary Haider, January 15, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Haider; Arvid Gustafson, January 22, Clair Larson and Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Jorgenson; and Clara Ostby, January 29, Mr. and Mrs. Torfin Ostby and Ellert Lian.

Other activities during the month included weekly games with members of the Eagles auxiliary and Legion auxiliary assisting the residents; a quilting bee, poetry hour, movies with popcorn and card games.

NEWFOLDEN . . .

Senior Citizens News

We met at the meal site after dinner on Friday, Feb. 3rd. Ruth Martin our president called the meeting to order. She gave a very good project council report. They had met at Crookston on Feb. 2nd. She reported that there were two new meal sites. One at Winger and one at Warroad. She also encouraged us to sign up and attend the winter shows at Crookston. Senior day is Feb. 21st and the Tri-Valley bus will pick us up for a free ride down and back. Free coffee and cookies will be served when we arrive and they will serve a turkey dinner at $3 per person. The registration fee is $1.

Then the secretary's report was read by Amy Lind and the treasurer's report was read by Helmer Lind. Both reports were approved as read. We decided on some other business and the meeting was adjourned.

Disaster Loan Deadline For Marshall Co.

Disaster designation has been granted to Marshall county for crop losses suffered in 1983 as a result of excessive moisture and heat. Last date that applications can be received for the 1983 disaster loan program in Marshall county is July 24.

To qualify for an emergency loan, farmers must have suffered at least a 30 per cent loss in either their cash crop enterprise or their feed crop enterprise. Farmers must be unable to obtain the necessary credit from other lenders in order to qualify for low interest rate emergency loans.

For emergency loans of up to $100,000, the interest rate is five per cent. Loans from $100,000 to $500,000 carry an interest rate of eight per cent. Amount of loan that a farmer can receive is limited to the amount of qualifying crop losses that a farmer has suffered up to a maximum of $500,000.

Farmers in Pennington county and farmers in Marshall county residing east of highway 32 should contact the Thief River Falls Farmers Home administration office for further information.

related social services. All meals are under the supervision of our registered dietitian and provides one-third of the recommended daily requirement for seniors. Diet counseling is available to participants upon request. Nutrition education is provided monthly at sites and delivered to home delivered meals participants.

Volunteers are an asset to our programs. They spend many hours in helping to do the many tasks that need to be done to have the program run efficiently.

Senior meals and activity program is sponsored in part by the Northwest Regional Development commission area agency on aging, the state of Minnesota and the Federal Older American's act through a grant from the Minnesota board on aging. Tri-Valley opportunity council of Crookston is the grantee agency that sponsors the senior meals locally.

Any questions about the senior meals and activity program and the home delivered meals program could be answered by calling Linda Rethemeier, 1-218-281-6495 or write in care of Tri-Valley Opportunity Council, Inc., 114 South Main Street, Crookston 56716.

TRF Motorists Survive Close Calls In Storm

bound for the Elks' Las Vegas trip. Albert grew up in that area and was familiar with the farm sites. They drove about three-fourths of a mile to a farmstead windbreak, turned around and went back a short distance to the Dennis Garry driveway.

Albert walked to the Garry house and was invited to drive the car into the farm yard and bring his wife into the house. Cork said the Garry farm is located about eight miles east of highway 75. They stayed until about midnight, then warmed up their car after brushing snow off the engine and breaking ice off the radiator. Enroute home they stopped to check three abandoned cars and arrived home about 3 a.m.

Two other groups who had gone to Fargo-Moorhead for a piano contest also had difficulty in the storm. Piano instructor Marcia Knuttila had students Jennifer Westlund and Anne Gobell and Anne's friend Sherry Dosser with her when she left Moorhead about 3 p.m. About 10 miles north of Fertile on highway 32 the storm cut visibility to zero. A farm yard light became visible during a lull in the wind and Anne got out to help locate the driveway so Knuttila could get the car off the traffic lane.

They waited in the car with the heater operating for about two hours as the storm continued unabated. About 7:30 p.m. a Marvin Millwork truck with Bob Reinhart and Dan Anderson as driver and passenger stopped and offered a ride. It took approximately 45 minutes for the truck to travel about a mile from the Knuttila car to Marcoux corner, and snowmobilers assisted the truck driver in finding the turn-off from the highway 2 intersection into Marcoux corner.

After a stay of about an hour, the truckers and their passengers left for Thief River Falls, arriving here two and a half hours later. Knuttila said the truckers delivered her and the students to the door and asked only a piano recital in exchange for their help before leaving for Warroad. In nine years of trucking, it was the first time the men had taken highway 32 instead of highway 75, Knuttila said.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Adamson and their daughter Heather had also been at the piano contest, and left for Grand Forks via Interstate 29 because their son born prematurely on January 25 was in United Hospital there. At three pounds, four ounces, the youngster is getting along well but requires his mother's presence for feeding.

They left the college campus about 2:10 p.m. with a few snowflakes falling and were well down the highway toward Grand Forks when they saw what Don described as "a while wall that looked like fog". The wall materialized into wind-driven snow which immediately reduced visibility to near zero and made it impossible to find a place to turn around and reach the southbound lanes. "Even if we could have turned around," Adamson said, "we couldn't have made enough time in those conditions to catch up with the front and get ahead of it."

They decided to keep going toward Grand Forks, although they also considered taking an exit for towns along the way. They were reluctant to leave the one-way roadway and risk travel on the two-way highways with such poor visibility.

About 4 p.m., near the Thompson exit about nine miles south of Grand Forks, they pulled off the road ahead of a string of abandoned cars to wait out the weather. Half an hour later the throttle cable iced up and Adamson had to shut off the ignition. They huddled under a couple of quilts that were in the car, listened to the radio for weather information but used the lights only sparingly.

About 1 a.m. they were able to see traffic moving in the southbound lane. A snowplow, highway patrol car and several other vehicles came by and Adamson flashed his lights but the vehicles moved past in the direction of Grand Forks. About 2:30 a.m., when the family was huddled under the quilts, they heard a pounding on the car. A national guard truck had arrived and the Adamsons went with it as it picked up several other motorists before returning to the Grand Forks national guard armory about 5 a.m. The Red Cross served coffee and pastries at the armory and had cots available for those who wanted to try to sleep.

Adamson said he was 30th on the waiting list to get his car towed into town and wasn't able to get his vehicle until Monday morning. He also noted that Ron Dargus of Thief River Falls had been stopped on the highway within a couple hundred yards of the Adamson car with his van turned around to face south. Dargus reportedly gained refuge with a Canadian family traveling in a pickup camper with auxiliary heat.

Congressman Arlan Stangeland, who was in the Grand Forks area and called his Moorhead staff at 4 p.m. to alert them that the storm was coming, was told that no warning had been given in the Fargo-Moorhead area at that time. The congressman has called for a congressional investigation into the actions of the United States weather service during the blizzard.

"We can survive in this region if we have reliable information about the uncertain elements," Rep. Stangeland said. "In this case, the weather service seems to have failed to do its job. That failure has brought tragedy to a number of families. I want to know why, and I want to prevent it from happening again."

Stangeland said he has asked chairman James H. Scheuer of the subcommittee on natural resources of the House committee on science and technology to hold the investigation, and has received indications from subcommittee staff that a hearing will be held in the immediate future.

"If proper warnings could have been given there would have been a chance that lives could have been saved," he said. "Nothing can bring back those who were lost in the storm, but we owe it to them and their families to ensure that this lack of warning does not occur again."

135 Pints Of Blood Drawn During Drive

Total of 140 people signed up to donate and 135 points of blood were drawn during Thief River Falls' January 16 blood drive. Nine of the donors gave blood for the first time.

Clarice Collins coordinated the drive sponsored by the V.F.W. auxiliary. The auxiliary assisted with recruiting and publicity, refreshments and pre-registration. Northwestern hospital provided space to hold the drive. A very good blood drive was also held at area vocational-technical institute.

Donations will help meet the blood needs of many patients in 48 area hospitals served by United Blood services of the Upper Midwest.

Economics In State Bright For This Year

Economic indicators point to further gains in employment in the Twin Cities area and throughout Minnesota during the next few months, according to information received by State Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls.

Leading economic indicator indexes for Minnesota went up again in November for the sixth straight month, and the Twin Cities index rose for the seventh time, Sparby said.

"This is in direct contrast to what happened on the national scene," Sparby added, "where the U.S. index fell for the first time since August of 1982."

On top of this news comes a report from the "National Banking Survey of Chief Executive Officers" that rates the Twin Cities as one of the highest growth areas in the country during the current decade.

"The chief executive officers of the 2,000 largest banks in the United States predict that the Twin Cities will be among four metropolitan areas in the United States showing the most significant growth during the rest of the 1980's," Sparby noted. "The other cities are Boston, Denver and Dallas."

"It is good to see our state on the move again," Sparby concluded.

Valentines Party Slated At Newfolden

Deadline For Disaster Loans Is Feb. 12

Farmers Home administration (FmHA) has reminded farmers in Marshall county that February 12 is the deadline to apply for disaster emergency loans covering actual crop losses caused by adverse weather during the 1982 crop year.

FmHA county supervisor Francis J. Koehmstedt said a six-month period for receiving applications will expire on that date.

FmHA, a U.S. department of agriculture agency, makes disaster emergency loans to farmers who cannot find other sources of credit needed to restore operations to normal. Loans must be based on substantial loss from the designated disaster. Eligibility extends to recognized farmers who work at and rely on farming for a substantial part of their living and are U.S. citizens, or to farming partnerships, corporations or cooperatives in which U.S. citizens hold a majority interest.

Sexual Child Abuse Cases Grow In State

There were 4,482 reported incidents of sexual child abuse in Minnesota in 1982, according to the Minnesota department of welfare. This is an increase of 1,782, or 59 per cent, from the previous year.

Minnesota crime watch, a program of the Minnesota department of public safety, suggests that parents help their children deal with sexual abuse by telling them it exists and how to prevent it. But youngsters should not be terrorized with stories about abuse. Instead they should be motiviated to protect themselves against molestation.

"Parents should begin by telling their youngsters that abuse can come from strangers, relatives or acquaintances," said Charles Rix, crime watch coordinator. "They should then help their children recognize their private body parts and understand their right not to be touched against their wishes."

Youngsters should also be taught to identify positive, exploitive and confusing touches. Positive touches, like holding hands and other touches children like, are okay. But children should be told to refuse exploitive touches like hitting or biting and confusing touches like pinching or squeezing. Parents can help children develop answers like "I don't like to be touched that way" to fend off exploitive or confusing touches.

"Always advise children it is all right to tell their parents or other authority figures if they are touched in uncomfortable ways," Rix reminded parents. "They should be believed and never told touching was their fault."

Parents and their children should devise responses to possible abuse situations so the children know what to do if and when the moment occurs. For instance a child could be asked "What if your friend's older brother was always touching you when you didn't want him to? What could you do? Who would you tell?" Children who know what to do beforehand are in a good position to avoid danger.

Parents can also help their children set up a support network of neighbors, relatives, police or other trusted persons the child can call for help.

Often child molesters lure youngsters with gifts or candy, toys or money. "If their children are bringing these items home, parents should determine where they came from," said Rix.

Children should follow these tips to avoid potentially dangerous situations:

Never walk up to any car, especially if you don't know who is inside.

Only accept rides from adults when your parents know about it.

Write down the license number of any vehicle whose occupant has asked you to get in and go for a ride.

Scream, make noise or do something else to attract attention if harassed or touched in public. Molesters are very secretive and need privacy.

Go to a populated area if harassed in public. Ask for help and call the police.

Parents should suspect child abuse if their youngster complains of pain, itching and bleeding around the genital area. Young, sexually abused children may appear withdrawn and clining while adolescents may be hostile, promiscuous and could even run away from home.

Help for abused children is available by contacting local law enforcement agencies or the county welfare department. Law enforcement officers have authority to remove children from an abusive environment.

Services Held At Grygla For Arthur Nordby

Funeral services for Arthur Nordby, 86, of Grygla were held today (Wednesday) at 10:30 a.m., at the Grace Lutheran church. Nordby died Sunday morning at Northwestern hospital.

Rev. Percy Smerek officiated at the services. Organist and soloist was Mrs. Ada Smerek. Interment will be in the Valle cemetery, rural Grygla, with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Arthur Nordby, a son of the late Peter and Berthea Bye Nordby, was born Jan. 19, 1898 in Hatton, N.D. He was baptized and confirmed there at St. John's Lutheran church.

In 1900, he moved with the family to a homestead in Benville township of Beltrami county, near Grygla.

He was marrried June 25, 1930 to Dorothy Tveten by Rev. S. T. Anderson at the Grygla Lutheran parsonage, the Nordbys' current home: The couple farmed in Benville township until 1973, when they retired and moved into Grygla.

Nordby was very active in the Grygla community. He served as trustee of the Valle Lutheran church for several years, was Valle cemetery sexton for about 40 years, had been a member of school boards in that area, and had served on the Beltrami County ASC board and as camp secretary for Modern Woodman 9192 for several years. He was a member of the Grace Lutheran church and the Grygla Lions club.

Surviving are his wife, two sons: Orvis and Roy Nordby, both of Grygla; three daughters: Mrs. Gerald (Ardith) Erickson, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Mrs. Rodney (Marie) Anderson, Thief River Falls, Mrs. Leland (Carol) Lee, St. Cloud; 20 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Also two brothers: Curtis Nordby, Thief River Falls; and Harold, Waukegan, Ill., and six sisters: Paula Wicklund, Florence Shay and Alice Hylland, all of Spokane, Wash.; Esther Kristrom, Aberdeen, Wash.; Hilma Niven, Montello, Wis., and Myrtle Haugen, Portland, N.D.

He was preceded in death by his first wife, the former Alette Olson, an infant daughter, three brothers, Calmer, Adolph, and one who died in infancy, and three sisters, who also died in infancy.

Elderhostel Program This Summer At BSU

Elderhostel, a program designed to provide one week experiences of campus life and academic stimulation to persons over 60 years of age, will be a part of summer 1984 at Bemidji State university.

Program is offered each summer at educational institutions throughout the nation as well as several foreign countries. Minnesota has 28 participating institutions. During their stay at Bemidji State, participants can be involved in as many as three courses covering American history, theatre, or the political history of a classic tale.

"Other Side of American History: Those Who Lost", will be taught by Gerald Schnabel, associate professor of history. This course will focus on several periods of American history from the perspective of the parties who were unsuccessful in achieving their goals.

Native American view of the colonial period, the British Loyalist side of the American Revolution, the Southern perspective on the Civil War, the struggles of ethnic groups in the 19th century, and the problems of the socialist in the last century will be examined in this course on the historical development of America.

A look at theatre will be presented by Louis Marchand, associate professor of theatre at BSU. His course is titled "All the World's a Stage: Grease Paint, Bright Lights and Opening Nights."

Theatre class will teach participants to analyze the finer points of theatre through experiences in both acting in and directing of a theatrical production. Hostelers will view the art from both sides of the curtain.

Classic tale of "The Wizard of Oz" was based on actual events. Art Lee, professor of history, will discuss the changes that have occurred in the original Oz of 1890 to the Oz of today, Washington D.C.

Hostelers will also have the opportunity to participate in activities in addition to the course offerings. They will travel to the headwaters of the Mississippi river at Lake Itasca, tour Lake Bemidji, participate in a walleye fish fry, and enjoy many other activities.

Elderhostel participants live in student dormitories on the BSU campus, located on the shores of Lake Bemidji, and are served meals in the student dining hall. There will be five one week programs beginning June 10 and ending July 14.

Cost of the program is $190.00 per person and includes room, board and tuition. A $30 deposit is requested at the time of registration, which begins March 9. Requests will be filled on a first-come, first served basis.

For additional information on the Elderhostel program at BSU write to Tom Yahraes, Director of Elderhostel, Bemidji State University, Deputy Hall 307, Bemidji 56601 or call 218-755-3996.

MOVS Has 10 Openings On Advisory Group

Advisory committee of the Minnesota office on volunteer services (MOVS) has openings for six regional members and four at-large members. Regional openings are for regions 2, 4, 6E, 7E, 8 and 10.

Applicants for the regional member openings must reside in the regions they are applying to represent. At-large positions may be filled by any Minnesota resident.

A division of the Minnesota department of administration, MOVS provides statewide leadership and supportive services to volunteer leaders to initiate, expand, and improve the contributions of volunteers. Established in 1975, it encourages the effective coordination and channeling of voluntary action to improve the quality of life for Minnesota citizens.

Purpose of the advisory committee is to advise and make recommendations to the governor, commissioner and director on program direction and policies relating to volunteerism. In addition, members interpret the goals and programs of MOVS to the volunteer community, serve on planning committees and task forces, and work on special projects.

Appointed by the governor for a four year term, members on the committee are selected through the state's "Open Appointment" process. Applications must be submitted through the office of the secretary of state.

Those interested in serving on the committee are encouraged to contact the office for an information packet and application form. Write to the Minnesota Office on Volunteer Service, 500 Rice St., St. Paul 55155; or call 800-652-9747.

Heavier Loads Allowed On Frozen Roads

"Now is the time to be moving heavy loads on state highways," according to Bob Wolfe, district engineer for the Minnesota department of transportation. "Springtime weight restrictions have a way of sneaking up on people and can cause delays and extra expenses during the two months that weight restrictions are in effect".

Because roadways are rock hard with frost during the winter months, they are capable of carrying much heavier loads, therefore the department of transportation allows an extra 10 per cent of weight on state highways, Wolfe said. This means that nine-ton roads with a weight limit of 73,280 pounds gross weight can now carry a maximum 80,000 pounds gross weight. On 10-ton routes, the allowable weight is increased from 80,000 to 88,000 pounds gross weight.

Allowable winter weight increase is limited to 10 per cent because bridges on the state system are not affected by the freezing weather and are not designed to carry higher loads.

When spring weight restrictions are posted again, sometime around mid-March, there will be a few changes, according to Wolfe. The following weight restrictions changes will be in effect this spring:

T.H. 92 — From T.H. 32 to T.H. 59 (Brooks), raised from seven-ton to nine-ton.

T.H. 113 — From T.H. 32 to E. Norman Co. Line, raised from seven-ton to nine-ton.

According to Wolfe, changes in weight restrictions have been made possible by last year's construction projects which were programmed using priorities developed in cooperation with the commodity movement groups of northwest Minnesota. "If a person is looking for a direct economic benefit of highway construction, this is an important one." Wolfe said. "By making transportation more efficient, we are making it cheaper to get goods to market and this should help to keep prices down and profits up."

All other weight restrictions in northwest Minnesota are expected to remain the same in 1984 as they were in 1983 and will be shown on the 1984 road restriction map distributed by the transportation permits section of the department of transportation sometime in February.

This map can be obtained by writing to the Transportation Permits Section, Room G-20, Transportation Building, John Ireland Blvd., St. Paul, 55155.

Ag Promotion Grant Deadline Is February 15

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer reminds interested persons in District I of the February 15 deadline for application to the Minnesota department of agriculture for up to a $70,000 grant to be used for agricultural promotional activities.

"These grants, which were approved by the 1983 Legislature," Stumpf said, "can be used to help expand, improve and develop the markets for Minnesota agricultural products and are intended to help improve the marketing of these products locally, nationally and internationally," he added.

According to a letter from the director of the program to Senator Stumpf, the administrative rules governing this grant program have been developed and any changes being made in them will not affect the eligibility requirements of applicants, Stumpf said. "We anticipate that the rules will be approved and they will become effective within the next few weeks."

Interested applicants which may include agricultural commodity organizations and agriculture-related businesses, may apply for the grants, with some projects to be eligible for state grants of up to 75 per cent of the cost of a particular project, Stumpf said.

Organizations or individuals wishing to apply for a grant should request a copy of the rules governing the program. The rules describe eligibility criteria, application content and application procedures. Separate proposals must be submitted for each grant being sought. Other information may be obtained by contacting: Rollin Dennistoun, Ph.D., Deputy Commissioner, Minnesota Department of Agriculture, 90 West Plato Boulevard, St. Paul, Minnesota 55107 or calling (612) 296-9310.

Applicants are to submit their proposal(s) to Dr. Dennistoun at the above address on or before 4:30 p.m., February 15.

ICCC Plans Summer Youth Job Program

Planning for the 1984 summer youth programs is underway by the Inter-County Community council at Oklee, according to Mary Lou Harthun, youth programs director.

To be eligible for the programs, youths must be 14 to 21 years of age and economically disadvanataged. They may apply through their school or directly through the Inter-County Community council. The program will begin in June and run for eight weeks.

Employers are eligible for up to 50 per cent reimbursement of the youth's hourly wage. Fringe benefits are the responsibility of the employer. Once Inter-County has screened the applicant for eligibility, employers will interview and employ their own youth employees. Written request for participation in the program must be sent to the Inter-County office by March 2. Additional information is available from Mary Lou Harthun at the ICCC office in Oklee, phone 796-5144.

Zins Lashes Out At Schools Open During Strikes

Martha Lee (Marti) Zins, president of the Minnesota Education association (MEA), lashes out at school boards and administrators who are she says "making a sham of the Minnesota public employment negotiations law by opening schools in the teacher strike districts around the state."

"They are duping the public," she explains, "and rendering a great disservice to students exposing them to the kinds of things going on in these 'pretend' schools."

Zins points out that there is literally no education going on in those buildings where the district had hired "scabs" to take the place of striking teachers, and that the "reports coming out of these schools are frightening to say the least."

She cites reports from Moorhead that tell of elementary classes left unattended where the students are visibly sitting on top of desks, walking on the radiators and climbing up to the windows and holding up signs for outsiders to see.

Reports from the high school purport a replacement in charge of a welding class who didn't know how to turn on the welding tanks. He later quit. "And there is the English teacher who couldn't speak English," Zins said. "He quit, too. I suspect this is the result of the 'hurry-up' licensing done by the state department of education to accommodate the 'scab' hiring."

Again in Moorhead, teacher aides are reporting that substitutes are relying on the aides to tell them what to teach and how. Teachers on the picket lines said they were forced to leave their stations and help a kindergarten class that had been dismissed from school without supervision or school patrol at a busy intersection. The teachers, fearing for the safety of the children, left their lines to help them across the street. On another occasion, when kindergarteners and first graders had missed the bus, teachers said they prevailed on the security guards, who were hired to monitor teacher activity, to help the students.

"This is a travesty," Zins states, "and the public is being misled. Superintendents are telling the public in these communities that education is taking place and all is well when, in reality, it is noting more than a babysitting service and we question even that. We know that the 'scabs' have been told in Moorhead, 'Keep them calm and quiet. We don't expect you to teach.' A physics class in the Moorhead high school has had three different substitutes in four days. Reports are that a home economics sub taught the class one day.

"I question the integrity and ethics of any superintendent and school board that would subject students to this kind of 'pretend school' and call it education. It is a violation of the trust the public has in those they have elected to provide quality education for students in Minnesota."

Zins also points out that besides the educational consideration there is a safety factor at stake. According to reports, about 150 students took over the school Thursday and held a protest sit-in and rally in the commons area and then walked out of school. Police were called and students wanting to return to school were threatened by the security guards and not allowed to enter the school.

"There appears to be a complete lack of control," Zins emphasizes, "and that is not safe. The administration has exhibited a complete lack of responsibility by allowing this farce to continue. This is but one example of what happens when school boards and administrators allow vindictiveness to creep into their thinking. If they would spend as much time and effort at the negotiations table in meaningful negotiations with teachers as they have in seeking out and hiring scabs, opening up some schools and not others, and spending taxpayers monies just to save their own skins, we wouldn't have a teachers strike in this state.

"Our Minnesota Legislature has provided a law (public employment, labor relations act of 1971 as amended) designed to enable school boards and teachers to come to an agreement on their differences. Teachers are following this law to the letter. School boards and administrators are making a sham of this law," Zins maintains.

She refers to the nation's concern for excellence in education and criticizes school boards and administrations for failing to respond to the situation.

"What is happening," she concludes," in Moorhead, Sauk Rapids and St. Louis county and has happened in Appleton, Duluth, Coleraine and Park Rapids is ample evidence of school boards' and administrators' insensitivity to the quality education of students in this state. Teachers are fighting for educational excellence in their districts. It is an injustice that school boards have forced some of them out into the streets to gain it."

School Safety Patrol Week Is February 12-18

Citing a proclamation signed by Governor Rudy Perpich designating February 12 to 18 as school safety patrol week, public safety commissioner Paul Tschida urges communities and organizations to organize special programs to recognize the young people who so faithfully serve in the school safety patrol.

Tschida pointed out that these young people, numbering more than 35,000 in Minnesota, have volunteered for this responsibility and given generously of their time in helping to teach their school mates to respect important traffic safety rules.

Nearly 200 members of the school safety patrol received training during week-long courses at the 560-acre Legionville camp on North Long Lake near Brainerd. Last summer 196 trainees arrived at the camp over 11 successive weeks to be taught their jobs by state patrol safety education troopers. Trainees go to classes in the morning and spend the rest of the day in typical summer camp-recreational activities.

Legionville was created for this purpose by the Minnesota American Legion in 1957 with an initial outlay of $225,000. Over the years the veterans' organization has donated more than $370,000 to the program and its facilities. Many other civic groups have also contributed generously to this remarkable volunteer cooperative effort, sanctioned by the Minnesota legislature.

In his proclamation, the governor also called attention to the fact that school safety patrols, both nationally and internationally, are modeled on the original school safety patrol established in Minnesota on February 17, 1920. On that date, 64 years ago, Sister M. Carmela, a teacher at Cathedral school in St. Paul, put the first school safety patrols on the streets with the endorsement of St. Paul municipal authorities.

Senator Urges Change In IRA To Aid Women

All women, whether homemakers or those employed outside of the home, would receive equal treatment in establishing individual retirement accounts (IRAs) under legislation introduced by Senator Rudy Boschwitz.

Currently, families in which one spouse works in the home can contribute only $2,250 annually to an IRA, while families in which both spouses work can contribute $4,000 per year. The Boschwitz bill would allow every family to contribute up to $4,000 annually.

"I think the way the law now reads discriminates unfairly against women who choose to make their career in the home, raising children and providing a home for their families," Boschwitz said. "These people work as hard as anyone with no direct compensation. It would be grossly unfair to remove their right to an equal retirement, too."

Boschwitz said that the current law is particularly tough on farm families, in which the division of labor often is blurred between being "at home" and "at work."

The Reagan administration has recently announced backing of such a modification in the law, a move that greatly improves the chances at passage, according to Boschwitz.

Exploration Of Refuge System Nixed By Clark

Funds appropriated last year to pave the way for oil and gas exploration in certain areas of the national wildlife refuge system will not be needed for that purpose, according to William Clark, secretary of the department of interior, who says he will seek their reallocation for other uses after consulting with congress.

In letters to the chairmen of the Senate and House interior appropriations subcommittees, Clark said there are no departmental plans for oil and gas activity on so called "acquired lands" within the wildlife refuge system. Such lands had been declared open to exploration and development of natural gas and oil by a decision of interior's board of land appeals in the spring of 1981.

Congress, through the appropriations process, subsequently directed that department of interior undertake extensive environmental analysis of the proposed development lands as a prelude to any mineral activity, and made $500,000 available for that purpose in the 1984 budget.

"I have reviewed this matter carefully and, as I stated in recent congressional testimony, the department has no plans to allow oil and gas activity on the wildlife refuges under consideration," Clark said in letters to Senator James McClure and Congressman Sidney Yates. "Therefore, funds for environmental analysis are now unnecessary. I will be recommending that your committee concur in other uses of such monies in the near future."

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Where was the Lincoln high school band on Saturday night? They can go to Norway but they can't play for the Snofest home hockey game. The Prowler hockey team played the then undefeated Roseau Rams and the band was not there to represent their school or town. Even though the weather was awful they were not scheduled to play. I'm sure Roseau was very impressed. Have they played for many home games? As Mr. Lundin said in his Monday editorial, this trip creates mixed emotions.

Last summer band parents had to raise money to help Mr. Engstrom and the band program due to school cuts. They must have pulled together as both the director and the band program are still here.

Where is our band for the Summerfest parade? Plummer is always in our parades. Maybe the Plummer band should represent Thief River Falls from now on.

I am not saying that this trip isn't an honor. Whether you go to Oslo, MN to march or Oslo, Norway, it's an honor, but this should have been handled with a little more long range planning. The first the parents knew of this was before Christmas and then it was just "being considered". After New Year's a meeting was held to find out the parents' feelings. The band members knew before the parents that they were going so the pressure was already on.

The parents had to have a $300 deposit by January 31. This was approximately three weeks after this meeting. For some people $300 is a little bit of money, especially right after the holidays, in the midst of high heating bills, etc.

The cost of the trip, $749.00 isn't that great, according to the representative from the Sons of Norway travel agency, but then came the plus (over and above travel fare). Norway doesn't have an over abundance of fast food places like the U.S. does, so they could get by on $5 for lunch and $9 for supper: $9 times 14 days equals $126 for suppers alone. Add the fee for passports, three nights' lodging ($75) and spending money. Visiting with a student from Norway about five years ago, we learned he thought the U.S. living was "cheap". Do prices in Norway stay the same over five years, or do they go up like they do here?

This trip is an expensive trip and there are parents who just can't afford to send their child. What happens to that band student? They are being replaced for the trip. Next fall are they still in Wind Ensemble or is the student who replaced them the member of ensemble?

Now members of Wind Ensemble are giving lessons to fifth graders in band for a fundraiser at $2.50 a half hour or $4 an hour. This is over and above their regular lessons by the band directors. Are these students professional enough to teach young beginning students? There's more to teaching how to play a certain instrument than just blowing and making it sound good.

Not much can be done now — those who can afford it will go, those who can't afford it, or whose child has a summer job or other commitments will not go. But as you're marching in Norway, take along these thoughts: People expect you to also be marching in Thief River Falls or St. Hilaire and performing at games in TRF. Here's hoping you're marching in Norway because you deserve to be there, not because some travel agency thinks you should be there.

I hope the band program isn't cut for next year.

Rapid Drop In Jobless Rate Unpredicted

by Walter W. Heller
'U' M Professor

The most welcome economic surprise of 1983 was the striking drop in unemployment. Even those of us who forecast strong gross national product growth in 1983, (and the early-1983 Perry-Heller forecast of 5 to 6 per cent real growth came fairly close to the actual outcome of 6.25 per cent) did not translate that into anything like the 2.5 point drop in the unemployment rate that actually occurred.

The Reagan White House, for example, predicted that the jobless rate would still be 8.4 per cent in late 1984, and here we have hit 8.2 per cent by late 1983. What happened?

First, the recovery created jobs faster than expected — nearly 4 million since recovery began. But strong as that is, it's just a little better than the rate of job creation as we climbed out of the 1974-75 recession.

Second, the real key to the puzzle is that the slowdown in growth of the labor force that we've all been expecting in the mid '80s is occurring ahead of schedule. Baby-boomers are no longer flocking into the labor force — in the late '70s, as many as 700,000 a year. But last year? The number of teenagers in the workforce dropped by 350,000.

More surprisingly, the surge of women into the labor force suddenly ebbed from 1.5 million a year (in the late '70s) to less than 900,000 last year. Why? Because their husbands got jobs? Or because divorce rates are down? Or work outside the home is losing its luster? It's too early to tell whether it's a blip or a trend, but it's a major reason labor force growth in 1983 at 1.1 per cent was just about half that in 1973.

So the job news is sharply better than we expected. But lest we forget, there are still 9.2 million out of work (not counting the 1.5 million discouraged workers and 5.8 million part-time unemployed). And contrary to Mr. Reagan's claim that women and blacks are making more than their share of the job gains in this recovery, the truth is that the job gains for women have lagged behind those for men, the jobless rate for blacks is 2.5 times that for whites, and half of black teenagers are still jobless.

But there's hope. If the economy grows rapidly while the labor force grows slowly, the unemployed will find more and better jobs as the '80s unfold.

Incorporation Can Be Boost To Small Business

To incorporate or not. That's a vital decision for small businesses. And it could make a major financial difference, says Leonard Sliwoski, director of Moorhead state university's small business development center.

Although more than 2.9 million businesses in the U.S. are incorproated, only about 5,000 account for two-thirds of all corporate income. Vast majority are small businesses that incorporate because of the non-tax and tax benefits available to the corporate entity.

Should a small business incorporate? It depends, Sliwoski said. From a tax viewpoint, if the business is profitable, and if the owner is at least in the 35 per cent tax bracket, then probably yes. From a non-tax perspective, if the owner wants to separate or protect personal assets from business creditors, then yes again.

Legal fees for a standard incorporation range from $400 to $700, he said. But under the right circumstances, it's a wise investment.

Sliwoski said that the statutes of incorporation were passed down from Old English law, originally formulated to separate a business entity from its owner. Unlike the two other forms of business organization — the proprietorship and the partnership — a corporate owner's private assets are shielded by law from businesses creditors.

This brings up the two major non-tax benefits of incorporating a typical small business: financial and product liability protection.

If a business was to fail, incorporating can offer financial protection. Simply put, personal assets can't be touched by creditors of the corporation. Laws of incorporation protect them. Because of that, if a corporation gets bank financing, Sliwoski said, it's likely the bank will ask the owner to co-sign the note as an individual. The banks do that, obviously, to protect themselves. However, protection from financial liability still exists for many types of corporate debts such as trade payables, salaries and rents owned.

If selling a product that involves a potential liability too costly to insure, that may be reason enough to incorporate. For the same reason: protecting private assets.

There are also several tax advantages that make incorporating very attractive.

If you own a business and personal income is being taxed between 35 and 50 per cent, you should consider incorporating. By leaving business earnings in the corporation, it's possible to shelter them from higher personal tax rates and use that money for investing.

For example, if in a 50 per cent tax bracket, 50 cents of each dollar you earn, or 50 cents of each dollar from your business set up as a proprietorship or partnership, goes to the government. But if that dollar remains in the corporation, only 15 per cent goes to the government because of the lower corporate tax rates. The 35 cents difference (between 15 and 50 cents) is free to invest. On $20,000, for example, that 35 cents translates into $7,000.

Of course you'll be paying that 50 per cent rate eventually when you draw that money out of the company. But meanwhile, Sliwoski said, it's yours to use.

And you won't be paying a double tax (both corporate and personal) if you withdraw it correctly. If the money is withdrawn as salary, he said, or as other service to the corporation, the corporation gets a deduction that off-sets the original 15 per cent corporate tax.

Unlike the proprietorship of the partnership, corporate owners are treated both as employees and employers. That alone opens up all kinds of tax advantages — relating to meals, lodging, medical insurance, life insurance and dependent care.

If set up as a corporation, there's a unique kind of tax advantage for people who earn a large income from stock dividends. By transfering the dividend producing stock to the corporation, they're taxed at a very low corporate rate, rather than a higher personal income tax rate.

Again, the point is to keep that money working, earning a return for the business by postponing the tax. Eventually the full tax on that money will be paid (when it's drawn out of the corporation). But in the meantime, it's working to an advantage.

This deduction doesn't apply to everyone, Sliwoski said. There are specific penalties if too many dividend producing stocks are transferred to the corporation. Check the details with a tax advisor.

If a partnership or a proprietorship decides to close the business, the only option is to sell the assets and get hit with ordinary income tax rates ranging up to 50 per cent. But if a corporation, there is the option of selling the assets, or the stock. If the stock is sold, the gain is taxed as a long-term capital gain (20 per cent maximum). Again, you're avoiding the steeper personal income tax.

Unlike a partnership proprietorship, the losses a corporation sustains aren't currently distributed among the owners for tax deductions on their personal tax returns. These losses stay within the corporation as deductions against future profitable years.

But if a new business expects to sustain some significant losses in the first few years, there's a way to incorporate and still take advanatage of the corporate losses as deductions on personal tax return, Sliwoski said. Organize as a Subchapter S corporation.

Subchapter S corporation not only gives the business owner the liability protection of a corporation, but also allows the owner to deduct corporate losses on personal tax returns. As soon as the business turns profitable, simply drop your Subchapter S status and convert to a regular corporation.

It may sound as if these laws are only developed to side-step paying taxes. But Sliwoski said they're really designed to help businesses prosper.

If you're still not convinced, Sliwoski quotes from a noted legal decision handed down in the Commissioner vs. Newman court case of 1947 by Justice Learned Hand: "Over and over again courts have said that there is nothing sinister in so arranging one's affairs as to keep taxes as low as possible. Everybody does so, rich or poor; and all do right, for nobody owes any public duty to pay more than the law demands: taxes are enforced exactions, not voluntary contributions. To demand more in the name of morals is mere cant."

For more information about advantages or disadvantages of incorporating, contact the MSU small business development center at 218-236-2289.

UND Releases Videotape On Medical Career

Videotape titled "A Career in Medicine" has been produced by the UND school of medicine for showing in classroom and parent-teacher meetings in rural North Dakota, according to Dean Tom M. Johnson.

The 25-minute program, updated from last year's initially-released program, is especially geared for rural high school students who may be interested in pursuing medicine as a career.

It includes information on academic preparation required to successfully compete to enter medical school, financial considerations, quality of instruction, and the day-to-day life of a medical student.

In the program, UND medical students recall their thoughts when first considering medical school, their experiences in medical school, and perspectives on their future practices.

Several North Dakota physicians, who are also teachers for the UND school of medicine, discuss their early thoughts about medical school, obstacles they overcame to succeed in school and benefits of their profession, both in urban and rural areas of the state.

A faculty member or other representative of the UND school of medicine will travel to the school requesting the videotape, show the program and answer viewers' questions.

Program may be shown to high school classes or clubs, parent-teacher organizations, school administrators and boards, counselors or other interested persons.

There is no charge for the program and arrangements for its showing can be made by contacting Shirley Backman, Office of Clinical Affairs, UND School of Medicine, Grand Forks, ND 58202; or call (701) 777-3406.

MN Veterans To Be Paid VA Dividends

More than 81,000 Minnesota veterans who kept their GI life insurance policies in force will share a record $15 million in dividends in 1984, the Veterans administration announced recently.

No application for the annual dividend is necessary, according to Morris Nooner, Jr., director of the St. Paul VA regional office - insurance center at Fort Snelling. He said each policyholder will receive the dividend automatically on the month of the anniversary date of the individual policy.

Nooner said the record high dividend was made possible by higher interest rates earned by the insurance fund. Average amount to be paid to 1,248 World War I veterans in Minnesota with current policies is $244.

A total 65,534 World War II veterans in the state will receive an average payment of $211 on their active policies. Korean conflict veterans who kept their GI insurance in force — a total 11,246 in Minnesota — will receive an average payment of $124.

Disabled veterans from World War II and Korea who have a special type of GI insurance (veterans reopened insurance) will also receive increased dividends. This year 3,381 holders of these policies in Minnesota will receive an average $192 each. Also, many Vietnam-era veterans hold Veterans Group Life Insurance (VGLI) which does not pay dividends.

Nooner said the $15 million dividend payout in the state is part of a national record $721.8 million in 1984 dividends to over 3.6 million veterans whose policies are still in force. He said payments will be made in the manner previously selected by the policyholder. Choices range from cash to the purchase of paid-up insurance.

Aldabra Declared As Heritage Site

By Thomas Harney
Smithsonian News Service

Aldabra's status as one of the world's great natural wonders was ensured in 1982 when the atoll was declared a "world Heritage Site" by UNESCO. The first coral atoll to be so designated, Aldabra joined other World Heritage sites of important conservation interest, such as the Galapagos Islands.

But Aldabra's treasure-house of rare and endangered wildlife has not always enjoyed such protection. In 1874, the famed British naturalist Charles Darwin and several of his colleagues urged that Aldabra's giant tortoises be saved. By then, the tortoises, once widespread on the Seychelles islands, were extinct everywhere but on Aldabra; even there, they were vanishing because they were hunted by passing mariners who prized their meat.

In 1888, the atoll was leased for fishing, turtle hunting and woodcutting. By the turn of the century, according to accounts, it was hard to find a single tortoise on Aldabra. When the Seychelles took over jurisdiction of Aldabra from Mauritius in 1903, some protection was decreed for the few remaining tortoises, sea turtles and for some species of birds, but enforcement was lax.

Fortunately, the commercial exploitation of the atoll remained at a low level. Only a few small parts of the atoll were cleared for coconut planting. In addition, the island does not accumulate guano and thus completely escaped the devastation of guano mining for the fertilizer industry, which ruined many other atolls.

In the following years, little or no conservation work was carried out on Aldabra, although the scientific community recognized the need. Then, in 1953, publicity surrounding a trip to Aldabra by Jacques-Yves Cousteau led to new measures protecting wild birds, tortoises and other animals on the atoll's South island and forbidding human settlement there. However, the atoll as a whole remained unprotected.

Closest call yet for Aldabra's wildlife came in the 1960s. At that time, the island was still part of the British Indian Ocean territory. British ministry of defense had developed plans to build an air strip on the atoll for use by the British and American air forces and had also agreed to the construction of a British Broadcasting corporation transmitting station and tower on Aldabra.

Airfield would have been at the east end of South island in the area of greatest tortoise concentration, and the planes would have flown over the atoll frigate bird colony. There were even proposals to dredge the main channel into the lagoon to form a harbor and to beach a nuclear-powered ship and an aircraft carrier in the lagoon to provide electrical power and a base for the broadcasting tower.

When these plans leaked out in 1966, they ignited one of the greatest international conservation battles of all time. Royal Society of London and the Smithsonian institution in the United States mobilized scientific opposition to the schemes. Eventually, the British government dropped the plans for economic reasons.

Subsequently, the British Royal society launched an intensive program of research on the atoll that continued for more than a decade. One member of the Royal society expendition was Dr. F. Raymond Fosberg, a Smithsonian national museum of natural history botanist and authority on tropical island ecology. Fosberg had helped lead the battle in the United States to save Aldabra, in cooperation with his colleagues, Dr. Marie-Helene Sachet, also of the Smithsonian, and Dr. David Stoddart, of Cambridge university.

A research station was later built by the Royal society, and, in 1980, the society turned over the station to the newly independent Republic of Seychelles, which had created the Seychelles islands foundation "to manage and conserve the natural life of the group of islands comprising the atoll of Aldabra." The board of trustees of this independent, self-funded charitable trust includes representatives of the Royal society and the Smithsonian institution.

The Smithsonian contributes an annual sum toward the foundation in addition to raising private funds in the United States for support of the conservation operations on Aldabra. For further information about the foundation, contact Marsha Cox, National Museum of Natural History, Room 421, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C. 20560.

GROWING OLDER also means growing longer, with the result that things which were easy as little kids become harder as bigger kids. Even riding a tricycle can be difficult, as these Goodridge high school students discovered when they attempted to participate in races during Sno-Fest activities on Friday.

Court Reporter Files Suit For Elbow Damage

Pennington is among 17 northwestern Minnesota counties in the Ninth Judicial district included in a workman's compensation suit filed by Dalton Braden, a court reporter from Grand Rapids.

Braden claims he is suffering from a tendinitis condition referred to as "reporter's elbow", which he says he developed after working on stenograph machines.

The counties involved contend that — although court reporters' salaries are paid in part by each of the 17 counties — the state is responsible for the claim. Basis of the contention is that the court reporters work for the district and are assigned to the judges in the district, and that the judges are employed by the state of Minnesota.

The Minnesota supreme court has reportedly recently decided a similar claim in favor of the counties, ruling that the state is responsible for compensation.

Despite the ruling, Braden's attorney said the claim against the counties is being continued because "until somebody agrees that they are responsible, we have to conclude that the people paying him are responsible."

Activist Guide Is Available At Libraries

Minnesotans wanting to do their part in getting drunk drivers off the state's highways may find that their public library is a good place to start, reports the Minnesota department of public safety.

Libraries across the country were recently sent copies of the book, "A Citizen Activist Guide to Effectively Fight Drunk Driving," published by the U.S. DOT's national highway traffic safety administration (NHTSA).

Handbook gives a step-by-step approach to what citizens can do to join or organize programs aimed at reducing drinking and driving. "Grass roots efforts are effective and individual citizens can make a difference if they know how to proceed," said secretary of transportation Elizabeth Hanford Dole in announcing the availability of this publication.

Guide is being mailed to more than 17,000 public, junior college, college and university libraries nationwide as a cooperative project of NHTSA, Allstate Insurance company and the American Library association.

At least 55 per cent of all fatal traffic collisions are alcohol-related, costing the nation an estimated $21 billion a year. The "how to" nature of the guide is designed to help individuals organize a task force to study the drunk driving problem and then get the study results translated into effective programs for their own communities.

Education Day February 21 At Winter Shows

"Political Issues of Importance to Education in Minnesota" is the theme for education day slated for Tuesday, Feb. 21, at the University of Minnesota - Crookston (UMC) as part of the 1984 Red River Valley winter shows.

Speaking at the morning seminar will be Harlan Cleveland, director of the University's Humbert Humphrey institute of public affairs. Speaking at the noon luncheon will be former Minnesota governor Al Quie.

Cleveland was assistant secretary of state in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, and the United States representative to NATO from 1965 to 1969.

Reacting to Cleveland's speech will be Roger Moe, Minnesota senate majority leader; Cleo Cleveland, director, center for economic education, University of North Dakota; Doug Benit, Red Lake Falls school superintendent; and Dale Wain, Fosston school superintendent.

Keynoting the noon luncheon will be former Minnesota governor Al Quie.

Planned by a committee of area public school superintendents in conjunction with UMC, the seminar and luncheon are both open to the public. Tickets for the luncheon are $4.50 and may be purchased at the door. Registration and coffee are at 9:30 a.m. in Dowell hall; morning seminar at 10 a.m. in Dowell hall 204-5; and luncheon at 12:30 in the food service building.

Workshop On Mexican Food Being Planned

Workshop on Mexican cooking will be conducted Tuesday, February 21, from 6:30 to 10 p.m. in the home economics room at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls. Instructor for the course is Glenna Hanson and the fee is $8.

The workshop will introduce participants to Mexican food and provide an opportunity to prepare authentic Mexican recipes and taste test the results. Emphasized will be creation of nutritional food on a shoestring budget.

For more information or to register, call 681-2181.

Offer Arts Regrant Funds

Northwest regional arts council is accepting applications for McKnight foundation regrant funds until March 1. Regrant funds are available for capital expenditures, which includes equipment.

Semi-professional organizations with at least a nine-month season are eligible. For further details contact Mary Jo Crystal, Arts Planner, NWRDC, 425 Woodland Avenue, Crookston, MN 56716, 218-281-1396.

4-H Council Sponsors Trip To Washington

"Know America in the Nation's Capital", an opportunity to explore Washington, D.C., see government at work, meet with members of congress and visit historical sites is being offered through the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service in cooperation with the national 4-H council.

More than a visit, "Know America" is a unique educational opportunity to learn more about America, its government, heritage, culture and your citizenship. Group will depart Monday, April 23 and return on Saturday, April 28.

The $699 cost includes airfare, lodging, breakfast and dinners, charter bus transportation in D.C., admissions, tour guide and trip insurance. Lodging and meals will be at the 4-H center and prices are based on double room occupancy. Group size is limited to 45 so early registration is recommended.

Visit to the capital city will include stops at the white house, the capitol, the supreme court, Kennedy center, Mount Vernon, Arlington cemetery, Smithsonian museums and other departments of governments, plus an evening at the theater and dinner at a famous restaurant. All days are fully scheduled with individual options available.

For complete information and registration materials call the Pennington County extension service at 681-2116.

Cancer Fund Memorials Are Received

Memorials to the cancer fund have been received by the Pennington county chapter of the American Cancer society in memory of Mrs. Valborg Oxton, Mrs. David Brown, LeRoy Johnsrud, Dr. Duane Davidson and Earl Hellie. A gift was also received from the UCT auxiliary 98.

"Memorials are a fitting tribute to loved ones," stated Mrs. Charles Krause, memorial chairman. "These remembrances help support the research, education and service programs of the American Cancer society."

Two-Hour Tax Program On KAWE Sunday

"Your Tax Return: 1984", a two-hour program on filing your federal tax return, will be on station KAWE-TV Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. Mike Connors (television's "Mannix") and former Miss America Lee Meriwether will host the program.

The Minnesota IRS tax information phone lines will be open during the program and one hour after it to answer questions from viewers. People from this area may call toll-free 1-800-424-1040.

"Your Tax Return: 1984" will be closed-captioned for the hearing-impaired. In addition, deaf and hearing-impaired viewers with access to TTY equipment will be able to call in during the program for answers to their tax questions. The special TTY toll-free number is 1-800-428-4732.

The first hour of the program will feature line-by-line instructions on the completion of Form 1040EZ, the special tax form for non-itemizing single people, and Form 1040A. The second hour of the broadcast will focus on helpful information for those planning to file the "long form" 1040.

Typing Course To Be Offered At Warroad HS

Typing — Business 127 will be the title of a new, three-credit course which Northland community college will be offering in room 6 of Warroad high school, from 6 to 10 p.m. each Tuesday, February 14 to April 24.

Designed to meet individual needs, the course will teach the keyboard for students with little or no experience, while advanced students will be given projects to develop their skill level on the basis of past experience. All students will work toward improving speed and accuracy.

Instructor will be Maryls Knutson. For further information or to register, call Northland community college, 681-2181.

Osteoarthritis Is A Common Human Disease

Osteoarthritis is the oldest and most common disease of humans, according to the arthritis foundation. Probably every person over 60 has it to some degree. But people don't just have to put up with it, an arthritis foundation spokesman observed. Although osteoarthritis is chronic, proper treatment can help relieve the symptoms and prevent or correct serious joint problems.

For years, osteoarthritis has been considered a result of normal wear and tear during a person's lifetime. Now, however, arthritis foundation researchers think additional factors like genetics, slight birth defects, and early injuries help determine whether and when we will get osteoarthritis.

During February the arthritis foundation has a message on osteoarthritis that may be heard by calling the foundation's toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278. A new booklet on the subject is available free to callers. Other questions about arthritis will be responded to by mail.

LEC Reports 11 Cases Feb. 7th

Law enforcement center report dated Tuesday, February 7, listed seven cases investigated by Thief River Falls police department and four cases investigated by Pennington county sheriff's department by reporting date.

Cases handled by Thief River Falls police department included the following:

January 24 — Lyle Jennings, rural Thief River Falls, was driving north on Horace Avenue and attempting to make a right turn onto Highway 59 when his semi-trailer struck a vehicle driven by Judy Ann Anderson, rural Thief River Falls, who had pulled up on his right side to also make a right turn. Damages to the Anderson vehicle were estimated at $1,200. No damage was reported to the semi.

January 28 — Conrad Matson, Trail, reported that he had forgotten his billfold on the counter after purchasing some merchandise in a Thief River Falls business. When he returned later to claim it, store personnel informed him that they had noticed the wallet and set it aside, but had given it to a women who came in and asked for it. The woman was described as being about 40-years old. Matson claimed he had sent no one to claim it for him. Matson estimated his loss at about $50 cash plus $10 for the wallet. Case is under investigation.

January 29 — Tools and equipment valued at $325 were reported to have been stolen from the garage of a Thief River Falls resident sometime during the previous evening. A Knipco heater, value $80, which had also been in the garage, was found in a nearby alley. Case is under investigation.

January 31 — A Thief River Falls resident reported that a wallet, valued $10 with contents, had been stolen from her car while it was parked in her garage during the previous evening.

January 31 — Lorraine Baumeister, Thief River Falls, reported that her fence had been run into sometime between 9 and 10 a.m., causing approximately $50 damage.

February 4 — Leland Mott, rural St. Hilaire, was driving south on Highway 32 and collided with Paul Omdahl, rural Thief River Falls, who was attempting to cross the highway from East Greenwood Street. Damages were estimated at $800 to each of the vehicles. Charges are pending.

February 6 — Sunset Market personnel reported that a female had been observed leaving the store without paying for a small consumer item valued at 35 cents. Attempts to locate the suspect were unsuccessful.

Cases handled by the Pennington county sheriff's department included the following:

January 27 — Hans Waale, St. Hilaire, reported that his mailbox had been backed over by a vehicle turning around in his driveway sometime during the previous evening. Damage was estimated at $30.

January 29 — Vandalism to a telphone junction box was reported by a Rocksbury township resident. Telephone service was temporarily interrupted to the area. Investigation indicated that the box had been taken apart, with pieces strewn about and bare wires exposed. Cost of repairs was not available.

February 3 — Bert E. Vigen Jr., rural Thief River Falls, was driving a snowmobile across a field in Smiley township at about 5 p.m. when he struck a snow drift and was thrown from the machine. He was transported to Northwestern hospital where he was treated for a scalp laceration received when he struck the windshield.

February 5 — Sonia K. Iverson, rural Thief River Falls, was driving east on Pennington county 59, when she hit a snowdrift and left the roadway on the north side. After rolling several times, the vehicle ended up on its wheels. Iverson received minor injuries. Vehicle damage was estimated at $4,000.

Concert Slated At NDSU Hall On February 12

Fargo-Moorhead Symphony chamber orchestra will perform a non-subscription concert on Sunday at 4 p.m. at NDSU Festival concert hall. Concert will feature two symphony artists Vernal Richardson as guest conductor and John Tesch as trombone soloist.

Tesch will be heard in Albrechtsberger's "Concerto for Trombone." Program will also include Charles Ives' "Symphony No. 3, The Camp Meeting," Handel's "Concerto Grosso in G Minor," and Milhaud's "Creation of the World."

Concert prelude on the programming by Dr. Robert Pattengale, symphony program annotator, will be held at 3:15 p.m. in the auditorium.

For concert tickets ($5 general admission with student-senior citizen tickets at $3), call the Symphony office (218) 233-8397. Tickets also are available at Fargo Downtown Schmitt music center and at the three local college student unions.

State Council Provides Free Information

Minnesota state council for the handicapped provides a free information and referral service to over 9,000 Minnesotans each year and is the only Minnesota agency providing statewide, equal access to an information and referral service for people with all types of disabilities.

Cooperation between the council and agencies working with persons with specific disabilities has resulted in providing a comprehensive central information and referral (I and R) service relating to disability.

In the past, the council has worked with a manual system, but through two grants from Control Data corporation the information and referral system is now computerized. Typical information requests include training opportunities, adaptive recreation, financial assistance and housing.

Council invites all Minnesotans, whether disabled or able-bodied, requiring information about disabilities and related services to call the council toll-free at 1-800-652-9747 (voice and TTY). The council's information and referral specialist will assist you with your inquiry and will research and analyze the question at hand.

FINGERPRINT IDENTIFICATION of children in the Thief River Falls public schools is being completed this week as "Operation Child Print" is being conducted. The voluntary program provides fingerprint identification cards of children in kindergarten through fifth grade with the cards returned home with students and kept by the parents. Special investigator Dennis Kiesow of the local police department makes a hand print of Jami Fremstad, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Fremstad and a first grader at Washington elementary school. Looking on at left is Carl Kostrzewski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kostrzewski and also a first grader. Printing is being done today at Northrop and will continue Thursday at Mark Twain with Friday printing to cover kindergarten classes only at Mark Twain at 9 a.m. and Northrop at 1 p.m. Washington school was covered Monday and Tuesday.

U.S. Senator

Rudy Boschwitz

reports to Minnesota

Like Hubert Humphrey a decade ago, I am chairman of the Senate subcommittee that oversees our largest food giveaway program, "Food for Peace." And like Hubert in 1973, I am facing a fight to get shipments sent to a famine-stricken Africa, but more importantly, to do it quickly.

No rain and backward agricultural policies have combined to make Africa's current drought the most devastating famine of the century, worse than the famine of 1973-74, when hundreds of thousands of people starved and many times that number were left with lasting impairments that come with prolonged malnourishment.

More than 100 million people are said to be at risk in 22 African countries whose food supplies have been ravaged by the drought; tens of thousands are already starving. There is little hope that these countries can help themselves until the next crops come in August, later in the north. Some experts predict that this will be a long-term drought, even optimists say that it will continue into mid-1985.

The United States has long been the leader of nations in caring for those people who cannot care for themselves, and there is no reason we should discontinue that practice. Therefore, I have introduced a bill that would immediately appropriate $370 million in food supplies to Africa.

But there is more to the problem than just earmarking money or commodities. We must do everything quickly and efficiently, a lesson learned the hard way in '73-'74 when even Hubert couldn't instill a sense of urgency in his colleagues. Consequently, our efforts were inefficient and late. A Wall Street Journal editorial at the time concluded the fact that "relatively routine measures, taken months (earlier), might have considerably reduced this disaster."

But Congress was not the only one at fault. The African countries were said to be slow to ask for help, the UN disdained an active role in seeking help, and worldwide donors of food and supplies just didn't act quickly enough. Our own Food for Peace donations had severe trouble getting transported because of a lack of rail cars, grain elevators, or ships. I remember reading stories at that time that told of ships full of food, sitting just outside of ports, unable to deposit their stores because they were too full.

I like what the Journal had to say about the situation. "It seems strange that a situation like this could develop in a world which has the largest bureaucracy in history devoted to international good deeds. But it may be, as some of the more cynical bureaucrats say, that efforts are produced more by press attention or organized lobbying than by the intensity of suffering. We wish this were not the case, but governments are even less likely than individuals to heed a paraphrase of the old teaching, that the most worthy good deeds are those performed quietly, and on time."

I hope we have learned that lesson.

"Nuclear non-proliferation" is a very imposing phrase; but it's also a concept worth knowing. It is the one thing standing between us and the possibility that some small country with irresponsible leadership will someday use a nuclear weapon.

For its part, the nuclear 'freeze' movement has quite properly elevated arms control to the front page. But an unfortunate side effect of that is that non-proliferation policy seems to have been relegated to the backburner. I'll reserve the 'freeze' debate for another article (I've written a rather lengthy "white paper" about it that I'd be happy to send on request); I want to discuss the far greater likelihood that nuclear weapons would be used if they fell into the hands of some of the small, less stable countries around the world.

Non-proliferation activists argue that while it is too late to "undiscover" nuclear weapons technology, we still must limit the number of countries who can acquire the power.

How do we do it? By realizing that knowing how to make the Bomb is far different than actually being able to construct one. The blueprint for making a nuclear bomb is easy — recall that some magazine once even printed instructions of of how to do it.

The process is another matter. The special ingredients needed to make a bomb, like "enriched" uranium, are very hard to acquire. In fact, it can't be done without the help of one of the "have" nations. Consequently, our ability to control the spread of nuclear weapons is based on limiting the spread of the process.

Right now, only six countries have that capability, which is pretty good considering that 20 years ago experts predicted that by now 40 countries would have acquired the Bomb. The reason: these six countries have worked together at keeping the nuclear club small. And on top of that the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty of 1978 seemed to have secured that even more, by establishing a framework for the efforts.

But the battle was not over with the signing of that law. A few countries who still have not signed the treaty are potential trouble spots. Because they have not signed — for whatever reason — we theoretically do not help them in any nuclear activities, even if only for electricity or medicine. When our country has proposed sending such help to non-signatories, I have always actively opposed it.

A good example comes in India's request for nuclear component parts for a plant in Tarapur. I oppose that, but not because India appears to be a bad risk. First, the Indians have not signed the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, which would at least demonstrate good faith negotiating. More important, it demonstrates that there will be no chance of nuclear capabilities spreading — even indirectly.

Atomic energy can be used for good purposes, but it also poses very great dangers for us all. If we can get all the nations with atomic weapons to destroy them, that would be the best. Until we can do that, though, I think it's equally important that we keep any other countries from getting atomic weapons. I hope that, by offering to help countries who agree to never try and make atomic weapons to develop the peaceful uses of atomic energy in their countries, we will be able to see that the secrets of the atom are only used for good purposes and never for destruction.

Minnesota DPS Gives Tips On Winter Driving

Winter driving brings its own particular dangers. Increased hours of darkness team up with fog, snow, sleet and ice to decrease visibility and increase driving hazards. Minnesota department of public safety reminds thoughtful drivers that preparations to improve visibility before driving can offset winter's adverse conditions.

Before starting out remove snow and ice from the car, especially the hood and windows. Obscured lights make it extremely difficult to judge distances between cars or of approaching cars. Carrying a roll of paper towels for frequent cleaning of lights is suggested. Turn signals and brake lights are of little value to following vehicles when covered by a thick layer of snow or ice, so clean them especially well. Be sure the windshield washing fluid reservoir is full and contains an antifreeze solution. On extremely cold days be cautious about using the windshield washer because the fluid can freeze and totally obscure vision. Heating the windshield with your defrosters will help this situation once your engine is warmed. Worn wiper blades should be replaced and their tension adjusted.

By law, motor vehicles must be equipped with at least two headlights, a rear license plate light and two tail lights. All lights must be visible from a distance of at least 500 feet. Also clear vision for the driver to the front, rear and both sides are a must. Driving with a windshield that is cracked, discolored or covered with steam or frost preventing proper vision is prohibited.

When visibility is limited reduce speed. Avoid driving in fog or a snowstorm if possible. If not keep headlights on low beam to reduce glare from fog or falling snow. If it becomes impossible to see or you are wary of straining your eyes, pull completely off the road cautiously and park, with warning lights on where appropriate, and wait until visibility improves.

In winter it is especially important to watch for brake lights and be alert for shrinking distances between your car and the one ahead. The two-second following distance rule with good road and weather conditions must be increased to a four or five-second count under adverse conditions.

Care in signalling turns and lane changes is essential in winter. All signals must be given at least 100 feet before making a lane move or turning. Road and weather conditions may make it advisable to signal sooner. Always be certain your signals are discontinued after completing a manuever.

Prepare for turns and exits by moving into the proper lanes well in advance. Getting off a freeway at the right place requires advance planning and close observance of all signs. Signal your turn, move into the deceleration lane and reduce your speed as you prepare to enter the exit ramp. Cutting from one lane to another is a dangerous practice. A sudden move that you might get away with on dry pavement could cause a multiple accident on icy winter roads. Choose the lane of traffic moving at the pace you prefer and stay in it.

THE MANNING FAMILY, a gospel music team from Detroit Lakes, will be ministering at Jesus Is King Ministries (two-and-one-half miles east of Thief River Falls on Highway 1) at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Sunday, February 12. The program is open to the public.

U.S. Senator
Rudy Boschwitz
reports to Minnesota

Like Hubert Humphrey a decade ago, I am chairman of the Senate subcommittee that oversees our largest food giveaway program, "Food for Peace." And like Hubert in 1973, I am facing a fight to get shipments sent to a famine-stricken Africa, but more importantly, to do it quickly.

No rain and backward agricultural policies have combined to make Africa's current drought the most devastating famine of the century, worse than the famine of 1973-74, when hundreds of thousands of people starved and many times that number were left with lasting impairments that come with prolonged malnourishment.

More than 100 million people are said to be at risk in 22 African countries whose food supplies have been ravaged by the drought; tens of thousands are already starving. There is little hope that these countries can help themselves until the next crops come in August, later in the north. Some experts predict that this will be a long-term drought, even optimists say that it will continue into mid-1985.

The United States has long been the leader of nations in caring for those people who cannot care for themselves, and there is no reason we should discontinue that practice. Therefore, I have introduced a bill that would immediately appropriate $370 million in food supplies to Africa.

But there is more to the problem than just earmarking money or commodities. We must do everything quickly and efficiently, a lesson learned the hard way in '73-'74, when even Hubert couldn't instill a sense of urgency in his colleagues. Consequently, our efforts were inefficient and late. A Wall Street Journal editorial at the time concluded the fact that "relatively routine measures, taken months (earlier), might have considerably reduced this disaster."

But Congress was not the only one at fault. The African countries were said to be slow to ask for help, the UN disdained an active role in seeking help, and worldwide donors of food and supplies just didn't act quickly enough. Our own Food for Peace donations had severe trouble getting transported because of a lack of rail cars, grain elevators, or ships. I remember reading stories at that time that told of ships full of food, sitting just outside of ports, unable to deposit their stores because they were too full.

I like what the Journal had to say about the situation. "It seems strange that a situation like this could develop in a world which has the largest bureaucracy in history devoted to international good deeds. But it may be, as some of the more cynical bureaucrats say, that efforts are produced more by press attention or organized lobbying than by the intensity of suffering. We wish this were not the case, but governments are even less likely than individuals to heed a paraphrase of the old teaching, that the most worthy good deeds are those performed quietly, and on time."

I hope we have learned that lesson.

"Nuclear non-proliferation" is a very imposing phrase; but it's also a concept worth knowing. It is the one thing standing between us and the possibility that some small country with irresponsible leadership will someday use a nuclear weapon.

For its part, the nuclear 'freeze' movement has quite properly elevated arms control to the front page. But an unfortunate side effect of that is that non-proliferation policy seems to have been relegated to the backburner. I'll reserve the 'freeze' debate for another article (I've written a rather lengthy "white paper" about it that I'd be happy to send on request); I want to discuss the far greater likelihood that nuclear weapons would be used if they fell into the hands of some of the small, less stable countries around the world.

Non-proliferation activists argue that while it is too late to "undiscover" nuclear weapons technology, we still must limit the number of countries who can acquire the power.

How do we do it? By realizing that knowing how to make the Bomb is far different than actually being able to construct one. The blueprint for making a nuclear bomb is easy — recall that some magazine once even printed instructions of of how to do it.

The process is another matter. The special ingredients needed to make a bomb, like "enriched" uranium, are very hard to acquire. In fact, it can't be done without the help of one of the "have" nations. Consequently, our ability to control the spread of nuclear weapons is based on limiting the spread of the process.

Right now, only six countries have that capability, which is pretty good considering that 20 years ago experts predicted that by now 40 countries would have acquired the Bomb. The reason: these six countries have worked together at keeping the nuclear club small. And on top of that the Nuclear-Non-Proliferation Treaty of 1978 seemed to have secured that even more, by establishing a framework for the efforts.

But the battle was not over with the signing of that law. A few countries who still have not signed the treaty are potential trouble spots. Because they have not signed — for whatever reason — we theoretically do not help them in any nuclear activities, even if only for electricity or medicine. When our country has proposed sending such help to non-signatories, I have always actively opposed it.

A good example comes in India's request for nuclear component parts for a plant in Tarapur. I oppose that, but not because India appears to be a bad risk. First, the Indians have not signed the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, which would at least demonstrate good faith negotiating. More important, it demonstrates that there will be no chance of nuclear capabilities spreading — even indirectly.

Atomic energy can be used for good purposes, but it also poses very great dangers for us all. If we can get all the nations with atomic weapons to destroy them, that would be the best. Until we can do that, though, I think it's equally important that we keep any other countries from getting atomic weapons. I hope that, by offering to help countries who agree to never try and make atomic weapons to develop the peaceful uses of atomic energy in their countries, we will be able to see that the secrets of the atom are only used for good purposes and never for destruction.

Minnesota DPS Gives Tips On Winter Driving

Winter driving brings its own particular dangers. Increased hours of darkness team up with fog, snow, sleet and ice to decrease visibility and increase driving hazards. Minnesota department of public safety reminds thoughtful drivers that preparations to improve visibility before driving can offset winter's adverse conditions.

Before starting out remove snow and ice from the car, especially the hood and windows. Obscured lights make it extremely difficult to judge distances between cars or of approaching cars. Carrying a roll of paper towels for frequent cleaning of lights is suggested. Turn signals and brake lights are of little value to following vehicles when covered by a thick layer of snow or ice, so clean them especially well. Be sure the windshield washing fluid reservoir is full and contains an antifreeze solution. On extremely cold days be cautious about using the windshield washer because the fluid can freeze and totally obscure vision. Heating the windshield with your defrosters will help this situation once your engine is warmed. Worn wiper blades should be replaced and their tension adjusted.

By law, motor vehicles must be equipped with at least two headlights, a rear license plate light and two tail lights. All lights must be visible from a distance of at least 500 feet. Also clear vision for the driver to the front, rear and both sides are a must. Driving with a windshield that is cracked, discolored or covered with steam or frost preventing proper vision is prohibited.

When visibility is limited reduce speed. Avoid driving in fog or a snowstorm if possible. If not keep headlights on low beam to reduce glare from fog or falling snow. If it becomes impossible to see or you are wary of straining your eyes, pull completely off the road cautiously and park, with warning lights on where appropriate, and wait until visibility improves.

In winter it is especially important to watch for brake lights and be alert for shrinking distances between your car and the one ahead. The two-second following distance rule with good road and weather conditions must be increased to a four or five-second count under adverse conditions.

Care in signalling turns and lane changes is essential in winter. All signals must be given at least 100 feet before making a lane move or turning. Road and weather conditions may make it advisable to signal sooner. Always be certain your signals are discontinued after completing a manuever.

Prepare for turns and exits by moving into the proper lanes well in advance. Getting off a freeway at the right place requires advance planning and close observance of all signs. Signal your turn, move into the deceleration lane and reduce your speed as you prepare to enter the exit ramp. Cutting from one lane to another is a dangerous practice. A sudden move that you might get away with on dry pavement could cause a multiple accident on icy winter roads. Choose the lane of traffic moving at the pace you prefer and stay in it.

THE MANNING FAMILY, a gospel music team from Detroit Lakes, will be ministering at Jesus Is King Ministries (two-and-one-half miles east of Thief River Falls on Highway 1) at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Sunday, February 12. The program is open to the public.

Trail

Mrs. Albert Aaknes, Trail

Last Monday afternoon coffee guests with their sister, Rose Aaknes were Lily Tanem, Addie Prevost and Vi Radniecki of Oklee.

Kittie Barlund and Elaine Wiberg of Fosston were brief callers on Rose Aaknes last Wednesday forenoon.

Bert Good and Jim Olson were coffee guests at the Albert Aaknes home on Monday.

Stanley Danielson of Gonvick and Mr. and Mrs. James Votova of McIntosh were visitors with Rose and Albert Aaknes on Wednesday evening.

The fall quarter dean's list was released by Dr. Les Duly, vice president for academic affairs at Bemidji state university, which included a number of students from this area. Students carrying 12 or more quarter hours during any one term and earning a 3.25 (B+) average are listed on the dean's list: John Arthur Norby, Jill Leann Saurdiff, both of Grygla, Brenda Jean Olson of Oklee. Congratulations, Brenda, John and Jill.

Engagement Announced

John Olson of Oklee, along with Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Bakke of Gonvick are proud to announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their children, Brenda Jean and Wade Arlen. A July 14 wedding is being planned at the Zion Lutheran church in Oklee. Wade Bakke is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Aaknes.

Last Sunday supper guests at the Dan Rouland home were Mr. and Mrs. Art Wagner and Noel, Mayville Sanquist and Beatrice Wagner.

Last Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Dan Rouland were visitors at the Art Wagner home.

Clarence Fromas of Franklin, Wis., visited with Bertha Woods on Tuesday afternoon.

Last Monday those that attended Bible study at the Bertha Woods home were Mrs. Percy Johnson and Mrs. Larson, Norma Carlson and Hazel Nelson. Bertha served lunch after Bible study.

Trail community club will have game night at the cafe every Saturday night. We will see you Saturday night. Hope we have better weather than last Saturday night. It sure was nice to stay at home.

Bennie Carlson, 74, passed away at his home at Gully. Our most sincere sympathy to his wife, Irene, her children and grandchildren and their families.

Circuit Rider Helps Mediate For Consumers

What restitution are you allowed when a horse you bought dies the day after the sale? Where do you go when your unemployment checks have run out, the job you've come to town to start has fallen through and you haven't got money enough for a phone call let alone bus fare back home? And what are your rights when the guy to whom you owe a couple of grand keeps confronting you in public with his repayment demands?

Well, for one thing, you can appeal to the folks who are supposed to protect the well-being of us all: our state and local government, according to the Minnesota attorney general's office.

But to whom should you go? Getting one's problems before the agency or person who can best do something for you can be in itself a formidable problem. You might be interested to know of a state program which is seeking to actually take its services to consumers.

The attorney general's circuit rider program is centered around three roving mediators — one in Duluth and two in St. Paul — who travel once a month to designated cities to hear consumer complaints and offer assistance. Begun in 1979 under the auspieces of commerce department's office of consumer services, the program became a part of the attorney general's office in July of 1983, when the office of consumer services was merged with the attorney general's office by the legislature in a state government re-organization bill.

The Duluth-based rider's route loops through Grand Rapids, International Falls, Virginia and Hibbing. Of the riders based in St. Paul, one covers central Minnesota, traveling to St. Cloud, Detroit Lakes and Brainerd. The other treks south to Winona, Rochester and Mankato.

The circuit rider's arrival in any designated town is announced a couple of days in advance in the local papers and on the radio. The announcements give the office location and hours the rider will be available. Generally he or she will set up shop in the local vocational rehabilitation center or job service office. Once there, the rider will take calls and assist citizens who come in with consumer problems.

Inquiries and complaints cover a wide range of topics. They can be anything: a problem with the non-delivery of a mail-order item, a complaint about an overly-aggressive door-to-door salesperson, an unsatisfactory repair on an appliance or vehicle, a landlord or tenant gripe, or a failure to perform on a home improvement contract. The list is as large as a community's collected problems. Many people come seeking advice about their legal rights or about how to proceed on a given matter. Others have reached an impasse in attempts to resolve a problem and wish to use the complaint mediation services provided by the attorney general.

Often people show up with questions or problems best handled by other government agencies or private organizations. In those cases, the circuit rider will try to put the citizen in touch with the appropriate source.

In order to reach as wide an audience as possible, the riders often appear on radio talk shows and give frequent newspaper interviews. They may visit the local chamber of commerce or speak before civic organizations to explain the services that are available through the attorney general's consumer division.

While the circuit rider program does provide a worthwhile service to citizens throughout Minnesota, the need it seeks to meet is far larger than its resources can adequately handle. There are only three riders and vast areas to which they cannot now get. This may change, however. Because of the positive community response along the riders current circuits, consideration is being given to expanding the routes to several more cities.

For more information on the circuit rider program or if you are experiencing a problem that demands more immediate attention, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Division in St. Paul at (612) 296-3353 or in Duluth at (218) 723-4891.

Super Structures In Space Prove Mind-Boggling

by Gloria Hughes
Smithsonian News Service

Our sun is just one of 100 billion stars in a galaxy, the Milky Way, which boasts a diameter of approximately 60,000 light-years, a distance of 352,800 trillion miles. If those numbers are not sufficiently mind-boggling to a resident of our little planet, imagine clusters of galaxies three to 15 million light-years in diameter, "superclusters" of galaxies spanning as many as 100 million light-years and vast empty regions, or "voids," in space even larger than those superclusters.

"We know such large structures exist," says Dr. Margaret Geller a theoretical astrophysicist at the Harvard-Smithsonian center for astrophysics in Cambridge, Mass. "What we don't know is how they formed or how common they are." Nonetheless, these almost-unimaginable large-scale cosmic structures are providing astronomers with possible keys to understanding the dynamics and eventual fate of the universe.

New technology has played a major role in the discovery and study of these huge cosmic systems. Astronomers equipped with computers, solid-state electronic detectors, large arrays of radio antennae, satellite-borne X-ray telescopes and modern spectrographic cameras are now investigating the tendency of galaxies to congregate in clusters as well as sheets and strings surrounding large voids.

Galaxies are huge systems of stars, gas and dust bound together by gravitational attraction. According to Geller, there are approximately 10 billion galaxies comparable in size to the Milky Way in the portion of the universe visible from Earth.

Although galaxies are small compared to the dimensions of the large-scale structures, their contribution to our understanding of the cosmos is by no means insignificant, since they serve as position "markers," allowing scientists to map the structure of the universe and thus locate some of the super structures.

Early in this century, astronomers found that most galaxies were rushing away from Earth. The velocities of these receding galaxies were measured by looking at the wavelengths of light emitted or absorbed by chemical elements in their stars. When an object, such as a galaxy, moves with respect to an observer, the wavelengths of light in its spectrum are shifted either to the blue or red, depending on whether the object is moving respectively towards or away from the observer.

In the 1920s, American astronomer Edwin Hubble used the 100-inch telescope at Mount Wilson to determine that the "reshifts" of galaxies are proportional to their distances from us: Objects moving the fastest are the farthest away. This redshift-distance relationship produced the widely accepted model of an "expanding universe" and provided scientists with a basic method for estimating distances to galaxies.

Today, observational cosmologists, such as Dr. John Huchra of the Center for Astrophysics, are in the process of measuring the distances to galaxies to determine where they are located in space. As a theoretical cosmologist, Geller interprets these data to estimate the masses of galaxies, study their clustering properties and determine their role in cosmic evolution.

In the past five years, Huchra and Dr. David Latham, a center for astrophysics colleague, together with Dr. Marc Davis, now at the University of California, Berkeley, and Dr. John Tonry, now at the California institute of technology, have measured the redshifts of nearly 2,000 galaxies in the Northern hemisphere. Their distance determinations have been used to produce three-dimensional maps of galaxy distribution in space.

The mapping process is slow: Only one-hundred-thousandth of the visible universe has yet been mapped. (A map of one-hundred-thousandth of the Earth's surface would cover an area only 1½ times the size of Rhode Island.) But the mapping is rewarding. The new 3-D maps, for example, increase our ability to identify those large-scale structures created by the distribution of galaxies.

Most galaxies clump together to form structures that range from groups of a few galaxies to "rich" clusters of many galaxies. The Milky Way galaxy is part of a group of about 20 galaxies, whereas a rich cluster may contain 100 times that number. Groups and rich clusters, in turn, tend to clump further into giant superclusters composed of tens of thousands of galaxies — the largest aggregations of matter known to exist in nature.

The 3-D maps may also eventually help to explain why some galaxy clusters are apparently distributed in long filamentary structures. Strung out nearly 300 million light-years across the heavens, they appear to form distinct lines as much as 10 times as long as they are wide. Some astronomers now suspect these thin strings of galaxies may be optical illusions rather than real structures. Earlier two-dimensional maps of galaxy positions in the sky simply lacked the necessary dimension of distance to separate the galaxies in space.

At the same time, this new ability to measure positions in 3-D has led to the discovery of "cosmic voids" — vast regions of the universe that appear to be empty of galaxies. The largest of these yet found — in the constellation Bootes (between Hercules and Virgo) — is approximately 200 million light-years across. With a total volume of about 10-25 (a 10 followed by 25 zeroes) cubic light-years, the "Bootes Void" is larger even than most superclusters.

Voids such as the one in Bootes pose interesting problems for scientists. According to most theories, the distribution of matter in the early universe — that is, shortly after the "Big Bang" 10 to 20 billion years ago — was more uniform, or less "lumpy", than it is now. This would suggest that the large-scale clusters and voids must have developed as the universe evolved over time.

Two current and competing theories try to explain structure formation in the early universe. Both predict that large voids should exist — but for different reasons. The "Pancake Theory" postulates that the first structures in the newborn universe were huge, clouds to collapse into the superclusters, clusters and galaxies we see today, with the largest structures forming first and later fragmenting into the smaller structures.

In contrast, the "Hierarchical Theory" describes an early universe with lots of "little" galaxies filling space everywhere, even the areas now seen as voids. Gravitational attraction caused the smaller structures to congeal and then form into progressively larger structures. According to this theory, the galaxies formed first, and only later clumped together to create large clusters.

Which theory, if either, will prevail may be determined by the amount of matter still remaining in the cosmic holes. According to Geller, however, "It is still not clear whether the voids are completely empty or whether they contain some material so far invisible to existing telescopes."

The Pancake Theory suggests that the material in some regions of the early universe may not have been dense enough to form galaxies. Thus, some sort of matter may still remain within the apparent voids. The Hierarchical Theory suggests that galaxies (and associated matter) would have been pulled out of the voids, leaving behind vast regions of nothing.

"If there is matter in the voids, and it is the form of hydrogen gas, for example, it could possibly be detected," says Dr. Stephen Shectman of the Mount Wilson and Las Campanas observatories in Pasadena, Calif. "But if it is in the form of very faint star clusters, we may never be able to find it."

The search for "missing" matter has an important bearing on questions about the ultimate fate of the universe. Although the universe is currently expanding, if a sufficiently high density of material exists, it could "close" the system. In other words, gravitational forces would eventually halt the expansion and the universe would collapse back into its original "primordial fireball" state.

If the cosmic density is not high enough to stop the receding galaxies, the universe is "open" and will expand forever. From observations made so far, the total mass of the visible material detected by astronomers is not enough to halt the expansion.

As research progresses, scientists are confronted with more and more puzzles, among them the cosmic voids. Still, Geller and other cosmologists believe that astronomers will be able to make accurate predictions concerning the evolution — and eventual fate — of our universe within the next 50 years. Compared to the estimated 10-to-20-billion-year age of the cosmos, a half-century is really no time at all.

STRANDQUIST . . .

Mr. and Mrs. James Larson were Warren visitors Saturday and were overnight guests at the Jack Walker home due to the storm.

Gust Johnson returned home Saturday after a few days' hospital stay at Fargo. Visitors at Gust's since his return home have been Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Donarski, Mr. and Mrs. Eddy Borowicz, Tammie and Bruce, Louis Lofstrom, Ida Bruce and Rudy Lindgren.

A group of friends and relatives gathered at the Wally Larson home recently to get acquainted with Abigail Marie, infant daughter of Wayne and Pat Larson, who was born September 14 and weighed 1 lb., 14 oz. She was in the intensive care unit at Grand Forks until December 17 when she got to come home and she now weighs 9 lbs. Thanks to everyone for coming to the gathering.

4-H Contest

Participating in the public speaking contest from the Steiner 4-H club Saturday morning at the courthouse meeting room were Jennifer Ose, Melissa Rausch and Michael Jorde. Congratulations are extended to Jennifer, who placed first in the 12 to 14 age group. She is now eligible to participate in the contest at the Red River Valley Winter shows Saturday morning, February 18, which will be held at the Eagles club in Crookston.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Jorde, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Russell, Cindi and Brenda, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Halvorson and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jorde and Mike were among the many who enjoyed the ham dinner Sunday noon at the American Legion club. The proceeds of the dinner went to support the Prowler swim teams.

Rondorf Has Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kraemer of Rocksbury and Sister Placid of Crookston helped Olliver Rondorf celebrate her birthday Friday afternoon, February 3, at her home. Ann Kraemer brought a cake. Saturday forenoon enjoying breakfast together at the Country Kitchen in honor of Olive's birthday were Mrs. Clara Jaennette, Curtis and Clara Mae Swanson, Olaf Jorde, Carol Johnson, Beverly Ranum, Clifford Jorde, Adam and Mabel Lendobeja and LaVerne and Olive Rondorf.

Kleinwachter Baptized

Stacy Ruth, infant daughter of Eugene and Diane Kleinwachter of Strandquist, received the rites of holy baptism at St. Edward's Catholic church Sunday morning, January 29. Leland Kleinwachter and Barbara Gerads were godparents. Stacy Ruth wore her mother's baptism dress and pink shawl. Following the service guests at the home of Eugene and Diane were grandparents, Art and Selma Kellnwachter, Leland and Michelle Kleinwachter, Barbara Gerads, and also Jens Steen, Audrey Donarski, Ann and Paul, from Thief River Falls. Stacy Ruth is Lloyd and Harryet Larson's granddaughter.

Callers at the Lloyd Larson home Monday last week were Jim and Barbara Helgeland of Roseau and Lester and Lois Sorenson of Newfolden. Mrs. Clifford Reierson was also a recent visitor at the Larson home.

Dinner guests Saturday at the home of Mrs. Margaret Pederson were Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Pederson, Steven, Shawna and Shelli of Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Halvorson were visitors at Oklee a week ago Sunday. They were callers at the Alvin and June Larson home and also at the home of Donna Kvasager.

Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Rondorf and Mr. and Mrs. William Rondorf made a business trip to Grand Forks Monday last week.

Enjoying a jam-fest at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Moe Thursday evening last week were Roy Bakke and Mr. and Mrs. Arlynn Tunheim all from Newfolden, Alvin Anderson of Thief River Falls, Mrs. Ethel Moe and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Solem.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Larson drove to Detroit Lakes Tuesday forenoon last week and were guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Roger and Ronda Nelson, of Fargo, until Thursday at the Breezy Shore condominium.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Gustafson, Stacy, Susan and Tony and Mrs. Margaret Pederson were Sunday dinner guests at the Dennis Pederson home in Thief River Falls.

Eldon and Evonne Moe had an unexpected experience Saturday when they made a trip to Grand Forks. The surprise blizzard made it impossible for them to return home so they spent the night, together with many others who were stranded, sitting in a booth at the Country Kitchen. They left for home about 5:00 o'clock Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Halvorson attended funeral services Tuesday afternoon, January 21, at the Union Lake Lutheran church at Erskine for her uncle, William Larson.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Yonke, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Francis Babinski of Grand Forks, to Oronoco, near Rochester Friday and were weekend guests at the home of their children, Marvin and Carol Yonke. Coming home Sunday afternoon they reported at least 50 cars and trucks in the ditch both south and north of Fargo, due to the blizzard on Saturday. The wreckers were very busy.

Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Rondorf and Clifford Jorde were Saturday afternoon callers at the Adam Lendobeja home in Smiley.

Mrs. Alfred Solem and Peter were Saturday afternoon luncheon guests at the Delbert Peterson home north of Lancaster. They were thankful to get home safely in the blizzard.

Robert Solem enjoyed the junior high UMYF retreat at the United Methodist Northern Pines Bible camp near Park Rapids Friday to Sunday, Feb. 3-5.

Mrs. Denise Chrzanowski and daughter, Kristin visited her grandmother, Mrs. Helen Russell, Sunday afternoon at her home.

Section 8 Hockey Standings

Roseau, Bemidji, Fergus Falls and Thief River Falls appear to be in position to be voted the top four teams who will be seeded into the 1984 Section 8 high school hockey tournament quarterfinals when post-season play gets underway later this month.

At the start of the week, Roseau and Bemidji were 1-2 in the Section 8 standings and Indus stood in third place. Fergus Falls and Thief River Falls were 4-5. With voting by the coaches for the first time to decide the top four spots, regardless of the standings, the Otters and Prowlers, if they continue to win, can expect to bump the Trojans into sub-sectional play.

Thief River Falls will have to beat both Detroit Lakes Friday and Warroad Tuesday — both on the road — to convince the voters the Prowlers deserve to be a top-four seed. Brainerd and Warroad appear to be their chief rivals for a sectional tournament berth, and Tuesday's showdown at Warroad, where the Prowlers have traditionally had trouble playing well, could be the deciding factor in the outcome of the voting.

Those votes by the 19 Section 8 head coaches will be done by telephone on Wed., Feb. 15. Coaches will be allowed by vote for their own team. The votes will be compiled by Section 8 publicist Frank Fee of Crookston, with a No. 1 vote worth four points, No. 2 worth three points. No. 3 worth two points and No. 4 worth one point. Coaches will vote for just four teams. Although the top four vote-getters will obviously be announced to the public, the list of how the coaches voted will be mailed to the coaches only.

While the top four receive those Section 8 tournament quarterfinal berths, the other 15 teams will compete for the four remaining spots through sub-sectional eliminations beginning Thurs., Feb. 16, and continuing Sat., Feb. 18, and Mon., Feb. 20. Those pairings will be decided by positions in the final Section 8 regular season standings, and the games will be played at the various sites of the higher-seeded teams.

Section 8 tournament quarterfinal doubleheaders will be played in the Thief River Falls sports arena Fri., Feb. 24, and Sat., Feb. 25. Single semifinal games will be played here Mon., Feb. 27, and Tues., Feb. 28. Championship game is scheduled Fri., March 2.

Northmen Meet Yellowjackets

University of Minnesota-Crookston swept Rochester in a Minnesota Community College Conference hockey series completed Monday, but the heavily favored Trojans needed overtime to pull out a 4-3 Sunday victory before winning in easier fashion in the rematch 8-4.

Northland will be in Rochester for a Saturday-Sunday series, needing a sweep to earn a berth in the state playoff semifinals the following week. A single Rochester win will give the Yellowjackets, not the Northmen, a post-season spot. Hibbing, UMC and Rainy River are guaranteed berths in the four-team field.

Kary Strandell scored 43 seconds into overtime in the 4-3 Sunday UMC victory over Rochester. The Yellowjackets forced overtime by pulling their goalie and scoring with just 32 seconds left in regulation time as both teams skated two men short. There were 18 penalties called in the game — 11 against Rochester.

UMC's Monday win in the series that was delayed one day by the weather, hiked the defending champion Trojans' season record to 13-4.

Miscellaneous

+ Lincoln high school basketball team finishes a near month-long home stand with two games this weekend as the Prowlers host Fergus Falls Friday and entertain Middle River Saturday. Three of their final four games will be on the road.

+ Goal of a .500 season or better for the Lincoln high school girls basketball team will require the Prowlers, currently 9-6, to win at least one of their final four regular season games. That doesn't seem like much of a chore, but the schedule will be challenging as the Prowlers tackle Crookston, Detroit Lakes, East Grand Forks and Fergus Falls. Post-season play starts Mon., Feb. 27.

+ Thief River Falls' Kevin Murphy was a double-event winner for the University of North Dakota swimming team in a 45-41 dual meet win over rival North Dakota State University Friday. Murphy, the Sioux captain, won the 50 and 100-yard freestyle races. UND closes out its regular season schedule Friday by hosting South Dakota State at 3 p.m. The North Central Conference meet will be held Feb. 23-25 in Brookings, S.D., with the Sioux swimmers hoping to qualify for the NCAA Division II national meet March 7-10 at Hofstra University in Hempstead, N.Y.

UMC Holds Off Northland Rally For 78-71 Win

University of Minnesota-Crookston built a 17-point lead late in the second half, then held off a furious Northland community college rally at the end to emerge with an important 78-71 Minnesota Community College Conference Northwest Division basketball win Tuesday at Northland.

It was just the second UMC win in the series over the last 19 games covering the past nine years, and the first victory over Northland in five tries for coach Gary Senske.

"The kids played well," said Senske. "They were prepared when the ball game began, and they hustled throughout the game. This would have to be one of our better games. It was a good team effort."

"They played well," confirmed Northland coach Chet Engelman, "and we certainly didn't play well."

Part of the problem for the Northmen was in the personnel department. High-scoring Kyle Ramsey was slowed by a severe ankle sprain that he re-injured late in the game, and center Rod Scales missed most of the contest for personal reasons. A late plane flight brought him back to Thief River Falls after the game had started, and he rushed to get in uniform and played the final 13 minutes.

"Scales wasn't ready to play, and Ramsey couldn't," acknowledged Engelman. "Their not playing had a psychological effect on the others."

First half was close. A string of eight straight points produced Northland's biggest lead, 20-15, with 9:26 remaining, but UMC turned right around and scored nine straight points to go ahead 24-20 on a three-point play by Paul Ostby with 6:37 to play. The Trojans matched that four-point spread on three occasions, including a 34-30 halftime score.

Deciding stretch of the game came midway through the second half. Trailing 50-42 with 13:47 remaining, Northland went the next 6:14 without scoring to fall behind 59-42. A variety of turnovers, poor shot selection and lackluster play on defense created the 17-point deficit.

UMC matched that point spread, 71-54, with 2:29 and appeared to be heading for an easy victory. But Northland's press suddenly became effective, and the Northmen shaved the margin down to 71-64 with still 55 seconds on the clock.

Ostby turned the tide, however, by making two sets of bonus free throw opportunities with 51 and 43 seconds to go, re-establishing UMC control, 75-64.

They traded points the final few seconds, with a tip-in by Scales finishing the scoring with three seconds showing.

"The kids hustled a bit in the last two-three minutes," said Engelman.

UMC shot an even 50 per cent from the field (31-for-62) and shot 76 per cent from the free throw line (16-for-21). Northland shot 46 per cent from the field (30-65) and 73 per cent from the line (11-for-15). Northland had a 38-35 rebound edge and topped the turnover charts 23-20.

Results left both Northland and UMC at 5-3 in the Northwest Division, where Fergus Falls is 7-0 and Brainerd is 5-2. Top two regular season finishers earn state tournament berths. Northland, 11-6 overall, visits Brainerd Saturday. UMC, 9-8, will be at Fergus Falls that afternoon. The Spartans and Red Raiders meet tonight (Wednesday) at Brainerd.

Genereux, TRF Shut Out Bears In Section 8 Play

Senior goalie Lee Genereux, making his first start since Jan. 3, recorded his second shutout of the 1983-84 season Tuesday as Thief River Falls blanked Hallock 6-0 in Section 8 high school hockey action at the sports arena.

Genereux, who shut out Grand Forks Red River when the Prowlers won by an identical 6-0 score back on Dec. 29, stopped 31 Hallock shots as Thief River Falls collected its fifth straight win — the Prowlers' ninth win in their last ten games — as their record improved to 11-6.

Mitch Semanko scored twice for the winners, while Steve Wiskow, Bob Brelland, Bill Desrocher and Bob Huot added single goals. The Prowlers scored two goals each period.

Thief River Falls will be at Detroit Lakes Friday for a 7:30 p.m. game. The Prowlers visit Warroad Tuesday, then close out their regular season schedule at home Fri., Feb. 17, vs. Fergus Falls.

Lincoln junior varsity improved its record to 7-8 with a 9-0 win over Hallock.

Newfolden Is Winner Over LHS Freshmen

Lincoln high school freshman basketball team lost its second decision of the 1983-84 season to Newfolden Monday, 53-45.

Host Newfolden, a 79-45 winner in their first meeting, led at the quarter stops 17-15, 26-19 and 41-31.

Andy Gengler scored 12 points and Brian Stark 10 for Thief River Falls. David Rokke scored 14 points and Danni Halvorson added 10 for the winners.

Thief River Falls, 3-9, will be at Warren Thursday for a 4:15 p.m. game and will be at Grafton Saturday for a 1:30 p.m. contest.

DEFENSIVE EFFORT by Northland community college guard Rick Van Camp kept University of Minnesota-Crookston forward Kevin Deutsch away from the basket in the first half of Tuesday's Northwest Division basketball game played in Thief River Falls. UMC won 78-71.

Swimmers Top Fosston 102-69

Winning eight of 11 events, Thief River Falls easily defeated Fosston 102-69 Tuesday in dual meet high school swimming action at the Franklin middle school pool.

Senior Dave Ose and junior Todd Wing were double-event winners for the Prowlers. Ose won the sprints, swimming a 24.57 in the 50-yard freestyle and swimming a 53.76 in the 100-yard freestyle. Wing won the 100-yard backstroke in 1:05.53 and edged teammate Jeff Rosetta 241.40 to 239.60 in the diving competition.

Dave Ose, Goodrich and Eric Ose gave Thief River Falls a 1-2-3 sweep in the 50-yard freestyle, while the Prowlers started the meet with a 1-2 finish in the 200-yard medley relay.

Lumberjills Win Close 57-54 Game . . .

Favored Bemidji Gets By Upset-Minded Prowlers

Thief River Falls' bid to upset North Sub-Region 8AA favorite Bemidji fell just short Monday as the Lumberjills managed to hold off the Prowlers 57-54 in a girls high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym.

Earlier this year Bemidji beat Thief River Falls 66-45. The Lumberjills are 11-3 for the year. The Prowlers are 9-6.

"I'm not happy with the loss, but we played very well," explained Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "It was an excellent ball game."

Thief River Falls led 9-6 at the end of the first quarter, but fell behind 28-21 at halftime and trailed 44-39 going into the final eight minutes. The Prowlers were within one basket with two minutes remaining, but couldn't overtake the Lumberjills.

Junior forward Michelle Olson poured in 27 points for the Prowlers. She was 11-for-12 from the free throw line and many of her eight field goals came from long range.

Olson was forced to carry Thief River Falls' offensive load when sophomore center Michelle Puetz ran into foul trouble. She had eight points while sitting out a good portion of the contest before picking up her fifth foul with still six minutes left in the game.

"I thought we played very well without Puetz," noted Schafer, "but we missed her offensively. Without her in there, we had no inside game."

Niki Suman, a 5-10 junior, scored 19 points for the winners and Tina Erickson, a 6-1 sophomore, had 16.

Bemidji was 22-for-49 from the field (45 per cent) and 13-for-25 from the free throw line (52 per cent). Thief River Falls went 19-for-55 from the floor (35 per cent) and 16-for-27 at the line (59 per cent). The Prowlers had a 32-25 rebound edge and the Lumberjills topped the turnover figures 15-13.

A brief two-game Thief River Falls win streak came to an end with the loss. The Prowlers played one of their better games of the year the previous Monday in a 54-30 victory over Fertile-Beltrami.

"We thought Fertile was a good ball game for us, but this one was even better," said Schafer. "We played really good, aggressive defense."

A three-game Thief River Falls junior varsity winning streak came to an end in a 39-29 loss to Bemidji, dropping the losers to 9-4 for the year. Bemidji also won the freshman game 49-23.

Thief River Falls will be at Crookston Thursday. The Pirates edged the Prowlers 40-36 earlier this winter.

States-Dominion This Week...

Don Liden Rink Is 3rd At State Event

Don Liden rink of Thief River Falls was a third place finisher at the 1984 men's state curling playdowns completed Sunday at Duluth.

A Thief River Falls club champion and district winner en route to the state appearance, the Liden rink finished 4-3 in the field of eight. The Bruce Roberts rink of Hibbing clinched the state title with a 12-2 win over the Liden rink in the seventh round.

Scott Baird rink of Bemidji, runner-up to the Liden rink at the district level, finished as state runner-up. The Roberts rink finished at 6-1, with Baird at 5-2. Larry Minkel rink of Mapelton and Bob Magie rink of Duluth matched the 4-3 Liden finish, followed by the Doug Hatten rink of Duluth at 3-4 and the Glen Isaacson rink of Virginia, along with the John Schwab rink of St. Paul, at 1-6.

Roberts rink will represent the state at the U.S. National playdowns March 11-18 at Hibbing.

Thief River Falls Curling Club activity this week will feature the annual States-Dominion bonspiel Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Northwomen Lose 64-43 Ball Game To Rival UMC

University of Minnesota-Crookston out-scored Northland community college by 18 points in the first half and won by 20, 63-43, in a Northwest Division women's basketball game played Tuesday at Northland.

UMC ran up a 34-16 halftime lead over the shorthanded Northwomen and appeared to be heading for a rout. However, Northland had the margin down to 38-27 just past the five-minute mark of the second half before losing ground.

A string of 13 straight UMC points reopened a 51-27 spread before Northland's Karen Sovde finally put an end to it on a three-point play with 7:31 remaining, making it 51-30. And that's the way the margin remained the rest of the way.

"We just weren't doing what we wanted to do in the first half," pointed out Northland coach Deb Jacobson, who once again took pride in the efforts by the Northwomen, whose six-player squad included freshman Kari Skoglund of Middle River, who is extremely limited in playing time because of a knee injury, and freshman Jenyne Beehler of Finlayson, who played despite illness.

Sovde, a 5-11 freshman from Greenbush, led the Northwomen with 15 points. Cathy Pietruszewski, a 5-8 freshman from East Grand Forks, added 10. Janice Gubbels, a 5-11 sophomore from Baudette, had a game-high 19 points for the Trojans, with Lisa Rongen, a 5-11 freshman from Crookston, tossing in 15.

UMC shot 32 per cent from the field (30-for-93) and went 3-for-4 at the free throw line. Northland shot only 27 per cent from the floor (18-for-66) and was 7-for-15 at the line. UMC had a big 70-42 rebound advantage, grabbing 34 off the offensive boards. Northland topped the turnover figures 18-16.

Northland, 7-9 for the year and 2-6 in the Northwest Division, will be at Brainerd Saturday for a 12-noon game. The Northwomen host Fergus Falls Tuesday at 6 p.m.

Huskies Lose To RLF 53-43

Goodridge lost a 53-43 Polar Conference high school basketball game at Red Lake Falls Monday, dropping the Huskies' season record to 6-10 for the year.

Red Lake Falls had a 15-13 first quarter lead, maintained a 26-23 halftime advantage and opened up a 41-33 third quarter spread.

Randy Ellefson led a balanced Red Lake Falls attack with 14 points, while Dan Kees and Mike Hagl each had 11. Tony Wiseth scored 12 points and Scott Groven 10 for the Huskies, who will visit Warren Friday and will host Grygla Tuesday.

Poor shooting hurt the Huskies, who connected on just 20 of 67 shots (29 per cent).

"Again, we played well defensively, but you can't expect to shoot 67 times and make 20 of them and still beat anybody," noted Goodridge head coach Dan Brinkman. "We had good shots, but they just wouldn't go in."

Red Lake Falls made things close with a poor shooting night, too, as the Eagles made 20 of 56 attempts (36 per cent). They won it at the free throw line, though, where they went 13-for-30. The Huskies were 3-for-9 at the line. Red Lake Falls had a 45-36 rebound edge.

MCC . . . . . 75
Grygla . . . . . 58

Marshall County Central out-rebounded Grygla 43-19 en route to a 75-58 North Border Conference win at Newfolden Tuesday.

Chad Swan scored 22 points to lead four Marshall County Central players who reached double figures. Ken Krohn and Randy Dahl each had 12 and Brent Magner scored 10. Wayne Byklum scored 20 for the Eagles, with Tony McLean getting 17.

Marshall County Central, although winning by 17, couldn't shake the underdog visitors until the very end. The Nordics had quarter leads of 15-10, 41-32 and 59-44.

"Offensively I felt we played real well at times," mentioned Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland, "but we weren't comfortable with the lead until the end."

"We didn't play that bad, it's just that they're a better team," reported Grygla coach Vern Johnson, who wasn't happy with his team's board work. "We gave up a lot of second shots. We didn't box out very well."

Marshall County Central shot 45 per cent from the field (27-for-60) and 68 per cent at the free throw line (21-for-31). Grygla shot 35 per cent from the field (21-for-60) and 62 per cent at the line (16-for-26). The Nordics topped the turnover figures 16-15.

Marshall County Central, 10-5, hosts rival Middle River Friday, Grygla, 5-9, entertains North Border Conference leader Lake of the Woods Saturday.

Middle River . . . . . 56

Middle River was tagged with its fourth straight loss Tuesday when the Skippers dropped a 61-56 decision at Red Lake Falls.

Now 6-8, the Skippers tackle area rival Marshall County Central Friday at Newfolden and will visit Thief River Falls Saturday.

Randy Ellefson and Dan Kees both scored 17 points in the Eagles' win. Sophomore Tom Neumann had a game-high 20 points for the Skippers, with senior Kevin McKeever getting 18.

Middle River led 15-13 at the end of the first quarter, but fell behind 27-23 at halftime and trailed 42-33 at the end of the third quarter.

Argyle Free Throws Beat Marshall County Central

Argyle free throw shooting spelled the difference Monday as the host Eagles defeated Marshall County Central 62-38 in girls high school basketball action.

"We got in foul trouble," acknowledged Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde after watching Argyle sink 20 to 27 foul shots (74 per cent). The Nordics, on the other hand, were just 2-for-11 at the line (18 per cent).

First quarter ended in a 12-12 draw, but Argyle made 9 of 12 free throws in the second quarter as the Eagles opened up a 29-18 halftime lead. They carried a 44-30 advantage into the final eight minutes.

"We played them even in the first quarter, but then they killed us at the free throw line in the second quarter," explained Mjelde. "From that point on it was catch-up time for us."

Argyle was 21-for-57 from the field (37 per cent) and Marshall County Central was 18-for-51 (35 per cent). The Eagles had a 31-19 rebound advantage and the Nordics topped the turnover figures 15-11.

Marshall County Central, 8-7, hosts Roseau Thursday and will entertain Strandquist Monday.

Warroad . . . . . 56
Grygla . . . . . 33

Warroad's Robin Marvin scored 24 points Monday as the Warriors defeated visiting Grygla 56-33.

Lisa Blondi, with 12 points, was also in double figures for the winners, who had quarter leads of 15-6, 31-18 and 47-21. Kathy Foss was the only Grygla scorer in double figures, finishing with 10.

Grygla fell to 4-12 with the loss. The Eagles visit rival Goodridge Thursday, then begin their final week of regular season play Monday at Lake of the Woods.

Marvin's scoring exploits impressed Grygla coach Mike Gast. "She's a one-man team," he said. "She's good; really good. We tried to concentrate on her, but I don't know what we could have done to stop her."

Grygla shot only 26 per cent from the field (15-for-54) and just 35 per cent from the free throw line (5-for-14). Warroad shot 38 per cent from the field (24-for-63) and 42 per cent at the line (8-for-19).

Middle River . . . . . 64
Badger . . . . . 11

Middle River held Badger to just four points through three quarters Tuesday as the unbeaten Skippers rolled to their 16th straight win, a 64-11 home court romp.

Paula Rantanen scored 29 points for the winners, with Tammy Sorter adding 14 as the Skippers began with a 9-2 first quarter lead, took a 26-4 advantage into intermission and widened the gap to 47-4 in the third quarter.

Bill Dicken's goal at 5:45 of the second overtime period gave Rory Anderson's and Jeff Tunberg's VFW Bantam A team an exciting 8-7 victory over Moorhead for the consolation championship at the Bemidji invitational tournament.

Jon Matson's goal with two seconds remaining in regulation time had tied the game 7-7.

Thief River Falls lost its first game of the tournament to Fergus Falls 7-3, with Marty Levin, Chad Gunderson and John Thompson scoring goals. Then in the consolation bracket, Jason Lee's two goals and singles by Gunderson, Matson and Brad Olson helped Thief River Falls defeat Willmar 5-1.

Pee-Wee A

In the Fergus Falls invitational, Jeff Novak's overtime goal gave the Thief River Falls Eagles Pee-Wee A team a 6-5 win over Anoka in the consolation championship game.

Thief River Falls lost to Grand Rapids 8-1 in quarterfinal action, then defeated Columbia Heights 3-1 to gain the consolation finals. Aaron Bruzek's three goals, Rick Looker's two goals and three assists, plus Corey Poole's five assists helped set the stage for Novak's game-winner against Anoka.

Pee-Wee B

Playing in the Grand Rapids Star of the North tournament, coach Dale Wennberg's Pee-Wee B team lost its opening game to Brooklyn Park 3-1, then lost to the host Grand Rapids team 4-1 and fell to White Bear Lake 4-2 as their record fell to 16-5-2.

Bantam B

Coach Scott Bergland's Bantam B team, playing in the Bantam portion of the Grand Rapids event, also lost three times, falling to Brooklyn Park 4-1, Grand Rapids 5-1 and Cottage Grove 6-2.

Bantam Merchants

Thief River Falls Bantam Merchants lost 6-0 at Park Rapids in a snow storm Saturday afternoon, then rebounded with a 12-4 win over Fosston at home Sunday.

In-House vs. Fosston

Players off the second lines from each of the three Thief River Falls Squirts In-House teams skated to a 4-4 overtime tie against Fosston Sunday in the old arena, while players from the Pee-Wee-Wee In-House program defeated Fosston 4-2 later that same day.

Marc Haugen scored twice in the Squirts' game, including a rare penalty shot to open the scoring. Tony Scullhorp and Paul Olson each scored once. Thief River Falls goalie Ross Boldt made several big saves at the end to preserve the tie.

Aldabra, 'Lost World' Serves As Science Lab

by Thomas Harney
Smithsonian News Service

The two chartered sailboats carrying the Smithsonian expedition has been at sea in the Western Indian ocean for four days when the scientists spotted their destination. Peering through field glasses, they could almost feel the energy of the sea crashing against the forbidding coastline of the tropical island — Aldabra.

Aldabra. The very name sounds exotic, conjuring up a setting from 'The Arabian Nights.' Indeed, its name is believed to be derived from the Arabic words meaning "the green." Aldabra is an island that many scientists dream of studying. It is one of the last unspoiled natural sanctuaries on our planet — an ideal location for scientific research on evolutionary processes.

Actually, Aldabra is not a single island, but rather four coral-based islands arranged in an elongated ring enclosing a lagoon peppered with still more islands. This geological formation is called an "atoll." Aldabra's 140-square-mile lagoon — dwarfing the islands' collective 60 square miles — is the world's largest atoll lagoon.

In this setting are the only surviving colonies of the Indian Ocean giant tortoise and the last surviving colony of flightless birds of the Western Indian ocean, as well as large numbers of unique plant and animal species.

That Aldabra is so rich and unspoiled owes much to geography. Located in the southernmost Seychelles Islands, 400 miles east of Africa, the remote atoll lies off the world's major shipping lanes in a region lashed for much of the year by fierce winds and rough seas. There is no landing strip for airplanes; to reach the atoll, one must charter an ocean-going vessel or wait for a ship that delivers supplies several times a year from Mahe, the main island of the Seychelles, 650 miles away.

On April 1, 1983, after months of planning, the Smithsonian team reached Aldabra. From the deck of one of the boats, Dr. Brian Kensley, a zoologist and leader of the Smithsonian expedition, could see the ranch-style buildings of the spartan Aldabra research laboratory and a wide beach, the only low point along Aldabra's rugged, steep coast where a small craft can make a relatively safe and easy landing.

The scientists had made the difficult voyage to begin a five-year investigation of the makeup and evolutionary history of the atoll's reef and lagoon. "When we're finished," Kensley says, "we will have a much more complete knowledge of its complex marine communities and a broader understanding of how coral reefs function in general."

Coral reefs, he points out, are important ecological systems in many parts of the world. Not only are they builders and protectors of land, but they also support an abundance of animals, major sources of food in the tropics.

Accompanying Kensley on the expedition were biologists Dr. Kristian Fauchald, Michael Carpenter, Diane Bohmhauer, Michael Sweeney and Robert Sims from the Smithsonian National museum of natural history; Dr. Mark Hay from the University of North Carolina institute of marine sciences; James Thomas from Newfound Harbor laboratory, Big Pine Key, Fla., and Dr. Patricia Hutchings from the Australian National museum, Sydney.

Aldabra is managed and controlled by the Seychelles Island foundation, an independent international trust formed for the purpose of conserving the atoll in perpetuity. The foundation maintains boats, a network of field camps and a research station of 15 scientists on Ile Pichard, one of the atoll's major islands. The only permanet residents of the atoll are the station's manager and 10 to 12 Seychellois workers and their familes.

Using the Ile Pichard station as a base during their 19-day sojourn, the members of the expedition set out to explore the atoll's remarkable habitats. All of Aldabra's land surface was formed from an ancient coral reef, about 125,000 years old, now raised 10 feet or more above the present sea level by geological processes. As a result, Aldabra has a larger land area and a more varied landscape than an ordinary sea-level atoll.

But the rough and deeply eroded dead coral terrain makes moving about very difficult. Another obstacle is the Pemphis, a dense, wiry shrubbery that grows in thickets eight feet high, covering large areas of the island's interior.

"We first found out how rugged the going is," Michael Carpenter recalls, "when we hiked back into Ile Picard's interior to investigate aquatic life in the deep sinkholes that pit the atoll. As soon as we got off the well-worn paths, we had to pick our way very slowly. We knew we'd better not slip because the rock is razor-sharp."

Aldabra hosts a diverse array of plants, most from Africa and Madagascar originally. Smithsonian's Dr. F. Raymond Fosberg made one of the first major modern surveys of Aldabra's vegetation in the 1960s and '70s, cataloging more than 175 species of plants, six times as many as on an ordinary atoll. Twenty species are found nowhere else.

The scientists also explored the atoll's shallow lagoon by boat, tricky business because of the tides. Twice a day, water levels rapidly fall eight feet, and a boat can easily be left high and dry for hours in the lagoon if one is not cautious.

By scuba diving in the channels separating the islands, where the tide goes in and out at rates of up to 12 knots, the scientists found rich growths of sea grass, coral and other marine plants and animals. "While underwater," Robert Sims says, "we could see large schools of reef fish, including large sharks, passing through the channels with the outgoing tide and then returning with the incoming tide."

The mangrove forests fringing the lagoon make Aldabra one of the world's great sea bird islands. Nesting in these trees are the largest populations of frigate birds in the Western Indian Ocean, as well as huge numbers of red-footed boobies.

Thousands of other birds — including red-tailed and white-tailed tropic birds, noddies, Audubon's shearwaters and terns — can be observed nesting on the many islands in the lagoon. They feed in the shallow waters of the reef flats or within the lagoon itself, along with other wading birds — herons, egrets, sacred ibis and flamingos.

Bohmhauer, Carpenter, Thomas and Sweeney, accompanied by two Seychellois guides, crossed the lagoon to South Island on the atoll's eastern shore, a four-hour boat trip. From there, they made their way across a long stretch of rough terrain to a field camp at Cinq Cases on the coast. They had come to this part of the atoll to collect specimens from the coastal reef flats and the area's brackish-water ponds; while there, they had the opportunity to see one of the atoll's biggest concentrations of tortoises.

Aldabra is the last outpost of the Indian Ocean giant tortoise. Today, more than 150,000 of these huge animals live on Aldabra, giving the atoll its "lost world" atmosphere. Despite their great size — the largest stands two feet high, four feet long and three feet wide — they are harmless. In the Cinq Cases region, they browse like herds of cattle, keeping patches of grass clipped as closely as a tennis court.

"During the daytime, while we were working," Carpenter says, "they slept under trees to escape the heat. But in the morning and early evening, they wandered around our camp. Only a fence in front of the camp kept them from lumbering in and knocking things over."

On their return to Ile Picard, the biologists stopped for a few hours on Middle Island to collect invertebrates from the reef flats and from under the eroded, undercut coastal cliffs. While ashore, they encountered another of Aldabra's unique rare and endangered animals, the white-throated rail, the last surviving flightless bird of the Western Indian Ocean. An estimated 5,000 of these birds live on Middle Island.

Most of the reef research during the three weeks was carried out on the shore of the Ile Picard research station. On the Ile Picard flats, Kensley, Fauchald and Hutchings collected small crustaceans and worms. "One of our great interests," Fauchald explains, "is collecting the tiny reef-building plants and animals that make up the largest base of the atoll's food chain."

Expedition members also moved progressively out from the shallows into deep water habitats, using scuba gear down to 160 feet, collecting sea grasses, sponges, corals and other marine animals that inhabit Aldabra's spectacular reef.

This study marks the first time that the Smithsonian has undertaken a comprehensive, systematic study of the atoll, although other institution researchers have studied Aldabra in the past. In 1892, Dr. W.L. Abbott, a naturalist associated with the Smithsonian, explored a number of the islands of the Western Indian Ocean and sent back to the institution a large and important collection of flora and fauna. Of all the islands on which he landed, Aldabra excited him the most. Kensley, who will again lead this year's expedition, understands why.

"Before I left for Aldabra," he recalls, "I talked with scientists who told me that Aldabra was the most scientifically interesting place they had ever been in their lives. Now I find I feel the same way. I didn't want to leave."

Public Notices

Card of Thanks
I wish to take this opportunity to thank doctors and staff of Northwestern hospital for their care and concern during my recent hospitalization. Also thanks to Dr. Crary of St. Luke's hospital at Fargo, also resident doctors and nurses at St. Luke's for their excellent care while there.
Also thanks for visits, cards and flowers sent while in the hospitals. Also thanks to Hartz Wholesale for visits and cards, flowers and their concern and everyone that helped out in any way - at home and while in Fargo.
May God bless you all.
Pearcy Seaverson

In Memoriam
In memory of Alvin Hyland who passed away one year ago, Feb. 8, 1983.

We knew that you were sick, Dad
The pain was more than you could bear.
God knew what he was doing,
When He took you in His care.
It doesn't hurt as much now,
When someone says your name.
But still our thoughts are with you,
Each and every day.

Sadly missed by your family.

Card of Thanks
We would like to thank all the organizations and individuals who sponsored benefits for Christopher Lee. Christopher is at home now, under our care, as we have had CPR and have equipment to auction lungs twice daily and for nasal tube feeding if necessary. Christopher is making progress daily and returns to the University of Minnesota in two weeks for a check-up.
We appreciate your concern and thoughtfulness.

Gully

Mrs. Peter Rutkowski
Gully, 268-2845

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sankey, Woody and Cindy from St. Cloud spent last weekend with Hilda Kvaale and the Roger Kvaale family.

Alice Forsberg spent Tuesday to Wednesday at the Jerry Forsbergs in Crookston.

Vye and Ray Norgaard returned home Saturday evening from a trip to Las Vegas. Leaving here they spent one evening with Vance and Chris Norgaard at Prior Lake, then they stopped at Hutchinson to visit Mary and David Bagne, owners of King Motel and stayed one night with Robin. Next day Robin and Tom took them to the airport and left via plane for Las Vegas where they stayed at the Sahara Hotel, that's where Lu Tweeten worked for many years. There they were met by John Tweeten, who took them sightseeing to Hoover Dam and many other interesting places. They also saw John's home and his daughter Sigurd's new home, but she wasn't at home at the time. They had a most enjoyable time on the trip and with John.

Monday afternoon coffee guests at the Pete Rutkowski's for Esther's birthday were Hilda Hangaard, Sanona Brovold, Esther Thorssen, Emma Erickson, Mildred Sollen, Ann Nyland, Cora Hanson, Elaine Haugen, Irene Carlson, Lilly and George Ness. Esther also received telephone calls from Wally, Bob and Viona and Alice Breivold.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Brovold, Alan Van De Streek, Mr. and Mrs. Gay Brovold, Mr. and Mrs. Rick Steile and Nicole went to the Cities on Monday to attend the annual Cenex meeting. Nicole stayed with her grandma, Ragna Steile, while they were at the meeting. They returned home on Thursday.

Dan, Cheryl and Chantal Plante from Bemidji were Friday supper and overnight guests at the Ray Brekke home. Russell Bergh was also a supper guest.

Tracy Rouland, who is employed in the Cities, spent Monday to Friday at her parents home, the Bob Roulands.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS
DRAGLINE WORK
MOOSE RIVER PROJECT

The Board of Managers of the Red Lake Watershed District will receive bids at the District office, 309 LaBree Ave. N., Thief River Falls, MN 56701 until 1:00 p.m. on Feb. 23, 1984, for the rental of fully operated crawler mounted dragline(s).

The work will be located northeast of Grygla in Beltrami County, Minnesota. It will consist of embankment construction by dragline excavation of earthen materials from adjacent areas. The amount of earth work expected to be accomplished in 1984 is 1,000,000 cubic yards. It is anticipated that equipment will be rented from more than one contractor.

The proposed dragline(s) may range in size from 1 yard and larger although most work is expected to be done with 2½ yard machines. The dragline(s) must be equipped with Servis Recorder, mats suitable to support the machine working in swamp conditions, boom, bucket, and counterweights appropriately matched and suitable for work in swamp conditions.

The required proposal forms and other essential information may be obtained from the District office. Phone (218) 681-5800.

Dated this 27th day of January, 1984.

Inter-City Gas Awarded Safety Certificate

Inter-City Gas corporation, Minnesota operations, has been awarded the safety achievement certificate from Midwestern gas association (MGA). This award signifies outstanding safety achievement by Inter-City for the period from January 1, 1983 to January 1, 1984. Ken Bergstedt, operations manager, said Inter-City received this award in recognition of its 81 employees working over 100,000 consecutive man-hours without a disabling injury.

MGA is an association of natural gas distribution utilities, transmission companies, and natural gas suppliers with membership covering an area of 14 midwestern states.

This current award follows three previous awards for meritorious achievement from the Minnesota safety council for the years 1979, 1981 and 1982. Awards show that safety has been and continues to be important to all of Inter-City's employees.

Inter-City serves approximately 20,000 customers in 44 communities in Northern Minnesota and has its regional headquarters in Cloquet.

Hearing Held On Health Effects Of EDB In Food

American public is facing a potential health threat from food and water contaminated with the pesticide ethylene dibromide (EDB) — a chemical that has been used for 35 years to fumigate soil, stored grain, milling equipment and citrus fruit.

That was the gist of testimony by public officials, scientists, labor unions and citizen's groups at a hearing before the Senate subcommittee on toxic substances recently, chaired by Sen. Dave Durenberger.

The Environmental Protection agency (EPA) has announced plans to cancel use of EDB, a step many large companies have taken voluntarily. However, that process is expected to take two to three years for EPA to complete. In the meantime, many groups are calling for an immediate ban on the chemical, believed to be a potent cancer-causing agent. In addition, there is concern over the existing stockpiles of EDB-treated grain, grain-based foods and fruit. (The state of Florida has already removed many such contaminated products from its store shelves.)

John Moore, EPA's assistant administrator for pesticides and toxic substances, testified that the agency is "now in the process of collecting the information necessary to clarify the EDB situation." However, Durenberger chastised EPA for not acting sooner.

"For several years government officials have known that EDB leaves residues in the food we eat and in the water many people drink," Durenberger said. "For at least 10 years those officials have known EDB causes cancer. And now, in 1984, we are seeing the first attempts to restrict EDB use and to determine whether our food is safe.

"The government institutions in which we place our trust should have anticipated the EDB problem. Even after it was discovered, the ponderous machinery of government moved too slowly, even under repeated prodding and legal petitions from labor and environmental groups."

Speaking for the Grocery Manufacturers association of America, Sherwin Gardner indicated an emergency ban is not necessary. Citing the association's own study, Gardner also claimed that contamination levels in food are so low that "scientific evidence does not indicate any action against grain products. He added that "while raw grains and product mixes may contain EDB residues, processing and cooking substantially reduces those residues to insignificant levels" that "over the next few years present no health hazard."

Not so, according to Jay Feldman of the National Coalition Againt the Misuse of Pesticides. Feldman called EDB "a dramatic threat to the health of the nation," and insisted on an immediate ban along with Congressional action to strengthen federal pesticide laws.

Because of weaknesses in such laws, Feldman contended, pesticides used to replace EDB may be just as dangerous — a worry that was confirmed by EPA's testimony. "Thousands of products in wide use today are out of compliance with modern standards of safety," Feldman said.

Pleas also came from labor unions representing workers who handle and transport fumigated fruit, grain and grain products. "The experience of our membership with EDB leads us to believe that from one-half to three-fourths of this nation's 260,000 grain elevator and mill workers may have been exposed to dangerous levels of this chemical," testified Deborah Berkowitz of the AFL-CIO.

Professor Norton Nelson of the institute of environmental medicine at New York university offered evidence of the highly toxic effects of EDB. While no tests have been performed on humans, Nelson said, tests on rats exposed to EDB showed an extremely high cancer rate. "We can't wait to get data on human cancer victims before taking steps. It has to be considered potentially carcinogenic in humans," he said.

NED BLODGET gave a demonstration of an Ammco brake drum and disc turning lathe to a group of high school students participating in vocational competition sponsored by the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) at the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute on February 1. Automotive mechanics was just one of several areas in which students from northwestern Minnesota high schools competed during the event. Blodget is an instructor at the AVTI.

Minn. Sheep Inventory Dips By 15 Per Cent

Minnesota's Jan. 1, 1984 sheep and lamb inventory decreased 15 per cent from last year to 255,000 head, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Stock sheep decreased 15 per cent to 200,000 head and the remaining inventory of 55,000 sheep and lambs on feed also decreased 15 per cent from Jan. 1, 1983.

Sheep and lamb numbers in the United States on January 1 totaled 11.4 million head, down five per cent from 12 million a year ago. This is the lowest all sheep and lamb inventory of record. The inventory included 9.7 million stock sheep, seven per cent below the previous year. This is the lowest number of stock sheep since estimates were started in 1867. Sheep and lambs on feed for slaughter market in the 24 major feeding states totaled 1.71 million, up four per cent from a year ago.

The January 1 average value per head of all sheep and lambs in Minnesota was $49.50, a decrease of $2.50 from the previous year. Total value of Minnesota's inventory was $12.6 million, down 19 per cent. National average value per head was $52.10, 30 cents more than 1983. U.S. inventory value decreased to $594.5 million versus $622.5 million a year earlier, a decrease of five per cent.

Minnesota's 1983 lamb crop totaled 235,000 head, a four per cent decrease from the previous year. The U.S. lamb crop of 8.15 million head was five per cent below the 1982 crop. The U.S. 1983 lambing rate was 99 lambs per 100 ewes one year and older, compared with 98 in 1982.

There were 8,400 farming operations with sheep in Minnesota during 1983, a decrease of 200 from 1982. There were 126,500 sheep operations in the U.S. during 1983, a decrease of 1,590 from 1982.

Nearly 43 million Americans have one or more forms of heart or blood vessel disease, according to American Heart association statistics.

Sponsors Bill To Cut Federal Buying Waste

Only three cents out of every dollar that the federal government spends for contracted goods and services go to companies that have submitted the lowest competent bid. Small companies are usually excluded from competing for these contracts. That leads to billions of dollars wasted in the budget each year.

To combat that situation, Congressman Arlan Stangeland has joined a bipartisan group of 30 Representatives in sponsoring a bill that would make sweeping changes in federal procurement policies.

The bill (H.R. 4092) would require federal agencies to eliminate "exclusive bidding lists" of contractors, which are used to exclude small businesses who submit the lowest bid on federal contracts.

Another problem in major federal contracts is that winning firms "sub-contract" for components or services, but do not pass the savings on to the government and the taxpayers. The bill would require agencies to seek competitive bids on subcontracted components and services whenever it is practical.

Federal agencies have recently ceased giving notice about small contracts and have reduced information provided to small businesses. Under the pending legislation, all information on all nonclassified contracts would be required to be posted.

Agencies frequently buy whole systems from contractors, but do not buy the technical data that was used to make the system. When spare parts are needed, the government must return to the original contractor, instead of using competitive bids. The bill would require all future contracts to include technical data.

"A 1980 study by the Small Business administration showed that 38 per cent savings were made when 181 spare parts for the air force were put up for bidding by small business," Congressman Stangeland said. "To save tax dollars and create jobs in the small business sector, we need to make the reforms included in this bill."

The Many Faces of Happiness

Happy day!

Money in the mailbox!

But does it have to be money? How about a letter from someone who loves you? Or four tickets to the next World Series? Or an invitation from good friends to dinner?

And surely, good things don't have to come by mail. They could come in kind words from a friend. Or in your boss saying, "I'm giving you a raise." Or as an "A" grade on a carefully-researched term paper.

But what is the "best" happiness? Where can we find it?

The best happiness is a letter from God, saying that His Son is your invitation to His Kingdom.

Where can you find this letter? In the Bible and in church this Sunday and every Sunday.

Protecting The Coyote

Few animals in nature have been as adaptable to changing conditions and as adept at survival as the coyote. Most at home in an undisturbed natural environment, it has also managed to thrive in agricultural areas and even on the fringes of urban centers. In Minnesota this cunning creature has continued to exist despite the lack of any protection from the state. It can be hunted or trapped indiscriminately.

An effort is now being pushed to establish a game season. One of the main pushers is Friends of Animals and Their Environment (FATE), headquartered in Minneapolis. Issues coordinator Bob Waligora expressed his and the organization's position in a recent letter to Minnesota newspapers. Here is what Waligora and Fate believe:

"While interest in wildlife has grown steadily during the past 20 years, old prejudices against predators die hard. A prime example has been the fight to give Minnesota's coyotes — now totally unprotected — a game season.

"SF 738 (Sen. Gary Laidig) authorizes the department of natural resources (DNR) to establish a season on coyotes while allowing those hurting livestock to be killed any time. The bill is locked up in the Senate agriculture and natural resources committee. The House companion (HF 500) is well on its way to passage.

"One northern sportsmen organization responded to our request for help in passing the legislation by saying they favor a return to the bounty. Another such group wrote to us that, 'We have come to the conclusion that the coyote is of no good to anyone.'

"Perhaps coyotes wonder the same about us. They certainly have reason to.

"The coyote is the last major furbearer remaining on the state's unprotected list: fox, raccoons, bobcats, badgers and lynx have all been granted game animal status during the past decade. Several other northern states have established at least a coyote trapping season; Wisconsin did so in 1980 through the efforts of the state game agency and trappers association.

"There are several reasons for the bill. Coyotes, though a hardy species, need time to raise their young in peace. Coyote pelts are worth $25 to $45 apiece — 7,000 were trapped or shot in 1982. A coyote season would reduce the illegal trapping of fox and other furbearers out of season.

"A season would not only provide for the saner management of coyotes, but would also end the legal limbo coyotes have been in since the bounty ended in 1965. Unprotected status reinforces the attitudes of people who feel that coyotes are vicious, useless, compete with people and play no role in nature.

"The truth is that coyotes are intelligent, sociable and take good care of their young — qualities shared by us. The problems coyotes sometimes cause farmers is more than made up by the rodents and carrion they eat. Both humans and the natural world would be the poorer without them.

"While SF 738 is so mild that it's supported by — among others — the International Falls Daily Journal, the bill has been opposed by some hunting and livestock groups. The DNR, an agency which should be leading the fight for the bill, has decided to risk no political capital on coyotes, even though DNR officials say they would set a trapping season if given the authority.

"Coyotes deserve the dignity of a season. Those who care about wildlife must speak louder than those who love bounties and hate predators. SF 738 says this state is big enough for both human and coyotes. Please contact your legislators and ask them to support a season for coyotes."

Trillion Dollar Man

Following column was written by Bemidji Pioneer political editor Brad Swenson in a recent edition:

Numbers in the billions and trillions easily confuse even the most skillful computer operator, let alone the rest of us with $4.99 calculators.

Most of us know what it means if you have $1,000 in a checking account and have to pay $300 rent, $100 in groceries, $500 for car repairs and perhaps another $150 in utilities, telephone and gas for the car.

Assuming the paycheck comes too late to pay the bills, there's only $1,000 there and a quick tally on the calculator shows you have to come up with another $50 somewhere to balance the books.

President Reagan released Wednesday his 1985 federal budget for the year beginning Oct. 1 and I tried to do the same balancing act on a larger scale.

One problem, however.

With Reagan's budget approaching $1 trillion, the numbers were just to big for my credit card calculator. I wonder if one could buy a "Federal Budget Calculator," one that has about 15 spots on the screen rather than the eight I'm limited to now.

For the record, $1 trillion looks like this when written out: $1,000,000,000,000. That's a lot of zeros.

Anyway, Reagan (in an election year) gave Congress to consider a budget of $925.5 billion ($925,500,000,000) in expenses and expects revenues of around $745.1 billion ($745,100,000,000). Of course, that leaves somewhere in the neighborhood of $180.4 billion ($180,400,000,000) needed to balance the books.

While, using the $1,000 checkbook example, our $50 overrun would cause the debt collectors to come after us, the $180.4 billion federal overrun is simply added to something called The National Debt.

Federal deficits have loomed as nooses over the necks of politicians during the Reagan years. The Democrats want to reduce it, as do the Republicans — but the GOP takes a different view on the proper medicine. Regardless of which party says what, both realize federal deficits have gone way out of hand since the piling up of debts the past few years has far exceeded the national debts incurred since George Washington started it by losing that silver dollar in the Potomac.

Reagan, in a statement accompanying Wednesday's budget document, took note of the red ink, saying:

"Only the threat of indefinitely prolonged high budget deficits threatens the continuation of sustained non-inflationary growth and prosperity. It raises the specter of sharply higher interest rates, choked-off investment, renewed recession and rising unemployment."

He wants the problem corrected through a bipartisan effort to curb spending.

And yet, he does call for a defense budget increase of 14.5 per cent (9.3 per cent taking inflation into account) to $264.4 billion. The four-year total during the Reagan administration's efforts at "rearming America" approaches $883.3 billion.

And the 1985 fiscal year proposed budget is $71.7 billion more than fiscal 1984, the year we're in now.

Remembering again it's an election year, the Reagan budget asks for a record $15.5 billion for education — the same department he wanted abolished when he took office. Increases are given in some social programs spending, but by and large, funding remains the same as this year with only inflation taken into account.

In analyzing the Reagan budget proposal and the education increase, Associated Press political writer Donald Rothberg said Wednesday, "That's the way it is with election-year budgets."

"Four years ago, Jimmy Carter proposed the largest defense budget in history, but it didn't prevent candidate Ronald Reagan from accusing the Democratic incumbent of neglecting the nation's military preparedness," Rothberg analyzed. "The new budget enables the president to tell the nation that in this era of high deficits, he is compassionate and is holding the line on domestic programs. In particularly sensitive areas, there are increases."

Taking the 1980 U.S. Census figure of 226.5 million of us in this country, Reagan's proposed 1985 deficit amounts to $796.47 to every man, woman and child. And that's just one year. We have a predicted federal deficit in fiscal 1984 of $183.7 billion, which follows on the heels of a record $195 billion deficit for fiscal 1983.

Each year, the federal government has to pay the interest (that's interest, not principal) on The National Debt, ever-growing since Day 1 of American government. Reagan is budgeting $164.7 billion in interest payments for fiscal 1985.

That's $727.15 for each of us in this country.

While Congress spends the next few months picking the Reagan budget apart, there's always the alternative listed on the cover of our federal income tax forms — some federal office is taking donations to retire The National Debt.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise Southwest State University, Marshall

For weeks I have listened to Americans discussing "The Day After" and "Testament," two movies portraying the after effects of a nuclear war. I hear about the need to get our government to understand the importance of negotiating a solution to nuclear terror. The talkers feel that our government isn't doing everything it can to protect us from nuclear extinction.

These two movie producers have overlooked the issue and omitted the significant facts. There is no question about the devastation of a nuclear war or any war. No one I know wants war.

The Russians and their totalitarian dictator partner states want to expand, push, prod and steal a bit here and a bit there. They have a massive nuclear missile program. They have more missiles in place and coming down the research and production lines. They do not tolerate demonstrations about their offense or defense efforts.

The Russians are unwilling to negotiate except on their terms. Even then, we are wasting time, because they have no intention of keeping their word. They violate more treaties than they honor. They only honor a treaty as long as it serves their interests to do so.

Let's face the simple fact that the Russians want to enslave us. The Russians want to convert us into barnyard animals who will do exactly what we are told to do. The Russians want to defoliate our freedom.

Our government has tried negotiating and has worked with both zeal and patience to protect us from nuclear horror. The simple truth that must be faced is that the Russians do not have the same desires and objectives that we are pursuing. The Russians are not going to change their behavior and become "good guys" because of midnight vigils or peacenik demonstrations.

Most Americans have enjoyed freedom for a lifetime, so they do not fully appreciate what freedom really means. Most Americans do not understand that people worldwide have been willing to put their lives on the line for freedom because they believe that life without freedom is a very sad experience.

Freedom was bought with blood, sweat and tears in the 1700's. It has been kept alive with more blood, sweat and tears in the 1800's and so far in this century. No one is going to take away my freedom or abridge any of my rights, or the freedom or rights of any of my fellow Americans, with me just standing by smiling and cowering.

You can bet your bottom dollar that none of our founding fathers, whose lives were put on the line, or those who followed them, would have considered selling off their freedom. Freedom is not free. It costs. I suggest to those who may no longer care for their freedom, but who enjoy exercising their rights, that they have the right to emigrate and experience what life in a totalitarian state provides.

I will never forget my days in Cuba in 1959. My Puerto Rican reservations had been pre-empted for the time set aside for my first winter vacation. The only available space was in Cuba as Castro took over. I stayed at the Havana Hilton. Each morning I arose to the gun fire of the firing squad disposing of that day's quota of those who were given Fidel Castro's brand of lynch mob justice. I could walk around the block from my hotel and observe the booming funeral business from "undertaker row."

Let's set the record straight! Since when do the intended victims have responsibility for assaults against themselves perpetrated by others? I want a world free of nuclear threats and even on nuclear war. I want to live in freedom and have the freedom available for my children and their children and all people. I want the Russians to enjoy the life they wish in Russia.

I can not control the men who tries to assault me, mug me, kidnap me, injure or murder me. That's why these movies and demonstrations for peace are stupid. They are aimed at the wrong people, the intended victims instead of those with bad intentions. I do not know a single American who doesn't want peace!

That's Straight Talk!

Designers Vary In Opinions On Useful Products

by David M. Maxfield
Smithsonian News Service

Cereal bowls in a museum? Yes, indeed!

Known for its famous paintings by Thomas Eakins and other masters, the Philadelphia museum of art also is home to those ubiquitous plastic bowls that one magazine in 1947 compared to "art objects." Their shapes, it said, were "as good as sculpture."

One of the museum's collections, in fact, is a virtual cornucopia of everyday goods and gadgets considered exemplary of recent decades: clocks, scissors, a sink and toilet, flatware, glassware, pots, plates and casseroles, to name a useful few.

Museum decorative arts curator Kathryn B. Hiesinger recently pulled many of those objects off the shelf, supplementing them with other items tracked down from sources in 18 nations, to show exactly what was once meant by "good design" and how that concept has changed over nearly 40 years.

"I thought it was going to be a snap to locate most of these things," she said recently, "but some of the companies that made the products I wanted hardly know about them, things change so fast." Some items, such as a 1967 inflatable chair, were easily damaged, and others, never considered valuable, were soon tossed out.

One reason to be concerned about product design, industrial designer Niels Diffrient suggests, is that "we are involved in judgments of aesthetics and technology with every purchase of a mass-produced product." Moreover, he says, the Japanese and some Europeans have proven by their sales that higher-quality products are the result of "well-integrated" design concepts.

From 1945 until about 1960, Hiesinger says, the "good design" distinction was applied to objects that were "spare" in form, "explicit" in function and "honest" in their use of materials. As one proponent said about them, "These things really look like what they are."

Above all, non-essential ornamentation was out, the idea being that worthy goods would convey a "sensible beauty" if their forms dovetailed with their function. Thus, a Tupperware bowl was praised, a set of Swedish mixing bowls admired and the owners of a costly Charles Eames lounge chair and ottoman envied. On top of all their other assets, these designs were supposed to last forever, to beat planned obsolescence marketing strategies.

Generally, though, most of these products never reached great numbers here; Americans seemed to prefer a bit of decorative gilding on their goods. But they were eagerly sought after by, to use sociologist Herbert J. Gans' words, "progressive uppermiddle brow people," who expected "even utilitarian goods to serve artistic functions."

The quest for well-designed industrial products — items that managed to be both aesthetically and functionally suited for their tasks — began shortly after the industrial revolution itself began turning the world topsy-turvy in the early 1800s. Before machines began giving workers a hand in the shop, craftsmen could control both the design and the production of their output.

That quickly changed as machines were set up in the new factories. Then design became a separate act from the production of thousands of products bought by Victorians. The machines made it possible to pile up elaborate decorations (once a sign of exclusivity) on otherwise simple articles that could be sold at modest cost to a rising middle class. Too much was hardly enough; even early typewriters were lovingly adorned with baskets of flowers.

But enough was enough for some design-conscious critics. During the second half of the 19th century, there were dominant but conflicting schools of thought: One group wished to return to the old craft practices, while the other tried to find ways to meld art and technology. The agendas of these two factions are still felt today, the first in prized hand-crafted articles, the second in many functional factory products.

While that debate continued, World War I stimulated a tremendous expansion of American production, and then during the depression intense competition prompted a more professional approach to design and to a new style — "streamlining." Its lines and forms, derived from studies of the organic forms of fish and birds, were ideally suited for planes and cars. Synthesizing aesthetics and technology, streamlining became a symbol of speed and modernity. And yet, used inappropriately and repeatedly, the style began to lose its luster. According to one story, a coffin maker once asked a designer for his latest in streamlined caskets.

Again, enough. In Germany, a group of designers and architects, who had come together under the banner of the Bauhaus in the 1920s, fought a new round against styling for its own sake. Its credo of functionalism expressed in regular geometric forms and simple silhouettes broke many bad habits of heaping "inappropriate" ornamentation on useful objects. Chairs became "machines" for sitting, so the thinking went, rather than another excuse for decorating.

At home in the 1930s, the designs of Russel Wright, whose informal furniture and ceramics were recently exhibited at the Smithsonian's Renwick gallery in Washington, D.C., "were the answer to those of us," says design critic-author Russell Lynes, "who were brought up to accept the Bauhaus doctrine . . . but who could not afford to buy the expensive imports. He was exactly right for his time . . . very different from the starched Edwardian decade and the frenetic twenties."

The years of World War II were ideal for the functional approach. The concept had provided, and the war needed, designs that were simple, easily made and maintained. In 1943, Architectural Forum, citing a plastic gun-turret seat (by Bakelite) and the plastic nose of a Martin Bomber (by DuPont), noted, ". . . In an extreme emergency we turn unquestionably to functional design."

The style continued its reign after the war as consumers sought low-cost, portable products and furnishings compatible with the smaller living spaces of the 1940s and '50s. Everywhere there was an interest in new materials and processes developed during the war. Plastics, which had had an erratic history, began to appear commercially and were used for many purposes, from Tupperware containers to the bonding for the plywood in the chairs designed by Charles Eames. Transistors transformed TVs and radios into manageable, slim, sleek sizes. New alloys ended up on the kitchen table.

By the 1960s, on the heels of all its real and desired acceptance, the functionalism concept was challenged by a new generation of designers who considered it just so much "appearance solution." They charged that the designs often did not adequately address such problems as human comfort, fatigue, suitable fit and need for variety being explored by physiologists and psychologists. "Where function was always taken to mean the inherent mechanical action of the product," designer Diffrient says, "it now also means the compatibility of the product with the user."

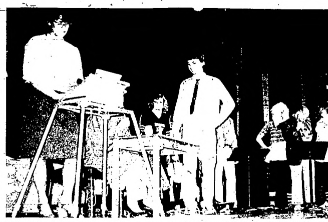
The goods of functionalism were also faulted for being too serious, for lacking a whack of whimsy. Today, one international design group, Memphis, is parodying that staidness to the hilt in its production of furnishings that are playful, colorful, extravagantly ornamental — as well as useful. A dressing table by architect Michael Graves looks for all the world like a set from a 1930s musical.

The functionalist camp also claimed that its designs were above obsolescence since the "appropriate form" of the objects retained value through the years. But other "designers are saying that they don't want things that are intended to last forever," Hiesinger notes, arguing that there is "no such thing as good design for all times." As one of the so-called anti-design advocates has put it, "Obsolescence, for me, is the spice of life."

And from another flank, from a director of the Museum of modern art in New York City, which, ironically, originally touted functionalism as the postwar design standard, came the critical view that "there is no reason why we should want everything useful to be beautiful. Reality is more complicated than these or other standards of design would suggest."

Hiesinger and others point out that there is now a shift away from the concept of universal values to the idea that a design may be valid at a given time, for a given purpose; beyond those limits it may not be valid at all.

"It was once so comforting to know what good design was," Hiesinger concludes. "It was so easy. But designers now are liberated to go off on their own. There is no one standard now. We are in a state of enormous diversity."



SKITS performed during Sno-Fest activities on Friday at Lincoln high school provided a lot of fun at the expense of the Roseau Rams and some popular television shows. The seniors did a version of "Peoples Court" with Colleen Cullen as the stenographer, Leon Rogalla as the pistol toting bailiff, and Peggy Mehrkens, Robby Hogan and Dirk Schultze as some really bizarre "people."

PIE EATING without using one's hands is not for those concerned about maintaining a dainty image, but for a young lady with a camera pointed at her, the urge to grab a towel and start cleaning up is a strong one. These were Goodridge high school students participating in Sno-Fest events on Friday.

CHECKING UP on the competition during a pie eating contest can be done in one of several ways. Raising your head allows a good view and possibly a breath of air, but wastes time. Attempting to look out of the top of your head doesn't waste much time but doesn't give much of a view either. Just forgetting about the competition and burying your face in the plate is the logical alternative. This was just one of the contests staged for the amusement of students and spectators at the Goodridge high school Sno-Fest celebration on Friday.

Some Questions On Income Taxes Given Answers

Certain tax questions tend to crop up again and again, even from people who have had the benefit of several years of experience in filing tax returns. Thomas M. Bloch, president of tax operations, for H&R Block, Inc., answers some of the questions most frequently asked:

Q: "That short form, the 1040A, is a real time-saver. Should I go ahead and use it?

A: "Not necessarily. Always use the form that most clearly fits your tax situation. It is important for you to know that even though the Internal Revenue Service sends you a certain form, it is your responsibility to select and use the form that is best for your own situation. "It will often be to your advantage to file the long form (Form 1040) when you have certain deductions and-or credits available to you, and, in many cases, it is required by law.

"Many people are not aware of all the deductions and credits that help to reduce the amount of taxes they have to pay. Most deductions and credits may be claimed only on the long form. Since your tax situation may change from year to year, always check to be sure you are using the best form for you."

Q: "I've heard that in some cases, I don't even have to file. Who actually must file by law?"

A: "If you are single and your income for the year is less than $4,400, in most cases you are not required to file. If you can be claimed as a dependent on your parents' return and you have $1,000 or more income from dividends, interest, or other unearned income, you must file. A married couple filing jointly, both spouses under 65 years of age, is not required to file if income is less than $5,400 ($6,400 if one spouse is 65 or older, $7,400 if both are 65 or older.)

"If you are self-employed, you are required to file if your net self-employment income is $400 or more. Also, if you owe any other tax reportable on the tax return or if you received any advance earned income credit payments, you are required to file a tax return.

"It will be to your advantage to file, even though your income does not meet the minimum requirements, if your employer withheld federal income tax from your wages. The IRS won't refund any tax withheld unless you file. Also, you may be eligible to claim the earned income credit and you must file a return to take advnatage of this credit."

Q: "What is the most common mistake made by taxpayers, in your experience?"

A: "Frankly, people tend to give the government too much money. Many people may assume that the IRS will pick up an overpayment or other mistakes, but the fact is that the IRS will, in general, correct only mathematical errors. It's not too late to look over your prior returns to see if you have overpaid your tax; you have up to three years to file an amended return. Rechecking old returns can be extemely beneficial if you had credits or deductions allowable but didn't claim them."

Q: "Everybody talks about recordkeeping, but frankly my life is too busy the way things are. What is meant by accurate records?"

A: "Recordkeeping doesn't have to be an elaborate chore that takes up much of your time. Basically, you should put all your cancelled checks, receipts that prove your deductions and credits, and your tax forms from prior years in a safe place. Also, keep records and receipts for property you have purchased or sold.

"Keep track of all deductible mileage, such as business or employment-related transportation, transportation to perform volunteer work, and trips to the doctor or hospital; these can all add up. However, you won't know everything for which you should keep records unless you learn about credits and deductions."

Q: "Just what can be claimed as deductions?"

A: "There are actually considerably more than a thousand expenses that are allowable as deductions or credits, from vet's bills for a seeing eye dog to special clothing required for certain jobs. Talk with your local tax preparer, ask the Internal Revenue service — or invest in one of the many helpful books and pamphlets available — they can be found at almost any bookstore."

Q: "Last year, I ended up owing money at the end of the year, rather than getting a refund like a lot of people. Should I have more tax withheld?"

A: "It is important to strike a good balance. By having more money withheld than you owe, you are letting the government use your money interest free. In addition, inflation makes a dollar worth more today than it will be 12 months from now. It therefore makes sense to set up your withholding arrangement so that you owe the government a small balance, not the other way around. However, you will have to be disciplined enough to save the money due IRS during the year, and some people find that difficult."

Artists Begin Week In Local Schools Today

During the week of February 13 to 17, many students in Thief River Falls schools will have an opportunity to work with two professional artists, Seitu Jones and Marcia McEachron, who are being brought into the community through COMPAS (Community Program in Arts and Sciences) writers and artists in the schools program.

The Zehlians will host a special reception for the artists at 7:30 p.m. Monday, at Northwest regional library, with coffee and bars served. Jones and McEachron will share their ideas, show some of their work, give demonstrations and explain about the COMPAS program.

Seitu Jones will be working with grades six, seven and eight at Franklin middle school, using a variety of mediums including ceramics, photography and woodworking. He has served as artist in residence for the state of Minnesota, been visual arts coordinator at the Pillsbury House, and has composed large murals for a couple of elementary buildings in St. Paul and Minneapolis schools. Among other places where his work has been exhibited are the Minneapolis college of art and design, the African-American cultural center, the United Nations building in New York City, and General Mills corporation.

McEachron has been in Thief River Falls before, having worked with Franklin middle school students last year, under the COMPAS program. This year she will be working with second, third, fourth and fifth grade students at Washington, Northrop and Mark Twain-Franklin. She has been a working member of COMPAS since 1981, working in schools throughout Minnesota. Mediums which she uses include drawing, sculpture, watercolors, and puppetry. She has produced educational video-tapes for children's hospital, Minneapolis, and exhibited at Park National Bank, Mills Gallery, the YWCA, and Women's Art Gallery. She was also commissioned to produce the steel sculpture "Equanity" for Ellerbe and associates. Marcia also has taught at the Edina Art Center and the ESAA special arts project.

COMPAS writers and artists-in-the-schools program is made possible by a grant provided by the Minnesota state arts board through an appropriation by the Minnesota state legislature and in part by a grant from the National endowment for the arts. Additional support is provided by the Blandin Foundation for writing residencies in northern Minnesota, the Jerome Foundation for residencies conducted by fiction writers, the Otto Bremer Foundation for residencies in designated communities, the Jostens Foundation and school districts. COMPAS, a member agency of the United Arts Fund, is a recipient of a McKnight Foundation award administered by the Minnesota state arts board.

Grant Fund Is Transferred To Area Food Bank

With the January 31 expiration of the emergency food and shelter grant being administered by the United Way in Pennington county, special arrangements were made with the state to transfer the remaining funds to the area food bank sponsored by the Thief River Falls ministerial association.

The board administering that original grant of $6,249 was coordinated by Connie Mehrkens, with an advisory board consisting of Dave Odette, Sharon Fugleberg, Carol Johnson, Pastor Butch Lewellin, Pastor Luther Anderson, Charles Richards, Gary Erickson, Linda Wallerich, Deborah Ernst, Karen Young, Donald Appel and Roy Jorgenson.

Of that original grant, $1,205.92 was spent for food and $3,537.26 was spent for shelter. Funds were expended to serve 144 people during the four month period, with 72 of those aged 18 and under, 67 between 19 and 59, and two over 60.

STATE REPRESENTATIVE Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls announced his candidacy for reelection to a second term in the Minnesota House of Representatives at a news conference Thursday at Lon's restaurant in Thief River Falls. He and his wife Ione are pictured during the meeting of his task force which followed the news conference. The task force is a group representing various interest areas in District 1B which provides input on area concerns and problems.

Greater Return Of Questionnaire Is Requested

Because only 160 farmers responded to a questionnaire sent out in December by a group of concerned farmers and businessmen in Pennington, Marshall, Red Lake and East Polk counties, an appeal is being made for other farmers who received the questionnaires to complete their response.

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has sent out letters encouraging a larger response. "In order for me to try to accomplish something for you," he writes, "we must have a larger response to the questionnaire. . . The more responses we get the better it will be for me to prove your case to the Congress and the United States department of agriculture. I am willing to go to battle to save your farms but I do need your cooperation. I am sure you are tired of fighting the fight but the stakes are too high for you not to continue."

A spokesman for the concerned farmers and businessmen group noted that the initial 160 responses showed a severe financial problem in the area with larger amounts of loans and debts either unsecured or worthless. Although area totals can be estimated from the returns received, a more comprehensive total response is needed to gain support for a low-interest, long-term loan consolidation program.

Noting that an eight per cent return on the questionnaires would cause the administration and Congress to question the need, the spokesman said: "We can all talk about the government doing something to help the area, but the burden of proof of need is up to the farmers and community members themselves. It is imperative to have the most accurate and complete facts to support a request for positive action."

Farmers who did not receive a questionnaire or who have discarded their earlier questionnaire and would like to participate, may obtain forms by writing to Post Office Box 722 in Thief River Falls. Those who returned the questionnaires earlier need not return another.

Delay Obtained In Question On Ontario Fishing

State Rep. Jim Tunheim, District 1A, and State Senator LeRoy Stumpf, District 1, participated in negotiations with the Ontario government last week which secured another delay in Ontario's proposed non-resident fishing regulations.

Alan Pope, Ontario minister of natural resources, originally intended to ask the Ontario cabinet to take action on the regulations February 8. After talking to Minnesota officials, including Lt. Governor Marlene Johnson and DNR commissioner Joe Alexander, Pope agreed to delay his request until February 15.

"The delay, although short, is welcome because it is a sign our neighbors to the north are at least listening to Minnesota's concerns about the proposed user fee for non-resident anglers," Tunheim said.

He said negotiations with Pope focused on a joint Minnesota-Ontario effort to preserve the fishing sport in border waters. Minnesota representatives agreed to support state legislation hastening the phase-out of all commercial fishing on Lake of the Woods and Rainy Lake.

Tunheim, Stumpf and other lawmakers also agreed to work with the DNR to impose a rule limiting Minnesota

Left to right are Jeny Stumpf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer, 9-11 age grou; Jenny Ose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ose, Thief River Falls, 12-14 age group; and Coreen Larson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Larson of Thief River Falls, 15-19 age group. Jenny Ose and Coreen Larson will compete in the district contest at the Red River Valley winter shows.

Roger Anderson Family Named Valley Farmers

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Anderson of Viking will represent Marshall county as the 1984 Valley Farmer and Homemaker during the Red River Valley winter shows. They will be honored Tuesday, February 21, at a banquet in Crookston sponsored by the Red River Valley development association, according to Ray Thompson, Marshall county extension director.

Roger has been active in many county and community organizations. He is a member of the Farmers Union, Wheat Growers, advisory board of the Snake-Middle River watershed district, advisory board of the NW Farm Management association (AVTI), Eagles club, president of Zion Lutheran parish church council; past Sunday school teacher and past 4-H leader. He also serves as clerk of the Viking township board and chairman of the ASC community committee.

His wife Audrey has been involved with the Zion Lutheran church ALCW, Sunday school, Luther league and past 4-H club leader of the Viking Volcanoes 4-H club.

Roger has been farming for 21 years with the Anderson farm operation expanding as their son, Kevin, is now farming, too. Their management operations have included water and soil management, soil testing, crop rotation, using registered or certified seed, as well as many of the minimum tillage practices such as chisel plowing.

SWCD Annual Meet Thursday At Grygla

Annual meeting of the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district will be held on Thursday at the Grygla community center. The meeting will start at 1 p.m. with a slide presentation on the Mt. St. Helens volcano eruption. Highlight of the districts' activities for the past year will be presented by Grant Satre, chairman of the district.

Guest speaker will be Carroll Rock with the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Other special guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Engelstad of Grygla, the "Conservation Farmers of the Year" award winners. Another special slide presentation will be on the state cost-share program and what is available.

Coffee and lunch will be served compliments of Rivers Steel company of Thief River Falls. Free door prizes will be awarded and everyone is invited to attend.

School Board Meets Tonight

Thief River Falls board of education will meet tonight (Monday) at 7 p.m. in the school district service center board room.

Among topics on the agenda are the community education budget, financial management process for community-funded extracurricular activities, AVTI local control, headlice screening volunteers, teamster negotiations, facilities advisory committee report, statewide assessment program report, several letters and personnel matters.

A BASKET FILE dominates the desk of Harry Sjulson of St. Hilaire, recently elected vice president of the Minnesota school boards association. Currently serving as chairman of the School District 564 board of education in Thief River Falls, Sjulson is a veteran of 17 years of school board service. He has been on the MSBA board as a representative from District 12 for seven years and also serves as chairman of the Northwest Regional Development commission where he has been a member for four years. All 437 school districts in Minnesota are members of the MSBA. Last representative from District 12 on the MSBA board was Dr. A.E. Jacobson many years ago.

H. Sjulson Serves MSBA As State Vice President

AVID READERS in keeping up with activities in the community as well as the region and state, Harry Sjulson and his wife Vivian find area newspapers a ready source of information. Harry was recently elected vice president of the Minnesota school boards association and also serves as chairman of the Northwest regional development commission and School District 564 board of education.

Harry Sjulson of St. Hilaire, recently elected state vice president of the Minnesota school boards association (MSBA), says he is glad the results of the campaign weren't based on two out of three falls. One of his opponents for the position was Stan "Killer" Kowalski of Spring Lake Park, a former professional wrestler with impressive physical credentials.

Sjulson won the election January 17 at the MSBA state convention in Minneapolis, capturing 390 votes to 310 for Idella Ziegler, candidate from Buffalo, and 276 for Kowalski. School board members in attendance at the convention were all entitled to vote for the state office which has a two-year term. Elected state president was Jean Olson of Duluth.

Campaigning consisted primarily of sending out a letter to school districts in the state in advance of the convention and some campaigning at the convention itself, Sjulson said. Good-natured spirit of the election was evidenced by Kowalski and Mrs. Ziegler who joined at the next board meeting for an impromptu song-and-dance to "Im Just Wild About Harry!"

Since membership in the MSBA is contingent upon school board membership, Sjulson must retain local school board office at the next election to complete his term on the state MSBA board. He has served 17 years on area school boards, five in St. Hilaire and the past 12 in Thief River Falls following consolidation of the Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire districts. His current term expires this year.

If he retains his local school board office, he plans to run for president of the MSBA board in 1986 when his two-year term as vice president expires. Last person from MSBA District 12 to hold that position was Dr. A.E. Jacobson of Thief River Falls a number of years ago.

Because of his school board membership, he also holds other area and regional positions. He has served on the Northwest regional development commission board as a school board representative for four years and has been chairman of the commission since the original chairman, Irvin Strandquist of Newfolden, resigned two years ago. Ambrose Wysoski of Thief River Falls is vice chairman of the commission.

Sjulson, who is chairman of the School District 564 board, also was appointed a year ago to serve on the Governor's council on rural development which meets quarterly in St. Paul. He has also chaired several committees on the MSBA board where he has served as District 12 representative for seven years. Elected to succeed him on the board when he advanced to the vice presidency was Melvin Gilstad of Black-

Pennington To Get $961,654 CSAH Funds

Pennington county will receive $961,654 as its share of the $143,696,365 allocated to the 1984 county state-aid highway (CSAH) fund, according to Gordon Fay, director, office of state aid, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Seventy-three Minnesota counties have been allotted more than $1 million each. The allotments range from $843,000 to $8 million. Nearly $1.7 billion have been shared by the counties since the initial apportionment of $23.9 million in 1958.

County state-aid highway fund makes available to the counties $86,195,896 for construction and $57,500,469 for maintenance of the 30,000-mile CSAH system. Included in these amounts are $8,583,886 for construction and $5,662,154 for maintenance costs on county state-aid highways in municipalities of less than 5,000 population.

Yearly apportionment, which represents 29 per cent of the funds available for distribution from the highway user tax distribution fund, is allotted according to prescribed formula to Minnesota's 87 counties. Highway user tax distribution fund is composed of monies from the state motor fuel tax and motor vehicle registration fees.

Remaining funds in the highway user tax fund are distributed as follows: 62 per cent to the trunk highway fund and nine per cent to the municipal state-aid street fund for municipalities having populations of 5,000 or more.

Jaycee Women Celebrate 25 Years In TRF

February 12-18 has been designated as United States Jaycee Women Week. It is observed annually in this national by over 55,000 women in more than 3,000 communities.

Jaycee Women is a young women's organization dedicated to personal development, leadership training and community service, and is open to young women between the ages of 18 and 35. In 1978 the organization underwent a major change by opening membership to single women which resulted in the name change from Mrs. Jaycees to Jaycee Women. The Jaycee Women continue to assist the local Jaycee chapter, but are a separate organization with their own governing body and project areas.

Last year the organization raised over $1 million for various foundations supported by the U.S. Jaycee Women, including St. Jude's research hospital, Cystic Fibrosis research, Rocky Mountain multiple sclerosis center for neurological disease, Muscular Dystrophy research, March of Dimes and Arthritis Foundation.

Thief River Falls Jaycee Women are members of the U.S. Jaycee Women and have promoted community service in Thief River Falls for 25 years. They are currently active in projects including the Early Rider car seat program, Community Ball, babysitting clinic, 25 year reunion for present and past members, concessions for the upcoming circus, Section 8 hockey tournament, Block Parent, Coffee Days for Camp Confidence and the snowmobile safari for epilepsy.

Since May of 1983 the local chapter has been active in forty projects including Kids' Day for Summerfest '83, Bike-a-thon for brittle bones, Thanksgiving baskets for the needy, Kids' Santa day, baby photo contest, and Falls delivered meals. In addition to these projects they have assisted the Jaycees with the

Lloyd Sorensons Of Plummer Note 25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Sorenson were honored recently at an open house in observance of their 25th wedding anniversary. The event, held at the Immanuel Lutheran church in Plummer, was hosted by their four children: Russell Sorenson, Mr. and Mrs. Tom (Rebecca) Willet and Sheila Sorenson, all of Plummer, and Karl Sorenson, Roseau.

The Sorensons were married in Goodridge on Nov. 16, 1958 with Rev. A. B. Heltne officiating. Their attendants were Mrs. Paul (Joyce Lease) Holt of Minneapolis, who was honor guest at the open house, and Reuben Sorenson, Plummer, who was unable to attend.

The guests and honored guests were ushered into the church by Monte Marquis, Goodridge, a cousin of Mrs. Sorenson. A brief program was given with Rebecca Willett presiding and giving the welcome. The program began with Renae Fjeld, Sorenson's sister, reading the newspaper account of the couple's wedding, and Sheila Sorenson reading a 25th anniversary poem. Vocal selections were by Mrs. Corlan Magnell, Oklee, Mrs. Harvey Delage, Thief River Falls, Sorenson's sister and cousin, respectively, and Mrs. Elmer Hanson, Oklee. Wearing the suit, wedding gown and veil worn by the couple were Russell and Sheila Sorenson. They entered the church as Sorenson's history was read by Mrs. Monte Marquis and Mrs. Sorenson's history was read by her niece Nancy Siebert. As they met at the front, Rebecca Willett gave an account of the couple's married life. The program concluded with a poem by Karl Sorenson, the presentation of a red rose to Mrs. Sorenson by granddaughter, Tricia Willett, and a prayer by Sorenson's aunt Sigrid Tillman.

For the reception which followed, the head table was graced with two red anniversary candles, gifts from the grandchildren Tricia and Todd Willet. Centering the serving table was a four tiered anniversary cake baked and decorated by Janel Walters. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. John Hammer, Thief River Falls, and Renae Fjeld, sisters of Mrs. Sorenson. At the coffee service were the Sorensons' sisters: Mrs. Earl Melvie, Thief River Falls, and Mrs. Corlan Magnell.

A niece, Virginia Sorenson, Thief River Falls, presided at the guest book as Sheila Sorenson and Tony Gerardy, Plummer, served the punch. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Marquis, Goodridge, Mrs. Sorenson's uncle and aunt. Waitresses were Karen Skjerven and Heather Moe, Thief River Falls. Members of the Rebekah circle were in charge of the kitchen.

All the corsages and boutonnieres worn at the event were made by Rebecca Willett and Joyce Magers, Plummer.

Relatives and friends from a distance who attended the anniversary celebration were Renae Fjeld and Mr. and Mrs. John Siebert, Madison, Wis.; Mrs. Bert Puller, Julie Jelenski, Joyce Crapp, Arvid Siebert and Marie Shatas, McFarland, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Siebert, Westfield, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Hillmer, Montello, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. William Siebert, Stoughton, Wis.; Mrs. Don Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Holt, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Race of Minneapolis; Larry Everett, Hutchinson; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Siebert, Britt; Mr. and Mrs. Ken DuHamel, Oak Park; and Lois Krause, Gilbert.

Trees Studied By Rocksbury Homemakers

Trees was the lesson studied at the February meeting of the Rocksbury homemakers club held at the home of Inga Geving with Dolly Mead serving as assisting hostess.

Presenting the lesson were Gloria Johnson and Ivadelle Reierson. They emphasized the use of trees in modifying home energy consumption, shade trees suitable for northwestern Minnesota, and the methods of protecting trees and shrubs from winter and animal damage.

In keeping with the lesson, the 13 members attending responded to roll call by listing their favorite tree and telling why.

Audrey Heiren read the homemakers creed, Evelyn Nelson, home councilor, reminded the group of the Agricultural week March 18-24 and the Red River Valley Winter Show in Crookston; and Gloria Johnson reported on the club's centerpiece which she had made for the Valentine dinner—for all homemakers clubs to be held at the American Legion. It was noted that the dinner speaker will be Patti Swanson, who will give information on being good to the heart.

Two crafts were displayed and explained, and birthday cards were signed for two club retirees. The door prizes were won by Gina Gunderson and Viola Husby.

The March meeting of the Rocksbury homemakers club will be held at the home of Ivadelle Reierson. Clara Voldness and Viola Husby will present the lesson on home repairs.

Susan Kay Stigen and Douglas Axtell Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stigen of this city announce the engagement of their daughter, Susan Kay, to Douglas Axtell, son of Doris Axtell of Williams and the late Roy Axtell.

Miss Stigen is a graduate of the Thief River Falls AVTI, medical secretary and the practical nursing programs.

Artist-Teacher Demonstrates At Zehlian Meeting

In giving information about herself, Johnson stated that she maintains a Van-Go studio in her home and travels throughout Minnesota and North Dakota conducting fine arts oil painting workshops. Although she is unaware of any artistic talents among her relatives, she has always had an interest in painting. As a child, she painted a real tree and the back of someone's garage. The principles of painting were self-taught, as a teenager. She received a diploma of completion from Famous Artists correspondence school in Westport, Conn., and further training was received studying under Helen van Wik, artist-teacher in Rockport, Mass., for three successive summers and with author-artist Charles Molvallo, also of Rockport for one summer.

She further stated that her exhibits and shows have included juried shows at the Civic Arts center in Sioux Falls, S.D., the Har-Mar in St. Paul; Apache in Minneapolis, West Acres in Fargo, N.D., and Art Fest in Minot, N.D. Annually, she holds a one-woman show at her home. A nature lover, she enjoys painting wild flowers, especially daisies and angel lace. Her landscapes, generally feature old buildings. She concluded by giving a demonstration in painting daisies.

Margaret Saetre presided and heard the report that Marge LaVallier and Loraine Kronberg had volunteered to assist with the Art Adventure program. Diane Krepp stated that the cabinet for the Art Adventure materials has been completed and when paid, will be placed in the public library. Members decided that as a fund raiser, a white elephant sale will be held in conjunction with the spring luncheon.

Correspondence included a letter from the Ripley Shelter. Also read was the second reading of the revised bylaws.

The next meeting of the Zehlians will be held February 15 at 9:30 a.m., at the Cookie Ault home. The program will be on grief with Kate Steffens, local mortician, as guest speaker.

Westaker Ladies Aid To Meet February 16

Westaker Ladies Aid meeting will be held February 16 at 2:00 p.m., at the church.

The program will include a devotional and singspiration by Jan Haagenson, special music by Janice Olson, a reading by Shirley Wagner, and object lesson by Jennifer Flaten.

Hostesses will be Marsha Anderson, Ruby Holmaas and Myrtle Dyrud.

The public is welcome to attend.

Valley Home Events Reported By Ella Overum

Five new residents were welcomed at Valley Home during the month of January, according to the news report submitted by Ella Overum, the Home's reporter.

Residents welcomed were Alvin Klemmetson and his wife, Pearl; Thore Skomedal, Pearl Brenna and Betty Johnson, together with Anna Olson, who became a resident in December.

The Home's monthly birthday party was held January 27 with Rev. Arthur Ortmann of Warroad showing movies. For the occasion, the residents noting birthdays in January were seated at a special table and were presented with cards and a cash gift from the Home. The special lunch included doughnuts and maple nut ice cream.

Residents honored and the dates of their birthdays were: Clara Ness, January 3; Gladys Bartelson, January 13; Helmer Sannes, January 19; Ethel Laidley and Earl Yonke, both on January 20; Henry Burstad, January 21; Edgar Olson, January 24; and Reuben Anderson, January 29.

On their birthdays, Ethel Laidley and Henry Burstad were honored when their families serving rolls, cakes and ice cream, respectively, to all the residents. Earl Yonke contributed towards the ice cream and doughnuts served at the monthly party.

Mr. and Mrs. Delore Berard were honored on their 59th wedding anniversary with a party on January 6 at the Home with their family in attendance. For the occasion, the couple was presented with a corsage and boutonniere. A floral arrangement also graced the head table. Refreshments provided by the Home featured a decorated anniversary cake and ice cream.

CAP students Michelle Hovet, Teri Klopp and Jennifer Glass sponsored a Hobo pageant at the Home on January 17, their last day at the Home. Residents wearing hobo attire and participating in the program were Mrs. Clara Ness, Mrs. Olga Grothe, Mary Welch, Leona Paulson, Ray McGregor, Joe Pletchett and Groege Lindbeck, who were interviewed by the girls, and Carl Ryan, who played several selections on his mouth organ. Ryan, who was judged the winner for his hobo attire, received the hobo doll which the girls had made.

Numerous devotional services were held at the Home during January. Leading the services were: LeRoy Knutson, the Strings of Praise singers and Rev. Raynard Huglen of Newfolden; Art Grimstad and Melvin Swenson of Our Saviour's Lutheran church; Rev. Earl Eveland and musician Mrs. Earl Waterworth of the Evangelical Free church of Newfolden; Intern pastor Tim Trudeau of the Evangelical Free church; Rev. and Mrs. Charles Johnson of Silverton and Faith Lutheran Brethren church; Rev. Berton Hushagen of Trinity Lutheran church, who offered Holy Communion; and the priests of St. Bernard's Catholic parish, who weekly offered Mass;

Also Lester Brekke, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Trochmann, Norris Trochmann, Laurie Trochmann, Dean Paskewitz, Don Johnson, Harvey Dyrud, who was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Emery Flaten and Mary Ellen Flaten, and Jim Koch of the American Missionary Fellowship, who showed slides of his work last summer at the Wilderness Bible camp southeast of Grygla.

Also visiting the home were members of St. Bernard's guild, who served buttered muffins for afternoon coffee; the Rebekah circle of Trinity Lutheran church, who served a variety of breads; and the Catholic Daughters, who served angel food cake and distributed bananas to all the residents.

Entertainment was provided by the Hoot N Toots of Viking, the Hodney family of Newfolden and Middle River, Bill Wagner and Rueben Haugen; the Happy Seniors Rhythm band, and Bob Hornberg, who presented a piano concert.

The sunshine committee, composed of Delore Berard, George Gagner, Clara Ness and Ella Overum, visited the residents who were hospitalized for a time. Those hospitalized were remembers with flowers from the Home.

Other activities included Bible study with Judith Wold in charge, games led by Connie Driscoll and Earl Yonke, movies with pop corn, shopwork, dart ball, crafts and choir practice. On Tuesdays and Wednesdays, the beauticians were busy in the remodeled shop giving perms, and setting and styling hair.

Mental Illness Most Costly Health Problem

Mental illness, in all its forms, is America's most costly health problem, according to the National association of mental health. Total annual cost is estimated to be in excess of $20 billion.

Unfortunately, American business and industry bears the brunt of this cost. Because business is people, and since no person is immune from mental illness, no business is guaranteed protection against the high cost of mental illness.

Factors that contribute to business and industry's financial loss to mental illness include absenteeism, accidents, alcoholism, inefficiency, turnover and physical illness.

It is estimated that absenteeism for mental health reasons accounts for a $5 billion loss. Underlying factor of 85 per cent of all industrial accidents, resulting in a $3 billion loss, is believed to be mental or emotional disturbances. Approximately seven to 10 workers dismissed for inefficiency are actually suffering emotional disorders, and at least half of all medical and surgical cases involve mental illness or emotional disturbance complications.

Estimated conservatively, these mental illness problems result in an annual loss of $10 billion to business and industry.

There is help for mentally ill people and business and industry. All across the country programs and services are available to treat emotional problems. Community mental health programs offer licensed professional treatment, emergency call-in and walk-in services, day and evening treatment programs, residential and halfway house services to help troubled individuals.

Community based rehabiliation and aftercare services have reduced the number of readmissions to mental health hospitals from 35 per cent to 10 per cent. Support groups, halfway houses, work training and employment services help individuals maintain an emotional stability after initial treatments are completed.

Fear and ignorance of mental illness and mental health treatment prevent many people from receiving the help they need. Most emotional and mental disturbances are no longer hopeless. Improved treatments and medications are resulting in greater improvements and, in more and more cases, recovery. Like any other illness, the earlier mental illness problems are detected and treated, the better the chances are for recovery.

Community mental health programs are available to the residents of Kittson, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Polk and Red Lake counties. Northwestern mental health center provides a variety of comprehensive treatment services for people troubled by mental health.

Although "the answer" to mental illness has not yet been found, many people have been helped and many more can be helped. Only through public education, the elimination of stigmas surrounding mental illness and prompt, effective treatments can the high cost that business, industry and society pay for mental illness be reduced.

Apple Crop In Minnesota Is Down From '82

Minnesota's apple crop turned out smaller than last year because a lot of trees went unharvested following hail and windstorm damage, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

The state's 1983 utilized apple production of 21 million pounds was 12 per cent below 1982. About one million pounds were left in orchards following late-season weather damage. Hardest hit were orchards in Wabasha, Goodhue and Wright counties.

Mild mid-fall weather favored harvesting and encouraged customer traffic at on-farm sales outlets. Despite the smaller harvest, apple size and quality were generally good.

U.S. apple production of 8.18 billion pounds inched just one per cent above the 1982 crop. Average prices gained one-half cent to 10.5 cents per pound. The Washington crop was a record three billion pounds.

Brushing And Flossing Aids Dental Health

If you're a parent, you know that brushing and flossing your child's teeth daily can help your child have healthy teeth and a happy smile, notes the Pennington county dental society which is sponsoring national children's dental health month in February.

Inside the mouth, the average person has about 80 different bacteria. Only a few of these bacteria are responsible for dental caries (tooth decay) and periodontal (gum) disease, but that's more than enough to make the incidence of dental disease second only to that of the common cold.

These harmful bacteria live in dental plaque, a thin, almost invisible film that constantly forms on our teeth. The sugars and starches in our foods provide food for the bacteria. In turn, the bacteria produce acids and other irritating waste products that attack our teeth and gums.

The idea that the bacteria in people's mouths cause dental disease is comparatively new and was first suggested by Dr. W. D. Miller about 1890. Not everyone believed it at first.

The story goes that one dental researcher, wanting to show off his new microscope, told his housekeeper that she — like everyone else — had harmful bacteria on her teeth. She was not convinced. To prove his point, he took a sample of the plaque on her teeth and let her see the living bacteria under the microscope. The sight so horrified her that the next day she went to the dentist and had all her teeth pulled.

She got rid of dental plaque the hard way. Someone should have told her that she could have a healthier mouth — and teeth — simply by brushing and flossing daily. Brushing removes plaque from the outside, inside and chewing surfaces of the teeth.

You should start brushing and flossing your children's teeth as soon as most of the primary (first) teeth have appeared, around age two to two and one-half. Because children's teeth are more suceptible to decay than those of adults, they should be brushed after every meal with a fluoride toothpaste and flossed daily. Children who are six years old or older should also use a fluoride mouthrinse daily.

When your child is small, you will have to clean the child's teeth yourself. As he or she gets older, you can teach the child how to brush and floss alone. Children do not have the coordination needed to brush their own teeth until age four or five. They cannot floss by themselves until about age eight. Whatever your child's age, set a good example by caring for your own teeth daily.

Most children start out in life with strong, healthy teeth. With a little effort, you can help make sure your child's teeth stay that way.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Featuring recipes from the Kitchen of

Mrs. Warren Seaverson
516 North LaBree
Thief River Falls

Farmer's Pork Chops

4 loin or shoulder pork chops
1 clove garlic, chopped
salt and pepper
4 potatoes, sliced
2 large onions, sliced
1½ cups sour cream
1½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard

Method: Heat oven to 350 degrees. Trim excess fat from chops, roll in flour and brown together with garlic in hot fat over medium heat. Season with salt and pepper. Place sliced potatoes in a 7½x11½x1½ inch baking pan. Top with browned chops. Separate onion slices into rings and place over chops. Blend sour cream, salt and mustard and pour over potatoes, chops and onion. Bake for 1½ hours. Makes four generous servings.

The Seaversons have four children: Peggy, an eighth grader at Franklin; Linda, in fourth grade at Northrop; Velencia, five, and Austin, six months. Mrs. Seaverson stated that with school activities, taking the children to piano and skating lessons, and involvement with Women's Aglow Fellowship and at the Assemblies of God tabernacle, she finds little time for hobbies.

SEITU JONES, an artist who will be working with Franklin middle school students all this week, has composed large murals for elementary buildings in St. Paul and Minneapolis schools, among other works. He creates in a variety of mediums, and has also had work exhibited at the Minneapolis college of art and design, the African-American cultural center, the United Nations building in New York City, and by General Mills corporation. His visit is sponsored by the COMPAS artists in the schools program.

MARCIA MCEACHRON is a professional artist who will be working with students in Thief River Falls elementary schools this week under the sponsorship of the COMPAS artists in the schools program. Techniques which she uses include drawing, sculpture, watercolors and puppetry. A reception for her and Seitu Jones (who will be working with Franklin middle school students, under the COMPAS program) will be held at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Thief River Falls regional library, sponsored by The Zehlians.

Piano Students Place High At MMTA Contest

Local piano students did well at the district piano contest sponsored by the Minnesota music teachers association at Moorhead state university on Saturday, February 4, with 14 students of Marcia Knuttila and two students of Ruth Jensen winning in their divisions.

Out of 247 students registered to compete at the district contest, 89 winners were selected out of eight divisions. The top 30 per cent advance to the state piano contest to be held at Normandale community college in Minneapolis on March 17. These will include the Thief River Falls students.

Primary division (5 to 8 years old), Jami Dehnert, second grade, daughter of Polly and Doug Dehnert, St. Hilaire, performed "My Big Sombrero" by Walter and Carol Noona;

Junior A division (9 to 10 years old), Karlace Johnson, fifth grade, daughter of Harriet and Richard Johnson, Thief River Falls, performed "Paprikasch" by Walter and Carol Noona; Brian Lehrer, fifth grade, son of Karen Rud and Mike Lehrer, Thief River Falls, performed "Minuetto" by James Hook; Ellen Olson, fourth grade, daughter of Gina and Ron Olson, Thief River Falls, performed "Morning Mist" by Everett Stevens;

Junior B division (11 to 12 years old), John Wallberg, fourth grade, son of Marilyn and John Wallberg, Thief River Falls, (Since John was a state piano contest winner last year he was automatically moved into the next category, regardless of age) performed "Two Landeler" by Franz Schubert; Kia Anderson, seventh grade, daughter of Helen and Steve Anderson, Thief River Falls, performed "Sonatina Toccata" by Denes Agay; Jason Heinrichs, seventh grade, son of Jean and Dr. Rick Heinrichs, Thief River Falls, performed "Toccata in E Flat" by Johanna Krebs; Jason Phillips, seventh grade, son of Raelene and Dr. Gordon Phillips, Red Lake Falls, performed "Sonatina in D Major, First Movement" by James Hook;

Intermediate A division (13 to 14 years old), Anne Gobell, eighth grade, daughter of Joyce and Lon Gobell, Thief River Falls, performed "Sonatina in B Flat Major" by Anton Diabelli; Brenda Ode, eighth grade, daughter of Yvonne and Marv Ode, Thief River Falls, performed "Sonatina in A Minor" by Horvath; Karin Tyler, eighth grade, daughter of Mary and Richard Tyler, Thief River Falls, performed "Air" by Franz Joseph Haydn;

Intermediate B category (15 to 16 years old), Kevin Anderson, tenth grade, son of Helen and Steve Anderson, Thief River Falls, performed "Air" by Bela Bartok; Jennifer Cyr, ninth grade, daughter of Shirley and Frankie Cyr, Oklee, performed "Italian Polka" by Serge Rachmaninoff;

Senior B division (19 to 20 years old), Sandra Rustan, daughter of Gloria and Richard Rustan, Oklee, (In the eleventh grade, Sandra is a previous state winner and was automatically moved into the next division) performed "Sonata in F Major, First Movement" by Ludwig van Beethoven. Sandra has won at the state contest the past four years, and John Wallberg has won three years in a row.

Students of Ruth Jensen who won at the district contest were: Amy Padilla, 9, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E.M. Padilla, Thief River Falls, competing in the Junior A division, with a selection titled "Sonatina in C Major" by Albert Biehl; and Susanne Johnson, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Johnson, rural Thief River Falls, competing in Intermediate A division with a selection titled "Harlequinade" by Chagy.

Wedul Second In Health Sales

Katherine Wedul, FIC, Thief River Falls, ranked second among Lutheran Brotherhood district representatives for the amount of health insurance she provided to Lutherans in 1983 and qualified for membership in the fraternal insurance society's Top Club.

Membership in Top Club, the company's highest sales honor, was attained by less than three per cent of the society's field force.

Sjulson Serves As State MSBA Vice President

Some travel will be required of the state vice president in addition to regular meetings in the Twin Cities. Sjulson just returned from a meeting of the federal relations network for the national school boards association in Washington, DC, and will go to Houston, TX, late in March as one of two state delegates to the national school boards association convention. Although the MSBA office is in St. Peter, the monthly board meetings are usually held in the Twin Cities.

The MSBA is described by Sjulson as a service organization for school boards. All 437 public school districts in Minnesota are voluntary members of the association. The MSBA provides information and advice to superintendents and boards of education, and forms a basis for school boards to present a united front for lobbying toward legislation.

"Without the MSBA," Sjulson says, "individual school districts in the state would be isolated and picked apart in the legislative process."

He also noted that through the association workmen's compensation costs for school districts had been reduced by 30 to 40 per cent. Training for new board members is provided by the association, he said, and the MSBA joins in some legal cases as friend of the court in seeking legal decisions. The organization has eight full-time staff professionals and seven other office personnel.

One of the efforts of the association which is expected to have major emphasis in the next two years is amendment of the Public Employee Labor Relations Act (PELRA) to avoid disruption of schools, Sjulson said. One law being sought would reduce teachers' right to strike without a certified impasse by a mediator. Another would provide the right for local boards of education to call for binding arbitration in contract negotiations. Less than 200 of the state's 437 school districts have settled teacher contracts for the 1983-1985 period, including Thief River Falls, Sjulson noted.

On a local basis, Sjulson commended members of the facilities committee and excellence in education committee for attacking the issues in those areas. "The committees have extremely capable people," Sjulson said, "and we should see the benefit of their work in the near future. Chairing the two committees are Clyde Christensen and Larry McDowell.

Sjulson is originally from Lancaster where he graduated from high school in 1938. After attending teacher training in Thief River Falls, he taught rural schools in the Lancaster area for two years. He was a tool and die maker on the West Coast, served in the U.S. army for two years including some time with the U.S. occupational forces in Japan, and attended the University of North Dakota for one year and University of Minnesota for two years.

He married Vivian Anderson of Potter, NB, in 1947 and they operated a grain and beef farm in Nebraska for five years. In 1955 he moved to St. Hilaire and built a turkey hatchery with his brother Paul. They hatched up to 100,000 poults a year and raised up to 75,000 turkeys in an integrated operation. They built a feed mill in 1957 and rebuilt it in 1959 after it was destroyed by fire. The mill had a peak production of 48 tons of feed per day.

Paul sold his interest in the business in 1964 and moved away. Harry phased out the hatchery business over a three-year period and retired a year ago. From 1977 to 1979 he served as manager of St. Hilaire Supply company, a wholesale plumbing supply and manufacturer of storage tanks.

residents to a single fish limit on border area waters. Alexander and Pope said they would begin discussions on joint resource management, including a possible cross-deputizing of conservation officers and special fishing seasons for border area waters.

"We left Toronto with a good feeling because of the cooperative spirit that has evolved with Ontario officials," Stumpf said.

"I think we finally reached the point where each side of the border is acknowledging a problem, but is willing to work it out equitably," he added.

Besides Tunheim, Stumpf, Johnson and Alexander, the Minnesota delegation included State Senator Bob Lessard, District 3; State Rep. Bob Neuenschwander, District 3A; state tourism director Hank Todd; and Dorothy Dahlenburg, chief-of-staff with the lieutenant governor.

Coffee Day Is Set For Friday At Restaurants

Local restaurants in cooperation with the Minnesota restaurant association are participating in a statewide "Coffee Day" promotion to assist the mentally retarded.

Buttons are being sold through February 24, by waiters and waitresses, which will entitle the holder of the button to free coffee in participating restaurants on February 24. Proceeds from the sale of the buttons will be used to enable Camp Confidence, near Brainerd, to remain open, free of charge, to mentally retarded campers. Camp Confidence served over 3,000 mentally retarded from throughout the state during 1983.

Local establishments participating include: Country Kitchen, Pizza Hut, Rex Cafe, Woolworths, Best Western Inn, Highway 59 Cafe and The Lantern.

Honorary chairman for the campaign, Karl Kassulke, ex-Minnesota Viking, says, "This is an especially important fund rasing promotion for Camp Confidence, because they depend entirely on contributions to keep the camp operating free to Minnesota's mentally retarded on a year-round basis." Campers are offered activities like camping, fishing, backpacking, and hiking during warm weather, and skiing, snowmobiling, snowshoeing and ice fishing in the winter.

Nursing Class Is Scheduled For February

Thief River Falls AVTI will offer a 120-hour course to help prepare persons for employment as nurse assistants. For those interested in the AVTI LPN program, this course will be given full credit toward the program.

Arrangements On Community Ball Complete

Beverly Rustad

Lowell Hoffard

Program arrangements have been completed for the 23rd annual community ball (formerly the charity ball) sponsored by the Thief River Falls Jaycee Women, which will be held from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Saturday, February 18 at the Elks Club in Thief River Falls.

All proceeds will be divided and distributed to the Falls Day Activity Center and the Occupational Development Center.

Theme for the gala event is "Be My Valentine". Semi-formal dress is requested. Admission will be $4, with tickets available from Larson Music, Ekeren Drug, or any Jaycee Woman. Tickets will also be available at the door. Cost includes an evening of entertainment, lunch and dancing. Prizes will be awarded throughout the evening.

Lowell Hoffard has been selected as master of ceremonies for the evening. He will oversee an amusing game called "Jaycee Prattle tales" with three Jaycee couples participating. Other entertainment will include vocal performances by Charlie Bigelow and a special guest appearance by Miss Thief River Falls, Beverly Rustad, who will also sing.

Local grocery stores have donated a wide selection of hors d'oeuvres which will be served at midnight.

REFLECTI NS
He who believes in nobody knows that he himself is not to be trusted. That kind of person must lead a miserable existence, always suspicious, fault finding and, on guard. Circumstances may have made him so. . . Hopefully he will find someone who will shower him with kindness long enough to melt away his self doubt and his distrust in others. Even the hardened cynic can be softened if you have enough patience and forebearance.

CPR Training Given Sanders 4-H Members

As the first step towards a goal of having all of its members and their parents certified to perform cardiopulmonary resuscitation, the Sanders 4-H club held a training session for five junior leaders and three adults on January 12, at the Richard Grandbois home.

Instructing the group was Richard Kuhnley, a respiratory therapist at Northwestern hospital, and a certified CPR instructor. Utilizing specially designed "Resusci-Annie" and infant dummies, Kuhnley instructed the group in the proper lifesaving techniques used to maintain vital flow of blood and oxygen to the brain of people whose hearts have stopped. This includes use of mouth to mouth artificial respiration and closed-chest heart massage.

Preparedness Can Save Lives During Storm

The recent blizzard proved once again how fast severe Minnesota weather can develop and become deadly, but serious planning and common sense can dramatically increase chances of surviving such a storm, according to the Minnesota AAA.

"While we deeply regret the recent deaths of travelers, preparing for the worst and staying with your vehicle if you are stranded is still the best and safest survival technique," said AAA spokesman Mark A. Larson.

"Your car is a good shelter," Larson said. "Walking in a storm can be a tragic mistake because you can easily get lost during blizzard conditions."

Planning before you leave is the key to surviving a blizzard. First, make sure your car is fully winterized before you venture out. Secondly, you can pack a lot of winter safety into a small three-pound container. Using a plastic ice cream pail or large coffee can with cover to store emergency survival materials will work best.

This container should be kept in the interior of the car and should contain work gloves, a face mask and stocking cap, matches in a waterproof container, small first-aid kit and first-aid manual, small sharp knife, travel alarm clock, safety pins, aspirin, two quarters taped to the plastic cover for phone calls, small compass, paper towels, small flashlight and extra batteries and a large bright red or orange banner.

"High energy foods such as raisins, honey, granola bars, semisweet chocolate and instant coffee or tea should be stored in the glove compartment," Larson said. "These foods are good sources of energy and will help combat the cold."

Other necessary items which should be kept in the passenger compartment include a small fire extinguisher, sleeping bag, snowmobile suit and boots, heavy blanket, small backpacker's stove and a pan to prepare warm liquids — which are vital to maintaining body temperatures.

Your car's trunk should carry a sturdy shovel, road flares, jumper cables, a towing chain and a sand-salt mix in plastic pails or milk cartons to spread in front of slipping tires.

In addition, do not run your car's engine unless you are absolutely certain that deadly exhaust fumes cannot enter the car. It's a good idea to slightly open the window facing away from the wind. A good exhaust system can be easily clogged by snow, which will force carbon monoxide into the car.

The Minnesota AAA also recommends that to prevent being stranded during a blizzard or extremely cold weather, never travel on less than half a tank of gas.

For a free copy of AAA's brochure, "Snowbound Survival for the Motorist," which includes these and other tips, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Minnesota AAA Public Relations Dept., 7 Travelers Trail, Burnsville, MN 55337.

Jeremy Nelson Earns Award

The real base of Northwestern Bell-Minnesota is the people who work here.
Our past success has been due to employees making the most of our technology.
So even though we became a new company on January 1st, we're staffed by most of the same people who've been providing Minnesota with excellent phone service for many years.
And with our renewed enthusiasm and commitment to serving you better than ever, you'll find it very satisfying to continue doing business with us.
FULL SPEED AHEAD
Now that the divestiture process is largely completed, we're free to move on new opportunities and find new ways to meet your communication needs.
And all the advances we're making will have the superior back-up you've come to expect from Northwestern Bell Minnesota.
More than 8,000 employees are fully trained and ready to assist you. Our people, and the important functions we're still responsible for, include:
• 620 operators and other people to complete your calls, provide phone numbers and perform other vital services.
• 1,590 switching engineers and operations people to keep the sophisticated Minnesota network operating smoothly and efficiently.
• 1,990 installation, customer service, marketing and support people to meet individual needs of our residential and business customers.
• 2,800 specialists to maintain and test cable, line and other facilities, to install new switching and distribution equipment; and to perform many other vital duties.
ASK THE LEADER
With these dedicated professionals to count on, we fully expect to strengthen and maintain our leadership position in this exciting new era of telecommunications.
Because with all the revolutionary changes that are coming up in our industry, we want you to know there are familiar people you can turn to. And here's some information that may be helpful.
Lines: Northwestern Bell will continue to maintain all lines up to the point where they enter your home or business. When problems arise, just call the Repair number in the front of your directory. Many other questions are answered there, too.
Equipment: If you own your telephone equipment and have trouble with it, follow the instructions on the warranty. Leased residence equipment is now owned and repaired by AT&T.
Wiring: To have new home wiring installed or existing wiring changed, you have these options: Northwestern Bell, another supplier or doing it yourself.
Billing: If you have a question about your phone bill, call the number listed on your monthly statement.
To discuss any other subjects concerning the new Northwestern Bell, call 1-800-642-[illegible] (Voice/TDD). We've asked our managers to be available all week, February 13 through 17, every day from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. You may reach one of them by dialing this toll free number. If you want a free informative booklet about the changes nationally and in Minnesota, you may call this toll-free number: 1-800-542-4242 any time, 24 hours a day. This is just one more way we're here to serve you.
We're in business to stay.
Northwestern Bell

About Valentine's Day

One of our favorite columnists is Roger Dunnette, editor of the Land O'Lakes Mirror, who manages to weave humor and reason into consistently interesting reading material. The February issue of the "Mirror" carries Dunnette's thoughts on "Love Is What You Make It," a theme appropriate to Valentine's Day February 14.

In part, the column notes the following:

Some rather astute observations on this whole phenomenon of love and relationships are made by a doctor who points out how many women would be happier if their husbands would treat them as well as they treat their dog.

The good doctor says, for instance, that when a man sees his dog, he rubs and scratches her when, where and how she likes to be rubbed and scratched. But with his wife, he may caress her when, where and how he thinks she should be caressed.

He brags about his dog to his friends. He may complain about his wife to them.

He feeds his dog when she is hungry. The wife feeds him when he is hungry.

He gives his dog the freedom to be whatever kind of dog she is. But he insists that his wife become the kind of wife he thinks she should be.

He takes his dog for weekend hunting trips or at least for a daily walk. He is too busy to take a weekend trip or even a daily walk with his wife.

He pets his dog and talks to her when he feels lonely and depressed. But he may scold his wife or berate her when he is depressed.

It is clear what the doctor is saying. Our tendency is to take for granted the most previous possessions of our life — those whom we love and those who love us.

Remember the courtship days when you couldn't do enough for that special person you were going with? You were always smiling, always putting your best foot forward, always complimenting this person on how handsome and strong he was, or how great she looked. Once in awhile you would even buy each other presents for no particular reason. It didn't have to be Valentine's Day. You reinforced each other simply with a kind word or a gentle touch.

Then you got married and the honeymoon was over. Instead of the good talks you used to have with each other, you began to retreat behind a newspaper or to station yourself in front of a TV set. Sure, you say, you're watching it together as a family. But can you honestly say you are sharing many meaningful words together anymore? It's a sort of isolation right in the very midst of those closest to you.

The story is told of the wife who was living on a starvation diet of afffection. Her husband rarely showed her any signs of love, and her need to be appreciated went unfulfilled. At her wit's end, she finally blurted out, "Why don't you ever tell me that you love me?"

Her husband stoically replied, "When we got married, I told you that I loved you. If that ever changes, I'll let you know."

Taking each other for granted can be destructive. It need not be that way, you know.

The Human Element

Following editorial is from the Detroit Lakes Tribune:

The Becker County services board is to be praised for voting Tuesday to allocate members and money to the proposed Fergus Falls state hospital (FFSH) task force.

As reported in an article in today's Tribune, the newly formed organization will study how FFSH could better meet the needs of the 17 counties that it serves. This local task force will then report its findings to a state panel which will, in turn, make recommendations to Governor Perpich before the end of the year.

It is hoped that the FFSH Task Force can come forth with a persuasive argument that will preserve the state hospital as a stable and effective option for regional residents requiring psychiatric care.

The FFSH Task Force was born in December to fight against a department of public welfare (DPW) reorganization proposal that would have eliminated admission of mentally ill patients to FFSH and, instead, required that they be taken to Brainerd state hospital. DPW commissioner Len Levine later withdrew the plan after local government and mental health officials attacked the plan as being inefficient.

We hope that any forthcoming proposals will consider the needs of the patients and their families above all else. Closing state hospitals is more than a dollars and cents propostion and, all too often, the human element is shunted aside during such discussions.

When someone is hospitalized for a psychiatric illness, it is crucial that these individuals maintain close and frequent contact with their families. Unfortunately, if this contact is not maintained, the family will regroup and go on with their lives without the patient. Such reordering often leaves the patient alienated and without a familiar and stable support system.

Consider having to travel from the edges of western Minnesota to Brainerd to visit a hospitalized family member. It is just not realistic to expect families to travel such great distances on a regular basis.

This situation currently exists for residents of southeastern Minnesota. Since the legislature voted to close Rochester state hospital two years ago, patients are now transported from that area to St. Peter state hospital, which is, in some cases, hundreds of miles away. St. Peter's patient population is usually at 98 per cent capacity. Consequently, if there is no room at that facility, the patient must be taken to backup state hospitals at either Willmar or Fergus Falls. Under extreme circumstances, a patient who lives in the far southeastern corner of the state could conceivably end up as a patient at Fergus Falls.

Although attempts to streamline services are laudable, Minnesota needs a balanced state hospital system that is readily available to residents, no matter where they live. As the FFSH task force begins its work, we hope ttat this need can be successfully impressed upon the legislators in St. Paul.

The English Language

The biggest change in the English langauge over the years seems to be Americans' increasing inability to use it properly. People of other lands who are learning English as a second (or third, fourth or fifth) langauge must be confused frequently by the variety of spellings and uses of same-sounding words. The following poem from an 1885 edition of the Anoka Union brings the problem to light:

A pretty deer is dear to me,
A hare with downy hair;
I love a hart with all my heart
But barely bear a bear.
It's plain that no one takes a plane
To have a pair of pears;
A rake, though, often takes a rake
To tear away the tares.
All rays raise thyme, time razes all;
And through the whole, hole wears.
And writ in writing "rite" may "right"
It "wright" and still be wrong —
For "write" and "rite" are neither "right",
And don't to write belong.
Beer often brings a bier to man
Coughing a coffin brings.
And too much ale will make us ail,
As well as other things.
The person lies who says he lies
When he is not reclining;
And when consumptive folks decline,
They all decline declining.
A quail won't quail before a storm —
A bough will bow before it;
We cannot reign the rain at all —
No earthly powers reign o'er it.
The dyer dyes a while then dies;
To dye he's always trying.
Until upon his dying bed
He thinks no more of dyeing.
A son of Mars mars many a sun;
All deys must have their days,
And every knight should pray each night
To him who weighs his ways.
"Tis mete that man should mete out meat
To feed misfortune's son;
The fair should fare on love alone,
Else one cannot be won.
A lass, alas! is something false;
Of faults a maid is made;
Her waist is but a barren waste —
Though stayed, she is not staid.
The springs spring forth in spring, and shoots
Shoot forward one and all;
Though summer kills the flowers, it leaves
The leaves to fall in fall.
I would a story here commence,
But you might find it stale;
So let's suppose that you have reached
The tail end of our tale.

Borrowed Nonsense:

A bear and hunter met in the woods. "Let's talk this out," the bear suggested. The hunter said he wanted a fur coat; the bear said he wanted a full stomach. They negotiated. The bear walked away alone with a full stomach and the hunter had his fur coat.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

The Thief River Falls high school band program has come under scrutiny lately due to the decision that the wind ensemble would go to Norway. I disagree with some of the observations that have been made about the band.

First of all, I feel it is very unfair for Mr. Engstrom and the band students to be criticized for not marching in area parades in the summer. I understand neither Mr. Engstrom nor the band students wished to give up summer marching. The community of Thief River Falls made that decision. It was something people no longer felt strongly enough about to pay for.

We can't expect a band director to donate his time for the summer any more than we can expect a plumber, an electrician or a lawyer to work for no salary. The time involved in performing in a parade is not just the actual parade time, but hours and hours of practice time beforehand. I love a marching band in a parade, but we have to be willing to pay for it!

Secondly, please don't judge the pep band solely on hockey game participation. The band has been dividing up its time between girl's basketball, boy's basketball, and hockey games. Most weeks this included two events, Tuesday and Friday night. The pep band isn't "fizzling out" — just trying to be fair with the different sporting events.

Sincerely,
-s- Carol Torgerson

To The Editor:

After reading your column, I decided that some of our citizens may need a little more enlightenment on what this trip for the youth of Thief River Falls would mean.

Most parents want their children to have things that they could never have. The most important one is for them to have a better education. Parents have gone without so that their children could go to college. Some may even go without so that their child can go to Norway. What better education can there be than for a person to see how others see us, to understand their way of life, their currency, food, langauage and history? Their whole trip will be part of learning, from the raising of funds, the trip and finally the customs of others. Many will make friends that will last a lifetime. They will come back to Thief River Falls more rounded persons, better to cope with every day problems.

Our country has exchanged students for years so that each of us may better understand the other. We need more understanding in the world to solve the problems we all have. This trip for the youth to some may seem wasteful but if they would look at the overall picture they may come to understand the true meaning of education.

Since our son was born, we have taken him on all of our vacations and business conventions. He has learned first hand the history of our country and how the business world really works. He has learned how to talk with adults and to help out when needed. By traveling he has learned that others have needs and problems that are not much different than our own. We think traveling has made him a better person.

And we wish only the best for those students who have the chance to see and to better understand the world we live in.

Good luck,
Mr. and Mrs. David Jansen

Goodridge Trips Grygla 40-38 In Final Seconds

Diana Troska hit a basket from near the free throw line with eight seconds remaining Thursday to lift Goodridge past Grygla 40-38 in a girls high school basketball rivalry renewed at Goodridge.

Tied 38-38, the Huskies gained possession with 43 seconds remaining and worked the ball for the final shot by Troska, the game's high scorer with 17 points. Teammate Jennie Boutain had 12 points, a figure matched by Grygla's Debbie Klein. Kathy Foss of the Eagles added 10.

It was just the fourth win in 14 games for the Huskies, who were still battling the effects of the flu that forced them to postpone a visit to Plummer earlier in the week.

"I really felt proud of the girls," reported Goodridge coach Patti Johnson, who said the Huskies were awfully weary at game's end. "Basically, we held on," she noted.

Grygla led 10-6 at the end of the first quarter and maintained a 26-21 edge at halftime. The Eagles still led, 27-26, at the end of a very low-scoring third quarter when the two teams combined for just seven points.

Neither team shot very well. Goodridge was only 16-for-43 from the field (27 per cent) and Grygla was just 15-for-65 (23 per cent).

Rest of the statistics were close, too. Goodridge was 8-for-21 from the free throw line (38 per cent), where Grygla was 8-for-19 (42 per cent). The Eagles had a slight 34-32 rebound edge and the Huskies topped the turnover figures 31-29.

Goodridge will be at Clearbrook tonight (Monday) and host Warren Thursday. Grygla, owning a similar number of wins, will take its 4-13 record to Lake of the Woods tonight and will finish the 1983-84 regular season at home against Badger Thursday.

Plummer built a 48-25 third quarter cushion and went on to beat Red Lake Falls 53-39 Thursday in the Pershing high school gym, extending the Cardinals' winning streak to four games.

"We played in spurts," admitted Plummer coach Rick Koivisto. "We had a good second quarter."

Plummer took a 14-8 first quarter lead and turned it into a 36-18 halftime gap with an effective pressing defense.

Jody Pahlen scored a game-high 23 points for the winners, with teammate Janelle Konickson adding 12. Janell DeHann, Cindy Audette and Sheryl Swenson all had 10 points for the Eagles.

Plummer was 19-for-60 from the field (31 per cent) and 15-for-24 at the free throw line (63 per cent). Red Lake Falls was 18-for-52 from the field (35 per cent) and 3-for-5 at the line (60 per cent). The Cardinals had a 32-27 rebound edge and the Eagles topped the turnover chart 18-17.

Four games remain on the Cardinals' regular season record, including three this week as they visit Oklee tonight (Monday), host East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Thursday and drive to Stephen Friday.

Middle River ran its record to 17-0 Thursday with a 55-29 win over Lake of the Woods the Woods, but it was a costly victory for the host Skippers, who lost the services of starting guard Jody Christofferson late in the game with a severe ankle sprain that is expected to keep her out of the line-up Thursday in a match-up with area rival Marshall County Central.

Christofferson scored 19 points to lead all scorers, while Paula Rantanen had 14 and Tammy Sorter 12. No Lake of the Woods scorer reached double figures.

Middle River limited Lake of the Woods to just six first half points as the Skippers built quarter leads of 8-4, 26-6 and 39-10.

Although less-than-satisfied with the Skippers' overall play, Middle River coach Tom Neibauer said, "I guess if you keep a team to six points in one half, you really shouldn't complain."

Shelly Anderson had a 12-point, 18-rebound game for the winners, who built a sizeable 44-20 rebound advantage, including 23 off the offensive boards.

"Shelly had a real good game," praised Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde, who was also happy with the Nordics' balanced attack that showed Barb Garthus and Jodi Nelson sharing game-high scoring honors with 13 each. Nelson got her points after coming off the bench. Garthus also grabbed 11 rebounds.

Marshall County Central had quarter leads of 13-4, 32-13 and 54-18.

Roseau was just 6-for-36 from the field for the night (17 per cent), while Marshall County Central went 26-for-74 (35 per cent). The Rams were 11-for-24 at the free throw line (46 per cent), where the Nordics were 8-for-15 (53 per cent). Roseau had 22 turnovers to 12 for Marshall County Central.

Marshall County Central, 9-7, hosts Strandquist tonight.

DNR NEWS

Boat Registrations

Minnesotans love their boats as evidenced by a report from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources that says a record 622,872 watercraft were registered with the DNR as of December 1983.

That figure is up 12,695 from 1982 with the biggest increases noted in outboard and stern drive boats 16 to 26 feet in length. There was also a slight rise in the number of canoes and sailboats registered.

Total figures for 1983 included 471,002 motorboats, 125,229 canoes, 24,731 sailboats and 1,910 rowboats.

DNR Boat and Water Safety Coordinator Kim Elverum said he expects Minnesota to hold its place as one of the top three states in boat registration along with Michigan and California. He said final figures for other states will be announced by the Coast Guard this spring.

"Minnesota's per capita boat registration should once again top the nation with one boat for every 6.5 residents," said Elverum.

Deer Research

Donations made by several organizations recently will be a big help to the deer research program being conducted by the DNR Farmland Wildlife Populations and Research Group at Madelia, reports John Ludwig, research biologist conducting the studies.

"We planned to live-trap and radio-collar a number of deer this winter, but with all this early snow we couldn't get around to our bait and trap sites," said Ludwig.

He said the Minnesota Deer Hunters' Association has agreed to lease a snowmobile for the project for three months; the Watonwan County Chapter of the Deer Hunters' Association bought a trailer to haul the snowmobile, and the Watonwan Game and Fish Club paid to have a sled made to haul the traps, bait and other equipment behind the snowmobile.

"These contributions made the research possible, and give us a mobility we have never had before," said Ludwig. "The studies will increase our knowledge of deer movements, mortality and use of river-bottom habitats in the open farmland of south central Minnesota."

Woodland Conference

Owners and users of Minnesota woodlands will have an opportunity to learn more about forest management, marketing, taxes and similar topics from professionals in the field on Feb. 18 in St. Paul.

"Woodland Owners and Users Conference" will be held at the Earle Brown Center on the St. Paul campus of the University of Minnesota, starting at 8 a.m. and ending at 4:30 p.m.

Conference is sponsored by the U of M Department of Forestry and the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources together with other public and private organizations.

Officials said the various subjects will be dealt with at sessions that will allow ample time for questions.

A registration fee of $5 for adults may be paid at the door and will include written material on forestry subjects and also cover the cost of a coffee break. Children will be admitted free.

Those who wish to pre-register may do so at the reduced charge of only $4. Application forms, including additional information on the conference, are available from the DNR Division of Forestry, Centennial Building, St. Paul, or from the University Department of Forestry.

Deadline for pre-registration is Feb. 10.

White shark is known to spit out human victims after an attack, but it apparently has nothing to do with the shark's distaste for flesh, reports National Wildlife magazine. It's simply a clever protection technique. By first retreating, giving the victim time to go into shock, the shark can then dine in leisure without risk of attack.

Goodridge 100 Snowmobile Race Saturday

Seventh annual Goodridge 100 snowmobile race will be conducted by the Goodridge area Jaycees Saturday with four performance rated stock classes, masters class for racers over 40 years of age and powderpuff class for women included in the schedule.

Stock classes A, B, C and D will be classified under a rating system considering horsepower, engine size, weight, type of cooling and handling characteristics so that machines of comparable performance levels are placed in classes where they are expected to be competitive.

Entry fee in stock classes has been lowered from $35 to $25 this year while masters and powderpuff entries will pay $10. Powderpuff entries will race about 30 miles, masters will race 60 miles and stock class racers will cover a 100-mile course over ditch, river and cross-country terrain.

Registration and entry fee will be accepted from 9 to 11 a.m. at the Goodridge school on race day. Drivers meeting will be held at the school at 11 a.m. and the race will start at 1 p.m. near the south edge of Goodridge. Drivers under 18 years of age require written permission from parents or guardians. Gas and oil for refueling will be provided by race supporters.

Three trophies will be awarded along with cash payback in each of the four stock classes and trophies in the masters and powderpuff classes. More information is available from Gerry Sunsdahl at 378-4578 or Alan Swanson at 378-4570.

Basketball JV Splits Pair Of Home Games

Beaten 56-30 by Fergus Falls Friday, the Lincoln high school junior varsity basketball team rebounded to defeat Middle River 44-34 Saturday for a 4-9 season record.

Fergus Falls had quarter leads of 12-9, 34-16 and 50-24. Kevin Nelson scored 12 points for Thief River Falls.

Against Middle River, Thief River Falls had a 14-4 first quarter lead, ending up winning by that 10-point margin, leading 26-14 at halftime and 37-24 after three quarters. Nelson scored 13 points. Kevin Halme had 11 for Middle River.

THE BEST OF THE ROCKIES.

Coors starts out clean and fresh. And then it stays that way.

But that's where the similarity ends.

You see, we start with pure Rocky Mountain spring water. That's because we make our beer in one place and one place only: Golden, Colorado. And its perfect brewing water is why we started there in the first place.

In the second place, we use a brewing process that's unique to the industry. We start with only natural ingredients—absolutely no additives or preservatives—and then we brew Coors more slowly and age it longer than most beers.

Then, we package Coors cold. Other beers are subjected to extreme heat (up to 140°) after being put in cans or bottles. Coors doesn't do that, simply because the less you heat beer, the better it tastes.

One of our secret ingredients has 18 wheels and weighs 32,000 pounds.

When Coors and Coors Light are finally through aging, they have a wonderfully cold, clean, brewery-fresh taste. The last thing in the world we'd want to do is put that nice, cold beer on a big, hot truck like other brewers do. So we don't.

We use refrigerated trucks. And they take our beer—nice and cold—up to 2,000 miles (give or take a detour) to our distributors. At this point, it makes no sense to truck cold beer all that distance and let it get warm in some warehouse.

Don't worry. It doesn't. Our distributors use refrigerated warehouses for our beer. (It's more expensive, but we know they like that brewery-fresh taste as much as we do.)

Next, our distributors take that nice, cold Coors and put it in their own refrigerated trucks and take it to where you can finally buy some.

Does Coors have to be refrigerated?

No. Every now and then, you might see Coors out in one of those big displays at your store.

If you do, don't be concerned. Even though we go through all the expense and trouble to keep Coors and Coors Light fresh from the Rockies to you, our beer is no more affected by heat than any other beer.

To kind of sum it up, we refrigerate our beer because we want to, not because we have to.

Now on tap.
Soon in your store.

We're getting Coors and Coors Light out to you as fast as we can. Chances are, you might find it first on tap at your favorite tavern. Check around. It's worth it. And when you do find it, give it a chance. The real beauty of Coors is how it keeps that brewery-fresh taste beer after beer.

Thanks for reading all this, and there's just one more thing: Enjoy!

Olson Tops Scoring List

Junior forward Michelle Olson scored 12 points Thursday in a 48-41 loss at Crookston to become the leading scorer in Lincoln high school girls basketball history, reported Prowlers coach Tom Schafer.

Olson now has 643 career points, one more than Tara Nicholson, a 1982 Lincoln graduate who has been playing basketball at Northland community college the past two years.

Schafer figures Olson has a shot at joining the prestigious 1,000-point club before she finishes her high school basketball career next winter. The Prowlers play three more regular season games before beginning post-season competition later this month, and she will have the 19 games to work on that goal next year.

But a big factor in Olson's bid to crack that 1,000-point barrier is the Prowlers' tournament success. Limited to just one or two post-season games as the Prowlers have been in the past, Olson would wind up with considerably fewer games to reach that scoring plateau than someone with a district or region championship-caliber team behind them.

Olson's scoring totals have been consistent, but they've been getting smaller this winter as the Prowlers develop a more balanced offense. Sophomores Michelle Puetz and Connie Grovum, along with junior Penni Johnston, have all helped take some of the scoring load off Olson. She doesn't score as much when the Prowlers concentrate on getting the ball inside to Puetz, but they've been effective with that attack. Paula Wilkens is the only senior in the Prowlers' starting line-up. She doesn't score many points, but is a valuable asset as a ball handler and passer.

While Olson tries to become the first Lincoln girl to score 1,000 points, there have been two Prowlers to surpass that figure — Dave Hanson, a 6-5, center who finished his senior season in 1957-58 with 1,088 career points, and Art Johnson, a 6-5 center who finished his senior year in 1954-54 with 1,012 points.

Four others came close. Ron Hanson, a 6-8 center, scored 993 points before winding up his high school basketball career in 1960-61; Wayne Peterson, a 6-10 center, scored 948 before graduating after the 1974-75 season; Steve Enderlein, a 5-10 guard, scored 945 before finishing in 1978-79; and Sheldon Joppru, a 6-3 forward, collected 901 before ending his playing career here in 1968-69.

As Olson pursues the 1,000-point mark, the Prowlers will make their final two regular season appearances in the Lincoln gym this week, hosting Detroit Lakes Tuesday and entertained East Grand Forks Thursday. They finish the schedule Tues., Feb. 21, at Fergus Falls.

North Sub-Region 8AA playoffs begin Mon., Feb. 27, at various sites for the six teams involved — Thief River Falls, Detroit Lakes, Bemidji, Moorhead, Park Rapids and Fergus Falls.

Those games against Detroit Lakes and Fergus Falls could be important to the Prowlers in their bid to receive a home court site for an opening round playoff game. The pairings and sites are based upon a seeding vote by the six head coaches who base their selections mostly upon head-to-head competition within the sub region during the course of the regular season.

Skippers' Win Streak On The Line

A 55-29 win over Lake of the Woods Thursday stretched Middle River's season-long winning streak to 17 games, but the Skippers lost starting guard Jody Christofferson to an ankle injury in the process and will likely face Marshall County Central Thursday without their floor leader.

"This is the same place we were last year, 17-0 and going into Newfolden shorthanded," pointed out Middle River coach Tom Neibauer.

A year ago the Skippers were indeed 17-0 when they met the Nordics for the second time, and they were without the services of starter Diane Black and top reserve Tammy Sorter. A 46-36 winner in the first meeting, Middle River lost the rematch 38-28.

That was the only regular season defeat for the Skippers, who bounced back to beat the rival Nordics 41-40 in overtime in the District 32 tournament finals. They lost a 49-44 first round Region 8AA game to Cass Lake and finished the 21-1 season with a 40-29 regional consolation game win over Argyle.

Marshall County Central's status as an area girls basketball power has slipped some this winter, but the Nordics are still capable of winning. Their current 9-7 record includes a 56-36 loss at Middle River back on Jan. 19. Middle River starts an all-senior starting line-up, and the Skippers' lack of depth will be underlined if Christofferson is out of the line-up long.

Miscellaneous

+Five area high school football players who faced Thief River Falls last fall signed national and North Central Conference letters of intent Wednesday to play football at either North Dakota State University or the University of North Dakota. Signing with the defending NCAA Division II national champion Bison in Fargo were runningbacks Charlie Stock, a 6-0, 185-pounder from Mahnomen, and Len Kretchman, a 5-10, 175-pounder from Fergus Falls. Signing with the Sioux in Grand Forks were Dave Hamlin, a 6-1, 185-pound runningback-defensive end from Moorhead; Brian Hoffman, a 6-0, 201-pound runningback from Grand Forks Red River; and John Moran, a 6-3, 200-pound defensive tackle from Red River. Also signing with UND were Joe Krouss, a 6-6, 210-pound tight end from Baudette; and Darin Grandstrand, a 6-2, 200-pound runningback-linebacker from Karlstad.

TRF Faces Key Section 8 Game Against Warroad

Thief River Falls' bid for a top four seed and an automatic berth in the 1984 Section 8 high school hockey tournament quarterfinals, jolted a bit Friday in a 2-2 overtime tie at Detroit Lakes, will be on the line Tuesday when the Prowlers visit Warroad for a key 7:30 p.m. game.

Tuesday will be the final Section 8-counting games, and Wednesday morning the coaches will vote for the top four teams they feel are deserving of a tournament berth — regardless of their positions in the Section 8 standings.

Roseau and Bemidji are shoo-ins for two of those spots. Fergus Falls is almost a certainty for a tournament berth, too. That will leave just one position open, with Thief River Falls, Warroad and Crookston the leading candidates to fill it.

Thief River Falls swept Crookston 6-3 and 3-2 this winter and won the first meeting here with Warroad 2-1. But after being held to a tie by a Detroit Lakes team that is struggling near the bottom of the Section 8 standings, the Prowlers will likely need another win over the Warriors to avoid the sub-sectional eliminations that face the 15 non-seeded teams who will vie for the four available Section 8 tournament slots.

Despite being out-shot by a sizeable 40-20 margin, Detroit Lakes nearly pulled off a major upset behind the hot goaltending of senior Chad Meyhoff. The Prowlers out-shot the Lakes 20-10 through two periods, including a 14-2 second period difference, but still trailed 1-0 on a Tom Johnson goal at 1:05 of the second period.

Things got even stickier when Eric Bergren scored at 6:32 of the third period for a 2-0 Detroit Lakes lead.

But less than two minutes later the Prowlers Ryan Bakke scored on a power play, and teammate Bob Huot tied it at 11:57 to force an overtime period that failed to break the deadlock.

Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand said it was a game the Prowlers should have won. "We're not overly pleased with our play, but on the other hand, you out-shoot somebody 40-20 you're going to win most of the time. Their goaltender had an exceptional game for them."

Actually the tie extended a late-season effort by the Prowlers, who have lost just once in their last 11 games. They're 11-6-1 overall heading into Tuesday's showdown at Warroad. Friday they close out their regular season schedule by hosting Fergus Falls.

"We still feel if we go to Warroad and win, we're a legitimate member of the top four," said Grand.

Thief River Falls' junior varsity record evened at 8-8 with a 7-0 win at Detroit Lakes.

Cardinals Lose 61-60 Decision To Sacred Heart

Trailing by as much as 13 points late in the third quarter, Plummer rallied to overtake East Grand Forks Sacred Heart in the final eight minutes Friday before surrendering a game-winning basket to the Eagles' Road Oas with just five seconds left that beat the visiting Cardinals 61-60 in Polar Conference high school basketball action.

"I wasn't too satisfied with the way we played for three quarters," reported Plummer coach Jim Baron, "but the guys did a nice job coming back in the fourth quarter."

After a 12-12 first quarter draw, Sacred Heart took a 27-24 halftime lead and owned a 47-36 third quarter spread.

Plummer's come-back found the Cardinals owning a 60-59 lead and having possession of the ball to start the final half-minute of play. But a turnover with 15 seconds left set up Oas' shot. The Cardinals quickly got the ball downcourt after the basket for a last-second try by Eric Eskeli that hit the rim and bounced away.

"It was pretty spotty," admitted Baron. "In the third quarter we didn't play well at all. We made a lot of mistakes — unforced mistakes that really hurt."

Duane Franklund of Plummer and Darrin West of Sacred Heart shared game-high scoring honors with 21 points each, while Eskeli, along with Mike Nefs of Sacred Heart both had 14.

"Franklund had a heckuva game," pointed out Baron. His efforts included a 7-for-11 shooting night from the field and a 7-for-8 night at the line, where he has been having trouble this winter, explained Baron, who was also enthused with the play of Gary Torkelson, who came off the bench to spark the come-back with his defensive play on the Cardinals' half-court trap. In addition, he contributed offensively with 7 points.

Both teams shot very well. Plummer was 25-for-49 from the field (51 per cent) and 10-for-13 at the free throw line (77 per cent). Sacred Heart was 24-for-47 from the floor (51 per cent) and 13-for-21 from the line (62 per cent). Plummer had a slight 25-23 rebound edge and Sacred Heart had one more turnover, 23-22.

Plummer, 8-7, will host Mentor Tuesday.

Marshall County Central controlled things with its defense Friday in a 54-27 home court victory over rival Middle River.

"We played real well defensively," acknowledged Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "They obviously didn't have a good shooting night, but that's the best team defensive effort we've had this season."

Marshall County Central jumped out to an 18-8 first quarter lead and then checked Middle River on just one second quarter point in opening up a 25-9 halftime cushion. It was 41-23 after three quarters and the Skippers mustered just four fourth quarter points.

Ken Krohn scored 17 points for the winners, getting 14 of them in the first quarter. Kevin Boe scored 12 and Scott Gustafson had 10. Kevin McKeever and Tom Neumann were once again the leading Middle River scorers, but this time they had just 9 and 6 points, respectively.

Ueland praised the offensive play of Krohn, plus the defensive work of Gustafson, who was matched against McKeever much of the night, and Brent Magner, who took on Neumann when he was in the game.

Middle River was just 11-for-47 from the field, according to Marshall County Central charts, for a poor 23 per cent shooting night. The Nordics were 24-for-59, an obviously-better 41 per cent figure. The Skippers were 5-for-11 at the free throw line, where the Nordics were 6-for-12. Marshall County Central charts showed a 35-20 rebound advantage for the Nordics, with the Skippers topping the turnover figures 23-17.

Marshall County Central, 11-5, will face a District 32 test at Kennedy Tuesday, then visit Tri-County Friday for another showdown with a top District 32 contender. Middle River, losing for the ninth time in 15 games, visits Badger Tuesday.

Northland Forfeits Final Hockey Series

Northland Community college hockey team ended its 1983-84 season in inglorious fashion when the shorthanded Northmen were forced to forfeit a weekend Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) series at Rochester.

Short on numbers throughout the season, the Northland roster was hit hard by the flu last week, leaving just six skaters at a Tuesday night practice, sidelining among others, both goalies.

Northland coach Tony Dorn, Jr. said he discussed the matter with school officials and decided it was in the best interest of the players to forgo the trip.

Decision not to play Rochester gave the Yellowjackets a state playoff berth. Fourth spot in the four-team 1984 MCCC state playoff field was to have gone to the Northland-Rochester winner this weekend, with the Northmen needing a sweep of the scheduled Saturday-Sunday series to finish ahead of the Yellowjackets.

Rochester will now begin post-season play at Hibbing, the regular season MCCC pennant winner, in a two-game, total-goal series this weekend. Games will be played Friday and Saturday nights at 7:30 p.m.

In the other two-game, total-goal semifinal series, third place Rainy River will visit second place University of Minnesota-Crookston. Those games will be played Friday at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday at 1 p.m.

UMC and Rainy River just met in Crookston over the weekend in the final regular season series of the year, with the Voyageurs needing a sweep to finish ahead of the Trojans and earn the home ice advantage in the playoffs. But the two teams skated to a 6-6 overtime tie Friday and UMC won 10-4 Saturday.

Northland finished the year 6-14 overall.

Northmen Lose 102-86 To Brainerd Saturday

Post-season playoff possibilities for the Northland community college basketball team, jolted by a 78-71 home court loss to rival University of Minnesota-Crookston earlier in the week, were reduced — even — further Saturday when the Northmen lost a 102-86 Northwest Division game at Brainerd.

Northland beat Brainerd 92-74 in Thief River Falls the week before, but this time the Northmen were missing leading scorer Kyle Ramsey, who is sidelined with an ankle injury.

With the loss, Northland fell to 11-7 for the year and 5-4 in the Northwest Division, where the top two finishers in the final regular season standings earn Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) state tournament berths. Fergus Falls is the Northwest Division leader at 9-0, while Brainerd is 6-3 and UMC, like Northland, is 5-4.

Final regular season games this week will feature Fergus Falls at Northland Tuesday; Northland at UMC and Brainerd at Fergus Falls Thursday; and UMC at Brainerd Saturday.

Playoff possibility for the Northmen, explained Northland coach Chet Engelman, would include a Fergus Falls win over Brainerd; a Northland win over UMC; and a UMC win over Brainerd. If those situations arrise, the Northmen could even afford to lose to Fergus Falls and still wind up in a three-way second place tie with UMC and Brainerd. The tie would be complicated even further by the fact that all three split with each other this winter.

Anyway, back at Brainerd Saturday, the Northmen had trouble from start to finish. Ahead 33-27 with 7½ minutes left in the first half, Brainerd scored 14 unanswered points over the next three minutes to open up a 47-27 spread. It was 59-37 at halftime, and as Engelman point it, "In the second half, things just got worse instead of better."

Rod Scales had a 23-point, 26-rebound game for the Northmen, with Shorty Johnson scoring 16 points, Jon Neumann 15 and Dan Flangan 12. But Joe Boulware of Brainerd, a 6-4½ forward from Anderson, Ind. poured in 33 points and Jay Gray, a Bagley product, added 16.

"They played very well, and we didn't play very well," said Engelman. "Boulware was exceptional for them."

Northland shot 45 per cent from the field (41-for-91) and went 4-for-8 at the free throw line. Brainerd shot 52 per jent from the field (46-for-89) and was 10-for-15 at the line. Northland had a 54-47 rebound edge, but that plus-seven figure was erased by a 29-22 deficit in the turnover department.

Swimmers To Host Lumberjacks Tues.

Final home appearance of the 1983-84 season for the Lincoln high school swim team will take place Tuesday when the Prowlers host a strong Bemidji squad in a 5 p.m. dual at the Franklin middle school pool.

Thief River Falls' regular season schedule will end Friday with a 4:30 p.m. dual meet at Moorhead. Section 8 meet will be held March 2-3 at Bemidji State University.

Eight Prowlers were awarded an opportunity to compete in the Virginia invitational over the weekend, where Thief River Falls divers Todd Wing and Jeff Rosetta finished 1-2.

Hibbing won the 13-meet with 358 points, followed by Bemidji with 216, Virginia 210, Duluth East 196, Eveleth 155, Thief River Falls 154, Bibwabik 128, Chisholm 126, Duluth Denfeld-Morgan Park 77, International Falls 64, Fosston 59, Aurora-Hoyt Lakes 43 and Duluth Central 33.

Wing set a new Virginia pool record with 451.5 points in the diving competition. Rosetta was the runner-up with 340.3 points.

Other Thief River Falls places included:

Crookston Tops Prowlers 48-41

Crookston defeated Thief River Falls 48-41 Thursday in girls high school basketball action, and Prowlers coach Tom Schafer made it be known that he felt a couple of calls late in the game by the officials had more than just a little to do with the final outcome.

It was close throughout. Thief River Falls led 12-9 at the end of the first quarter and held on to a 23-21 edge at halftime. Crookston went ahead 32-31 at the end of the third quarter.

Thief River Falls was still within three points going into the final two minutes when Schafer said the officials took the game away from the Prowlers with back-to-back calls that the Pirates quickly coverted into a seven-point lead.

"It was the refs," said Schafer matter-of-factly. "Those two calls took the wind out of our sails. We could make up the three points, but not seven."

Final seven Crookston points came at the free throw line, and half of the Pirates' 16 fourth-quarter points were on free throws.

"We played well," said Schafer. "I was pleased with the way we hustled."

Michelle Olson led a balanced Thief River Falls attack with 12 points, while Michelle Puetz contributed 11 and Connie Grovum 10, with Penni Johnston adding 8. Ember Rogalla scored 13 for the Pirates, with Tami Epema getting 12.

Crookston worked the ball inside for high-percentage shots and they would up hitting 19 of 38 field goal attempts for an even 50 per cent for the game. Thief River Falls was 16-for-44 for 36 per cent. The Pirates went 10-for-16 at the free throw line, where the Prowlers were 9-for-14. Thief River Falls has a slim 29-28 rebound edge and the turnovers were even at 12 apiece.

It was the second narrow win of the season for the Pirates over the Prowlers. Crookston won here 40-36 on Jan. 12. The loss dropped the Prowlers to 9-7 going into a Tuesday game against Detroit Lakes in the Lincoln gym.

Crookston also won the preliminary games Thursday, taking a 38-34 junior varsity decision and breaking open a close freshman game at the end to win handily, 38-20. Lincoln junior varsity is 9-5 for the year. The freshmen, who will host Warren tonight (Monday) at 4:15 p.m. in the city auditorium before joining the others for a Tuesday tripleheader against Detroit Lakes, is winless in seven games.

LHS Freshmen Split Games For 4-11 Mark

Playing at Warren Thursday, Thief River Falls lost a close 33-32 decision after leading at the first three quarter stops 13,8, 22-11 and 24-21. Griff Newland scored 8 points for Thief River Falls. Jeff Steer had 11 for Warren.

In a make-up game at Grafton Saturday, Thief River Falls emerged with a 40-25 win. Grafton led 6-5 at the end of the first quarter, but Thief River Falls went ahead 15-11 at halftime, led 24-19 at the end of the third quarter and broke it open in the final eight minutes. Tom Knoff scored 10 points for the winners, with Jon Erickson contributing 9 and Brian Stark 8.

NATIONAL YOUTH HOCKEY Week was observed throughout the United States last week, and as part of the Feb. 4-12 focus on the sport, Billy Christian of Warroad, serving as the first co-chairman of National Youth Hockey Week along with his son David of the NHL Washington Capitals, was invited by the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA) to put on a hockey clinic for the 7-8-year-old Tiny Mites and the 9-10-year-old Squirts in the old arena Saturday morning. A member of the 1960 United States Gold Medal-winning Olympic hockey team at Squaw Valley, Calif., and one of the founders of Christian Brothers hockey sticks manufacturing company in Warroad, Billy Christian has been very active in hockey through his play with the Warroad Lakers and his coaching with the Warroad high school and bantam teams.

Prowlers Split Weekend Ball Games With Otters, Skippers

Underdogs made the most impressive showings during a weekend basketball doubleheader in the Lincoln high school gym as Thief River Falls threatened to pull off a major upset before losing to Fergus Falls 43-38 Friday, then the Prowlers, cast in the role of the favorite the next night against Middle River, went to the free throw line down the stretch to hold off the scrappy Skippers 48-35.

"They way we played against Fergus Falls is the way Middle River played against us," explained Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "We were a little flat tonight (Saturday). We didn't play exceptionally well, but I didn't think we played all that bad, either. Middle River had a good game plan, slowing things down, and they executed it very well."

On the other hand, Hunt and the Prowlers' fans were enthused with the showing against a strong Fergus Falls team that is 13-2 for the year.

"We had a good opportunity to win the game," pointed out Hunt. "Our kids played hard, but we missed four pretty good shots late in the game that hurt us."

Results left Thief River Falls at 6-10 for the year heading into a Friday night visit to Bemidji. Middle River is also 6-10. The Skippers play at Badger Tuesday and host Warroad Friday.

Heavily favored Fergus Falls didn't shake Thief River Falls until the very end as the Otters escaped with a 43-38 Friday night victory in a match-up of North Sub-Region 8AA teams.

Thief River Falls had a 12-8 first quarter lead and trailed just 18-17 at the end of the first half. It was deadlocked 28-28 to start the fourth quarter and it was still tied, 34-34, late in the game before the Otters pulled it out.

John Brandt of the Prowlers led all scorers with 15 points. Tim Swenson and Steve Thom of the Otters both had 14.

Thief River Falls shot 39 per cent from the field (16-for-41) while Fergus Falls shot just 32 per cent (16-for-5;). But the Otters had 21 free throw opportunities, cashing in on 11 of them (52 per cent), with the Prowlers going 6-for-9 at the line (67 per cent). Fergus Falls' pressure on the Prowlers' attempts to inbounds the ball caused plenty of problems, but Thief River Falls still showed just 12 turnovers. Fergus Falls lost the ball only five times.

Middle River . . . . . . . . . 35

Thief River Falls defeated Middle River 48-35 Saturday, but the final score was deceiving. It was not a 13-point ball game. The Prowlers expanded on a 36-30 lead with 12 straight free throws in the last 2½ minutes to pad the final margin.

For the game, Thief River Falls sank 18 of 23 free throw opportunities (78 per cent), missing the front end of a bonus situation just once.

"If Thief River would have shot even 60 per cent at the line it might have been different," noted Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "It was impressive shooting on their part. We got into a situation where we had to foul them, and they made their free throws."

Still, Sparby was more than satisified with the Skippers' showing, especially after a poor performance the night before in a 54-27 loss to rival Marshall County Central.

"I was pleased with our game," he said. "If we can play this well every week, I'd be happy."

Middle River controlled the tempo with a patient offensive attack that worked the ball around the perimeter of the taller Prowlers' defense. Unwilling to force the issue, the Prowlers stayed in a zone, making for a low-scoring affair.

Eight straight points gave Thief River Falls an early 8-2 lead, but the point spread was never any bigger until the end. Sophomore Darrin Peterson came off the bench and quickly put the Skippers back in it by canning three long shots that touched nothing but net to tie it 8-8. A fast break basket by Kevin McKeever gave the Skippers a 10-8 lead, but the Prowlers' John Brandt hit a long jumper from out front with just one second left to end the first quarter in a 10-10 draw.

Thief River Falls matched that six-point lead when guard Mark Bondy made both ends of a bonus free throw opportunity with seven seconds left after the Skippers, in going for a final shot, lost the ball on a turnover. However, they ended the first half scoring on two John Scheff free throws with just two seconds left to pull within 22-18.

There were just 10 total points scored in the third quarter, leaving the Prowlers with a 28-22 lead — again matching their biggest point spread.

What ended up being a four-point play for the Skippers really tightened things up early in the fourth quarter. McKeever, after having a shot blocked by Thief River Falls' Randy Erickson, grabbed the rebound, scored and drew a foul. He missed the chance at a three-point play, but teammate Sheldon Peterson slipped in for the rebound and scored, making it a sudden 32-30 game with exactly six minutes left.

But the Prowlers rebuilt the six-point margin, 36-30, in the next 53 seconds, and then spent the rest of the game at the free throw line.

Brandt finished with 14 points and Bondy had 10 in a balanced Thief River Falls attack that also showed Jeff Langan with 9 points and Erickson with 8. McKeever, a 5-9 senior, scored 11 for Middle River. Darrin Peterson had 8.

Neither side put up many shots. Thief River Falls was 15-for-34 (44 per cent) and Middle River was 14-for-23 (42 per cent). The Skippers wound up 7-for-14 at the free throw line. The Prowlers had a 24-15 rebound edge and Middle River had more turnovers, 10-8.

Northwomen Are Beaten By 73-28

Held to just nine first half points, the Northland community college women's basketball team wound up a 72-28 loser at Brainerd Saturday.

Brainerd led 25-9 at halftime and out-scored Northland 48-19 in the second half.

"Not very good," was a short, and to-the-point appraisal of the Northland performance by head coach Deb Jacobson. The Northwomen missed 13 first half free throws and were just 3-for-23 from the field in the first 20 minutes.

Four Brainerd scorers reached double figures, led by Kitty Brown's 17 points. No Northland scorer hit double figures, with Brenda Dahl the leader with 9 points.

Northland shot only 24 per cent from the field (11-for-46) and just 25 per cent from the free throw line (6-for-24). Brainerd shot 36 per cent from the field (33-for-91) and like Northland had trouble at the free throw line, shooting just 33 per cent (7-for-21).

Brainerd had a huge 70-35 rebound advantage and Northland topped the turnover charts 35-19.

Northland, 7-10 for the year and 2-7 in the Northwest Division, will close out its 1983-84 schedule this week with 6 p.m. games Tuesday in Thief River Falls vs. Fergus Falls and Thursday at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Plummer Girls Defeat Huskies

Jody Pahlen scored 28 points and grabbed 16 rebounds Friday as Plummer edged upsetminded Goodridge 58-54 in a make-up game from a Tuesday postponement due to wide-spread illness in the Goodridge school.

Visiting Huskies had a 16-10 first quarter lead and held on to a 33-31 halftime edge before falling behind 48-45 at the end of the third quarter. Plummer appeared to have the game well in hand with a 56-47 lead late in the game, but Goodridge rallied to within 56-54 before a couple of free throws by Nancy Jo Hesse produced the final points. The Goodridge rally was hampered by the fact that three starters were on the bench with five fouls at the end.

"We were flat," admitted Plummer coach Rick Koivisto, "but give Goodridge credit, they played hard and hung right in there."

Pahlen had 18 points in the first half when she kept the Cardinals in the game, according to Koivisto. Sheila Jaeger added 13 points to the Cardinals' total. Three Goodridge scorers hit double figures as Diana Troska scored 16, Jennie Boutain 15 and Lori Sjulestad 11.

Goodridge out-shot Plummer from the field. The Huskies were 22-for-52 (42 per cent; while the Cardinals were 21-for-71 (30 per cent). But Plummer was 16-for-25 at the free throw line (64 per cent), where Goodridge was 10-for-19, (53 per cent). Plummer owned a 45-37 rebound edge and topped the turnover charts 19-14.

Plummer, 9-5, will be at Oklee tonight (Monday), then host East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Thursday and at Stephen Friday.

Tax Assistance From IRS Given In Many Ways

For people in Minnesota there is a great deal of free federal tax help available. Here is a brief explanation of each of the services.

By Phone

The taxpayer service division will have approximately 80 incoming phone lines to answer tax questions. The lines are open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. From outside the Twin Cities dial 1-800-1040 toll-free. On the average during the filing season, IRS will get just over 7,600 phone calls each day and the lines can get very busy. The best time to call is in the mornings; Thursday and Friday are usually less busy days.

Deaf and hearing impaired people in Minnesota who have access to a TTY unit (teletypewriter) can call the IRS on a special toll-free number (1-800-428-4732) and useful only to people with a TTY unit. The lines are open from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. CST. This service is staffed with personnel specially trained to know about tax benefits and deductions for deaf and hearing impaired people.

Twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, people with a push button phone can call TELE-TAX. The IRS has recorded about 140 tapes of tax information that may answer individual questions. To use TELE-TAX in Minnesota call (612) 224-4288 on a push button phone. A prerecorded message will explain the service, the subjects available, and a three digit number for each tape subject. Use the push buttons on your phone to hear up to three tapes for each call. Depending on where you live, TELE-TAX may be a long distance call. If you itemize, the long distance charge for a TELE-TAX call is deductible.

New this year in Minnesota is the TELE-TAX service for people with a rotary dial telephone. The service is the same as TELE-TAX for push button phones except that it is limited to normal business hours. TELE-TAX for people with a rotary dial phone is available Monday through Friday from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. In Minnesota the number is (612) 244-5271.

Beginning in January people can call IRS to get additional copies of federal tax forms. The number is (612) 244-7461 and can be called 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The "forms only" line is a new service this year in Minnesota.

In Person

For walk in service, the closest office is at Bemidji a trained tax specialist will be on hand in Bemidji at the federal building, 522 Minnesota street, on Mondays from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

As A Group

One of the easiest ways to get free help with your taxes this year is through an individual income tax workshop put on by the Internal Revenue service. The main idea behind a workshop is to help a group of people at a convenient time and location.

A workshop, usually lasting about two hours, can be scheduled during or after normal business hours and even on a weekend. Last year the tax agency put on just over 105 workshops for approximately 2,400 people. In a typical workshop a trained tax specialist from the IRS will guide a group of people through their own tax return.

People coming to a workshop are asked to bring with them for example, the tax package that came in the mail, all W-2 forms and 1099 forms showing wages, interest and dividends earned, plus records for any itemized deductions.

The workshop can be tailored to a shorter, lecture-type format covering the highlights of the tax law changes. This type of session is suitable for lunch-time or evening meetings.

People With Special Tax Needs

For the past 13 years the two tax agencies in Minnesota, the IRS and the Minnesota department of revenue, have sponsored an all-volunteer tax help program for people with special tax needs. Elderly, low-income, handicapped and non-English speaking people can get their federal and state tax returns completed free of charge through VITA (volunteer income tax assistance). The two agencies and AARP (American Association of Retired Persons) co-sponsor a similar program geared specifically to the needs of older Americans.

TCE (Tax Counseling for the Elderly) is set up to help people over 60 years old although it will help others. At this writing, there are almost 150 VITA-TCE locations, (banks, libraries, churches, community centers) throughout the state where you can go for free tax help. For the location nearest you and its hours of operation call the IRS's tax information services at 291-1422 or toll-free, 1-800-424-1040.

By Mail

Additional tax forms and any one of almost 90 free publications are available by using the order blank found in your tax package. One of the booklets might be nick-named "everything you wanted to know about tax help service." It's officially called the "Taxpayers Guide to IRS Information and Assistance." Publication 910 describes the IRS services available to help people prepare their tax returns or to receive assistance. The booklet explains, how to resolve questions on bills, letters and notices from the IRS, and assists taxpayers with questions concerning their accounts and the status of refunds they expect.

Other items of interest in the publication are explanations on the collection of taxes, examination of returns, and how to file an amended return. Further, the guide describes many of the free publications that are most often requested by taxpayers and includes a handy order blank.

At The Library

Just over 200 libraries throughout the state are offering some unique tax help services. Depending on library policy you may be able to check out an audio cassette that explains, line-by-line, how to complete the 1040, 1040A, and 1040EZ forms. Libraries have a number of reproducible tax forms. It's as simple as asking for the master form you need and running it through a photocopy machine. Most libraries have a nominal charge for the use of their copy machine.

On Television

The PBS stations in Minnesota will be carrying two "tax clinics" in 1984. On Sunday, February 12, a two-hour program will be on the air from 2 to 4 p.m. The first hour will go line-by-line through the 1040A and 1040EZ. The second hour will cover the 1040 and related schedules.

On Sunday, March 25, from 2 to 3 p.m. another PBS program especially for people 55 and over will be aired.

IRS tax information phone lines will be open during both programs so viewers can call in with their tax questions. The TTY toll-free phone service will also be available during both programs. The February 12 program will be closed-captioned for deaf and hearing impaired people.

For more information, consult your local television listings.

Farm Price Index Rises From Year Ago

Mid-January index of prices received by Minnesota farmers at 140 was one per cent above December of 1983 and 12 per cent above the index a year ago, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Prices were lower than December for most major crop commodities, but prices were higher for oats, flaxseed, all hay, potatoes and sunflowers.

Livestock prices increased for all commodities except milk and wool, which declined. All-time high prices were received by farmers for sunflowers and eggs. The turkey price was the highest since November of 1980, but the milk cow replacement price was the lowest since December of 1978.

The crops index fell two per cent to 141 during the month but was 29 per cent above the index a year earlier. The mid-January prices and the changes from last month are: All wheat, $3.74 per bushel, down six cents from the revised December estimate; corn, $2.92 per bushel, down five cents; oats, $1.71 per bushel, up five cents; barley, $2.35 per bushel, down eight cents; soybeans, $7.25 per bushel, down 27 cents; flaxseed, $6.84 per bushel, up 37 cents; potatoes averaged $5.20 per hundredweight for all grades, up 60 cents.

All hay was up $2 per ton to $71; alfalfa hay, $75 per ton, was unchanged while other hay at $58 per ton was up $6. All sunflowers at $14.40 per hundredweight were up 60 cents from the revised December price. Dry edible beans were down $3.50 to $21.20 per hundredweight.

The meat animal index at 134 was eight per cent above last month but seven per cent below a year ago. All hogs at $49.40 per hundredweight were up $4.40 from a month earlier. Beef cattle averaged $45 per hundredweight, up $2.40. Calves were up $3.50 to $57 per hundredweight. Sheep brought $15.50 per hundredweight, up $1.40. Lambs were up $2.60 to $61.80 per hundredweight.

The dairy index fell one per cent during the month to 145. This was three per cent below the index last year. The preliminary milk price at $12.80 per hundredweight was down five cents from the revised-December price.

The poultry and egg index at 157 was up 11 per cent from last month and 69 per cent above a year ago. Turkeys were 45 cents per pound live weight, up two cents from a month earlier. Table market eggs brought 85 cents per dozen for all grades in mid-January, up 13 cents from mid-December and 45 cents above a year earlier.

Three Firsts Are Set In Minnesota

Minnesota has set three firsts including having the only minority-owned rail line operating company in the nation join in the acquisition and operation of a rail line.

State Transportation Commissioner Richard P. Braun said the purchase of a 94.5-mile line from Norwood to Hanley Falls from the Chicago and North Western Transportation Co. (C&NW) for $1,831,000 set these firsts:

—Formation of the Minnesota Valley Transportation Co. by a group of black investors, the first in the nation to join in the acquisition and operation of a rail line.

—Use of state bond money for the first time in participating in the acquisition of a rail line.

Participants and their share of the costs are: state, $700,000; Carver, Redwood and Sibley counties, which comprise the Minnesota Valley Regional Rail Authority, which will own the line, $370,000; Minnrail, Inc., composed of 16 shippers, $130,000; and Minnesota Valley Transportation Co., which will be officed in Redwood Falls to operate the line, $631,000.

New rail service will begin operations in February.

The rail authority contracts with the operator to run the short line. If operations cease, the state will try to purchase the line for rail banking for future economic development, said Braun. However, if the line is abandoned, and there is no potential use there, the state's share of the purchase cost will be returned. Small business administration is guaranteeing the loan to the transportation company.

Braun praised Lt. Gov. Marlene Johnson's assistance in the negotiations with the C&NW. She urged the sale to the Minnesota Valley Transportation Co. to "maintain the vitality" of the area's economy.

"We are happy as a state to help the regional rail authority to contract with a private investor to continue operations on the rail line. Here is a good example of government and private business working hand in hand to expand the economy," said Braun.

This particular rail line was selected, Braun said, because it was on the list for rail banking. There is an opportunity for development because of kaolin clay in the Morton area. This material is used in paper processing and the usual method is to ship the processed clay by rail. Agricultural products and commodities such as grains and fertilizers will continue to be shipped on the line, he said.

Floyd Hansvick, Belview, regional rail authority chairman, said, "We have plans to upgrade the line. These improvements could result in lower rail costs and possible expansion of industries and employment opportunities."

Plan Ahead To Escape Hotel Fire Safely

Take a few minutes to plan ahead when checking into a hotel — it could mean the difference between life and death in the event of fire. According to the Minnesota safety council, a few minutes are all you need to inspect your surroundings and increase your chance for survival.

The safety council advises travelers to plan ahead and to keep their cool in the event of fire.

Plan ahead for safety:

—Before checking in, find sprinkler systems, smoke detectors, fire alarms and extinguishers. If the hotel doesn't have them, would you really care to stay there? Ask the switchboard operator how guests are notified in the event of an emergency.

—On the way to your room, look for two fire exits on your floor. They should be clear of any obstruction.

—Count the doorways and other features between your room and the exit and memorize the distance and location. In a fire, the hallway may be dark and exit lights may not be visible through smoke, so hotel guests will have to rely on feel and memory.

—Note the placement of furniture in the room so that in darkness or heavy smoke you can maneuver around it.

—Try the windows. Do they open? Can you exit from them to another roof or ledge adequate for standing on?

—Make sure each person in the family knows how to work the locks on windows, hotel room door and fire exits.

—Get into the habit of leaving the hotel key in the same place each time so it's easy to find in the dark. Best place is near your bed.

In a fire, keep cool:

—Grab the key and crawl to door.

—Feel the door; if it's hot, don't open it.

—If door is cool, open cautiously. Check the hall; if it's smoky, stay low.

—Don't use the elevator. Use the better of the two fire exits on your floor.

—Go to the ground level if possible; otherwise use the roof.

—If door is hot, try to exit room from window to roof or ledge; otherwise stay in room. Signal window location.

—Phone for help.

—Fill bathtub with water for firefighting.

—Place wet towels around door.

Available for loan to community organizations is a 22-minute film, "Get Out Alive," on hotel fires. Interested persons may write to the Minnesota safety council at 555 Wabasha St., Suite 102, St. Paul, MN 55102 or call (612) 291-9150 for additional information.

HIGHLANDING

Florence Hamm enjoyed a call on Sunday from her daughter-in-law and son, Jeanne and Walter Hamm of Wichita, Kansas.

Mr. and Mrs. Orlin Hanson attended church services, the Ekelund annual meeting and dinner following on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Coan and Michelle were Monday evening supper guests at the Ronnie Haugen home.

Mrs. Carl Johnson (Lillian Johnson) of Largo, Florida called on Tuesday to visit with Mr. and Mrs. Bert Coan.

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
January 17, 1984

Pursuant to adjournment, the Pennington County Board of Commissioners met in the Commissioners' room of the Courthouse in Thief River Falls on Tuesday, January 17, 1984. Members present: Hoffman, Tasa, Koop, Stenberg and Grabanski. All present.

Greg Sandahl, head custodian, met with the Board to discuss his position and the hours he works. The Board felt he should have a more regular schedule.

Morris Howick and Harrey Oen, Committee on Aging, were in to present to the Board the Fund Drive for a Senior Citizens' building. Requested the County match the City of Thief River Falls' donation of $1500, to help organize the fund drive. Request will be brought up at the Revenue Sharing Budget Hearing.

Daniel Hartwig and Mark Krause, representing Danial Hartwig & Assoc., a safety & health consultant firm, talked to the Board about a possible asbestos hazard in the courthouse. They would inspect the building to find out if there are any health hazards and then develop a plan of action to alleviate this hazard. The cost would be $400. initial cost and $100 per building inspected. No action taken at this time.

Head Custodian Sandahl advised the Board that the thermostats throughout the Courthouse should be checked and calibrated. Costs will be checked into.

Joyce McCabe, Thune Upham Real Estate representative, appeared before the Board on leasing space in the Carnegie Business Center in the old library building. The Board did not feel that extra space was needed at this time.

Attorney Olin discussed the correspondence received pertaining to the Drewes contract.

At 2:00 p.m. the Community Development Rehabilitation Hearing convened. Leona Humphrey, Roy Jorgenson, Earl Frazer, Board members, David Olin and Auditor Olson were present. Multi-County Housing would handle the funds with Inter County. The state suggests that eventually the county should have a Housing Assistance Plan and a Comprehensive Community Development Plan developed. Hearing adjourned at 2:20 p.m.

The Board then preceeded to conduct a public hearing for allocation of Revenue Sharing Funds that have been indicated as being provided by the Federal Government and for public participation in having access to and commenting on the entire County Budget as it relates to Revenue Sharing. The Chairman announced the purpose of Public Hearing. No one appeared as a result of the Public Notice. The Auditor indicated that the sum of $161,248.00 would be received for the 15th Entitlement Period covering October 1, 1983 to September 30, 1984. Motion by Commissioner Stenberg, seconded by Commissioner Grabanski to appropriate $1,500.00 to the Committee on Aging to initiate the Fund Raising Drive for the Senior Citizen's Center to be paid from Revenue Sharing. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Koop introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED that the Allocation of Revenue Sharing Funds for the 15th Entitlement Period be as follows:

Proposed Expenditure Multi-purpose & General Government, Capital Improvement of $26,000.00, Maintenance, $3,748.00; Library, Maintenance, $19,965.00; Education Service (Historical Society), Maintenance, $6,000.00; Social Services for Ages & Poor, Maintenance, $4,896.22; and Highway Equipment, Capital Improvement, $100,638.78.

Also the allocation of $13,055.74 of interest accured through the year be allocated as follows: Highway Equipment, $13,055.74.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Grabanski and upon vote, declared unanimously adopted.

Sheriff Richards appeared before the Board to discuss the Civil Defense workshop being held on February 1 at the Grand Forks Air Force Base. In 1985 the '911' State Law is programmed to be in effect statewide. Financial obligation for the county to implement this program may be as high as $8,400.00.

Commissioner Stenberg introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED that the Ambulance Contract with Life Star Ambulance Service be accepted with the budget subsidy of $14,183.88 for the year 1984.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Hoffman and upon vote, declared unanimously adopted.

County Assessor DeHaan presented application for adjustments of taxes due to computer error to abate penalty and interest: Les Snetting — No statement issued by computer — mobile home. Motion by Commissioner Hoffman, seconded by Commissioner Stenberg that all applications presented be approved. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Grabanski left the meeting at 3:15 p.m.

County Engineer Olson was in to discuss the regraveling of county roads. The highway department will need approximately 36,000 tons of gravel for this year's regraveling program. Upon motion by Commissioner Hoffman seconded by Commissioner Koop, the Engineer and Auditor were authorized and instructed to advertise for county-wide regraveling of road bids with said bids to be opened on February 28, 1984 at 2:00 p.m. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Commissioner Hoffman, seconded by Commissioner Koop, the County Engineer and Auditor were instructed to advertise for bids to be let at 2:15 p.m. on February 28, 1984, for bridge replacement on the following bridges: Bridge 92788 — Rocksbury County Road No. 57 — County Ditch No. 21; Bridge 92789 — River Falls County Road No. 55 — County Ditch No. 16. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Koop introduced the following resolution and moved for its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED That the County Highway Engineer proceed to perform the required tasks for the replacement of the following bridges and the necessary approach work: BR No. L0229 C.S.A.H. 4 and C.D. No. 68; BR No. L0258 Co. Rd No. 59 and C.D. No. 68; BR No. L0261 Co. Rd No. 61 and C.D. No. 68.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Hoffman and upon vote, declared unanimously adopted.

County Engineer has obtain quotes on a new engine for unit No. 250. Board felt we should buy a new engine for this unit. Engineer will check to see if to what degree these quotes are complete as to manifolds, etc.

Discussed the plowing of private driveways by the county highway department. Board felt that we should continue plowing such driveways for a set fee per hour.

Motion by Commissioner Hoffman, seconded by Commissioner Koop to send a resolution to the State Legislature promoting accelerating exise tax to Road Users' Fund. Motion unanimously carried.

Jerry Sandstrom was in to discuss economic development grant for the pellet plant. Commissioner Stenberg introduced the following resolution and moved for its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED That the County Board does hereby autorize the City of Thief River Falls to make an economic development grant application for a zone extending two miles out of the City Limits of Thief River Falls.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Hoffman and upon vote, declared unanimously adopted.

The Board approved the purchase of a calculator from Tony Dorn, Inc. for an amount of $152.10 for use in the Motor Vehicle Department.

Moved by Commissioner Stenberg, seconded by Commissioner Koop to appoint Dick Tyler to the Inter County Nursing Committee Board and also to the Executive Board. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Commissioner Koop seconded by Commissioner Hoffman to appoint Richard Spyhalski and Diane Freeman to the Quin County Community Advisory Board. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Commissioner Stenberg, second by Commissioner Koop to approve the minutes of the meetings held on November 21, 22, December 13, 20 and 27, 1983, as mailed. Motion unanimously carried.

Livestock Inspector Hazard's 1983 annual report was accepted and ordered filed.

The following bills were read, audited and approved for payment:

LIVESTOCK FARM FOR SALE BY UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

A 16-acre livestock farm, designed for hogs but convertible to dairy, located 5 miles west of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, generally described as follows:

A parcel of land, 16.0 acres more or less, in the W½SE¼, Section 3, Twp. 153N, Range 44 W. in Pennington County, Minnesota.

LAND: No crop acres.

BUILDINGS: 1½ story house built in 1950. Two car garage built in 1974. 3500 bushel steel bin, 70'x90' pole shed and 32'x80' pole shed built in the early 1970's, 40'x150' hog barn designed for crate farrowing, nursery and finishing.

TERMS: Cash or 20 per cent down payment with up to 25 years repayment, at an interest rate of 10.75%.

METHOD OF SALE: By sealed bids on FmHA Form 465-10, with deposit of not less than 5 per cent of the bid in the form of cashier's check or certified check. Bid forms, information as to when the unit may be inspected, conditions, deed, etc., may be obtained from the County Supervisor, Farmers Home Administration, Box 486, N. Dale Street, Thief River Falls, Minnesota 56701.

All bids and deposits must be mailed to the County Supervisor, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Farmers Home Administration, Box 486, Thief River Falls, Minnesota 56701. Bids will be accepted until 2:00 P.M. on February 15, 1984 and then publicly opened at the above address at 2:30 P.M. on the same day. The Government reserves the right to reject any or all bids. After opening date, if no bids have been received or if all bids are rejected, a sale will be negotiated at the best price obtainable.

Possession of the property shall be granted to successful bidders with passage of title in accordance with the terms of Form FmHA 465-10. The successful bidder will take possession no later than 60 days following the acceptance of bid by the Government for cash sales or a determination of credit worthiness for sales on terms.

The property will be sold without regard to race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin or marital status. The property is not located in a flood plain area.

Child Print Program Has 793 Take Part

Operation Child Print conducted by the Pennington county law enforcement center in Thief River Falls elementary schools last week resulted in 793 students having their fingerprints recorded on identification cards, according to Ken Froschheiser, chief of police.

An additional 12 young people were fingerprinted at the law enforcement center to bring the total to 805. Students brought the identification cards home with them since no permanent records are to be retained by the schools or law enforcement authorities.

Chief Froschheiser said that school records indicate first day enrollment in kindergarten through fifth grade was 980. The total of 793 fingerprinted is considered a good percentage, particularly because there were a number of absences due to illness when the fingerprinting was done. Because about 60 students were missed at Northrop school — 42 of whom were absent and nearly 20 who didn't bring back their signed identification cards, an additional fingerprinting session will be conducted there Tuesday.

Also planned this week are sessions for 26 students at the Seventh-day Adventist school Wednesday, 91 at Our Saviour's Christian academy Thursday and 106 at St. Bernard's Catholic school Friday.

Those fingerprinted last week included 299 at Washington elementary, 231 at Northrop and 263 at Mark Twain.

Gloria Swanson Earns Degree In Gerontology

Gloria J. Swanson of Minneapolis and formerly of Thief River Falls, received a master of science degree in gerontology from the University of Minnesota during December ceremonies, according to Dr. Daniel F. Detzner, director of aging studies. In its fifth year at the university, the interdisciplinary program is designed for professionals in long-term care, medicine, social work, counseling, theology and education who plan to specialize in working with the older population.

During private ceremonies for students in the program, Swanson received special recognition for her work on the life-review process with 90-year-old widows in public high-rises, research on dynamics and support systems within families of older adults, and observations and studies on medical professionals' inter-action with older persons at hospitals and clinics.

A paper about the creative writing class she taught to people diagnosed with senile dementia will be included in a communication text published by the university. Announcement was made that Swanson received a study fellowship at Ethel Percy Andrus Gerontology center, University of Southern California for 1984-85, working towards her PhD in gerontology.

Swanson is currently completing a required six-month administrative practicum as director of health services at Senior Citizen Centers of Greater Minneapolis, Inc., responsible for coordination of nursing services in 44 public housing high-rises; development of health education programs at three centers; facilitation of stroke clubs and chronic illness support groups; leadership of seminars on family roles and dynamics; and organization of professional growth groups for social service staff.

Swanson taught in Thief River Falls public schools from 1970 to 1978 where she developed one of the state's first "Adopt-a-Grandparent" programs and was co-developer of this city's home-delivered meals program.

Ag Committee Chairman Is Cheese Backer

If the label on a frozen pizza lists cheese as an ingredient, that cheese should be 100 per cent real rather than an artificial substitute, according to State Representative Steve Wenzel, chairman of the House agriculture committee.

Current USDA regulations allow labels to identify cheese as an ingredient when only 10 per cent of the cheese content is real and the other 90 per cent artificial cheese made from casein, a dairy substitute.

Wenzel sent a letter to U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block urging his support of the proposed USDA rule change which would require manufacturers of products such as frozen pizzas to use at least 50 per cent real cheese.

The agriculture committee chairman said he looks forward to the day when regulations will require the use of 100 per cent real cheese, but that the current proposal is at least a positive step in that direction. "Dairy farmers believe the slight extra cost for the real ingredient would be more than offset by increased consumer satisfaction and the purchasing for much more nutritious products," he wrote to Block.

"This issue is of concern to Minnesota dairy farmers as well as convenience food consumers," he pointed out. "Current regulations fail to assure dairy farmers and cheese processors of full access to a traditional market. The proposed USDA standards go a long way toward correcting marketplace inequities and will also greatly improve consumer confidence in the uniform quality of food products."

Wayne Nelsons Marshall Co. Dairy Couple

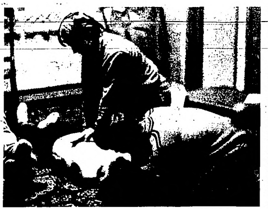
Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Nelson of rural Grygla have been selected as Marshall county's 1984 outstanding dairy couple and will be honored during the Red River Valley winter shows at a dairy banquet Friday evening.

According to Ray Thompson, Marshall county extension director, the Nelsons operate a dairy, small grain and timothy seed operation. They presently milk 30 grade Holsteins with a herd average of 19,560 pounds of milk and 701 pounds of butterfat.

Nelson is active in the Red Lake county DHIA where he serves as chairman of the board. He is secretary of the Grygla Co-op Creamery association and member of the Marshall county American Dairy association board.

Mrs. Nelson serves as councilor of the Lull-A-While homemakers club and member of the East Marshall homemakers council. They are also members of Grace Lutheran church and have one son, Keith.



TIMING THEIR EFFORTS as a team, Richard Kuhnley administered mouth to mouth artificial respiration while Dori Grandbois performed closed-chest heart massage on a specially designed "Resusci-Annie" dummy recently. Kuhnley, a respiratory therapist at Northwestern Hospital and a certified CPR instructor, provided training in cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) to five junior and three adult leaders of the Sanders 4-H club on January 12, as the first step of a club project to certify all of its members in the life-saving technique. PRIMARY division winner in the Minnesota Music Teachers association district piano contest at Moorhead on February 4 was Jami Dehnert (seated, right), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doug Dehnert, St. Hilaire. Junior A division winners were Karlace Johnson (seated), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnson; Brian Lehrer, (standing left), son of Karen Rud and Mike Lehrer; and Ellen Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Olson, all of Thief River Falls. All are piano students of Marcia Knuttila.

Jobless Rate Rises From Nov. To Dec.

Minnesota's unemployment rate in December was 7.5 per cent, up seven-tenths of a percentage point from the 6.8 per cent rate in November, according to Commissioner Barbara Beerhalter of the Minnesota department of economic security.

Since 1970, the unemployment rate has increased from November to December an average of .8 of a percentage point. However, the December 1983 rate is 1.2 points below the December 1982 rate, Beerhalter said. Nationally, the unemployment rate for the month was eight per cent.

Total employment in the state dipped 1.4 per cent in December, due primarily to a normal slowdown in agriculture and construction at this time of year, Wayne Graner, department analyst, said.

Compared to a year ago, total employment in Minnesota rose 5.3 per cent, Graner added, reflecting the trend of continued improvement in the overall economy.

The nonagricultural wage and salary employment level held up well in December, Graner said, and was unchanged from the previous month. Since 1977, there has been an average November-to-December drop of 4,200 in this employment level. The month-to-month drop was as large as 8,800 in 1982.

Retail trade posted the biggest employment gain (7,500 persons) and was more than double the November-December increase of a year ago.

The construction industry had a decrease in employment of 8,300 persons, while the iron mining industry managed to recall 400 workers from layoff, Graner said.

The number of unemployed persons in Minnesota in December was 166,400, up 15,600 from November and down 19,300 from December a year ago.

Minnesota's labor force in December was 2,212,800 workers, down 12,700 from November and up 83,800 from December last year.

Compared to December a year ago, the size of the Minnesota civilian labor force increased by 3.9 per cent; and the number of unemployed workers decreased by 10.4 per cent.

Average December weekly earnings of production workers in the manufacturing sector increased from $389.54 to $393.73 over the month, as a result of a slightly longer work week (40.3 vs. 40.2 hours in November) and a slightly higher hourly wage ($9.77 vs. $9.69 in November), Graner said.

The unemployment rate pertains to the entire labor force and is not used to determine whether unemployment insurance benefits will be extended beyond the 26-week maximum. The unemployment rate among persons covered by unemployment insurance is used to determine whether the benefit payments will be extended.

Nursing Board Meeting Set

Marshall county nursing board (NCNB) meeting scheduled for February 21 has been canceled. Next meeting will resume Tuesday, March 20 at 4 p.m. in the county auditors office of the Marshall county courthouse in Warren.

VFW Auxiliary Offers $2,000 Scholarship

Applications are now being accepted by the department of Minnesota Veterans of Foreign Wars ladies auxiliary for the annual Marcella Arnold nursing scholarship.

The scholarship was established at the 1981 state convention in honor of Mrs. Arnold who served as a loyal and dedicated volunteer for 28 years at the Minneapolis Veterans administration medical center. She died Aug. 8, 1980.

The $2,000 award is to be used for the final school year of the student. The nursing student must be currently enrolled in an associate degree program, an accredited nursing school or a baccalaureate school of nursing.

Applicants may be any veteran, any person eligible to join the Veterans of Foreign Wars or ladies auxiliary, any children or grandchildren of Veterans of Foreign Wars or ladies auxiliary members, and must reside in the state of Minnesota.

Recipients of the scholarship will be obligated to work in a Minnesota Veterans administration medical center or a Minnesota veterans home for a period of one year, if a position is available.

Applications should be filed in the spring previous to the final year of schooling. Forms will be available at all nursing schools and must be returned to the Department of Minnesota Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary, State Veterans Service Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Application deadline is April 1, 1984. Final decision will be made by department president Mrs. Donna Quart and the scholarship committee, with the winner to be notified by personal contact or by mail and named at the state convention in June.

Committee To Search For I-R 1-B Candidate

Independent - Republican search committee will meet Tuesday, February 21, at 8 p.m. at Northland Foods in Thief River Falls to consider candidates for state representative in District 1B. The office is now held by Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls.

All interested potential candidates and persons who have suggestions for potential candidates are invited to be in attendance. Further information is available from Bruce Elseth of Newfolden at 449-3065.

Lower Jobless Benefits Paid In Minnesota

Unemployment insurance benefits paid in Minnesota under the regular state program totaled $333.9 million in 1983, down from $432.1 million paid during 1982, commissioner Barbara Beerhalter of the Minnesota department of economic security reports.

Beerhalter said the department collected $246 million in unemployment insurance taxes for the fiscal year ending Oct. 1, 1983. (Calendar year figures were not available.)

In addition to benefits paid out under the regular program, $133.7 million was paid out under federal and federal-state programs offering extended benefits beyond the regular state program's 26-week maximum payment period. Of the additional extended benefits, almost $115 million was federally funded.

In the first weeks of 1983, new unemployment claims surpassed the levels of 1982. By the end of February, however, new claims had fallen below the previous year's levels and remained significantly lower the rest of 1983.

By the end of the year, the 1983 total of 153,000 new claims filed had fallen 25 per cent below the 1982 total of 204,000. During 1983, persons receiving final payments totaled 78,598, reflecting a decline of 3.6 per cent from the previous year.

This small annual decline is not representative of the drastic shifts that occurred during the year, Beerhalter said. In January of 1983, more than twice as many claimants were exhausting benefits than during the corresponding weeks of 1982. From April until July, however, the 1983 figures were slightly lower than in 1982. During the last half of the year, final payments fell further and by December were running at about half the previous year's figures.

To establish a minimum unemployment insurance claim under the regular program, a claimant must have worked a minimum of 15 weeks and earned at least $94 each week. Total benefits paid to a claimant are determined by the number of weeks worked and the dollar amount earned by the claimant during the year prior to the new claim.

A claimant can receive from 11 to 26 weeks of unemployment compensation at a rate from $54 to $191 per week under the regular state program. A claimant receives final payment when the funds in the claimant's account are exhausted.

In Eight Northwest Counties . . .

Dairy Diversion To Total $3.25 Million

Although participation in the milk diversion program conducted through the U.S. department of agriculture met with only modest acceptance on a national level, payments under the program in eight northwestern Minnesota counties will total nearly $3.25 million during the 15-month program.

A compilation of sign-ups and projected payments assuming full compliance by the Times indicates that Roseau county will receive $751,283; East Polk $446,275, Pennington $386,095, Marshall $380,157, Clearwater $361,152, Red Lake $314,620, Beltrami $297,464, West Polk $195,336 and Kittson $112,356.

Because the payment to be made is $10 per hundredweight of milk reduced from the established dairy farm base, the sign-up in these counties will cut milk production over the next 15-month period by 324,474 hundredweight.

Less than a third of the estimated number of dairy producers in the eight counties (East and West Polk counted as only county) signed up for the program, agreeing to reduce their production from eight to 30 per cent. Nationally only about 12 per cent of the milk producers agreed to participate and the total milk production in the U.S. would be reduced by only 5.5 per cent under the program.

Objective of the program was to cut the total milk production by 23 per cent of the normal flow to reduce surpluses which are costly to the government in processing and storage fees. Nonparticipants will help pay for the program through a 50 cents per hundredweight assessment on milk sales (participants will also be assessed at the same rate for the milk they continue to sell) and the total assessment is expected to be about $1 billion.

The law also reduced the government's milk price support by 50 cents to $12.60 on December 1, 1983, and authorizes further 50-cent cuts if considered needed on April 1 and July 1, 1985.

In Minnesota there were a total of 5,400 dairy farmers who signed up for the program — about 22 per cent of the state's estimated 25,000 dairymen. Diversion payments are expected to total about $62 million in the state or an average of $11,481 per farmer who agreed to reduce production.

In the eight northwestern Minnesota counties there are an estimated 987 dairy farmers and a total of 283 signed up to participate in the program — slightly under 29 per cent. A county by county summary is as follows:

Pennington

Forty-five of an estimated 120 producers signed up for the program, representing a base for the last five quarters of production of 156,631 hundredweight. They agreed to reduce production by 38,609 hundredweight or 24.6 per

Lt. Gov. To Be Honored Here This Monday

Project Heritage Design, Inc. is planning a reception and dinner honoring Lieutenant Governor Marlene Johnson on Monday, February 20, at Best Western Inn, Thief River Falls.

Social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m. Johnson will give a formal address at 8:30 p.m. on small business strategies and community involvement.

Johnson chaired the governor's council on rural development that funded Project Heritage Design in 1983, with a grant to develop a cottage quilt industry providing employment opportunities for rural women in Region I. Quilts, wall hangings and pillows are presently being produced in homes for the company, and a nationwide marketing system is being developed. Products are presently being sold at Gabberts and Daytons in Minneapolis.

Reservations for the dinner may be made by calling the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce at 681-3720. Cost is $8. Persons wanting to come only for the lieutenant governor's presentation at 8:30 should also call for a reservation.

Treasure Hunt Clue Released

Thief River Falls Jaycees begin their treasure hunt this week, as part of Winterfest activities in the city.

Hidden somewhere within the city limits is a $100 prize, which can be claimed by whoever is lucky enough (or good enough at understanding the clues) to find it. First clue released by the cluemasters is "Think Spring."

Pre-Schoolers To Be Checked February 21-24

Annual pre-school screening clinic to assist parents in preparing their children to enter school, will be conducted from February 21 to 24, by the Thief River Falls public school system.

Parents of children between the ages of three-and-a-half and four-and-a-half, who have not been contacted by the school system, should call Ida Frodahl between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. at 681-2700 extension 240.

Trained professionals from both the public school system and the county health service will check vision, hearing, speech, language and development. Screening is voluntary and free of charge.

Further information is available by contacting the office of the director of special education, Thief River Falls public schools, phone 681-2700, extension 386.

Fifth Session Of Art Series Is Thursday

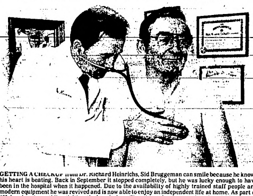
Art series fifth session will be held Thursday, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Northwest regional library meeting room. Film scheduled to be shown is "Of Time, Tombs, and Treasure: The Treasurers of Tutankhamun." Art series is free to the public and refreshments will be served.

Film is approximately 27 minutes in length and Pat Dunning will act as commentator after the film, leading the audience in discussion. This film was obtained from the national gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. The art series was made possible by the co-sponsorship of Northwest regional library, the Thief River Falls community arts council, Zehlians and American association of university women.

Help A Heart Month Is Special For Bruggemans

TAKING ADVANTAGE of the recent warm weather, Sid Bruggeman and his wife Helen took a walk outside their home to admire the frosty scenery. They are especially appreciative of being able to spend time together, because Sid nearly lost his life to a heart attack last September. Because having the proper equipment available at Northwestern Hospital was so instrumental in saving Sid's life, they are urging community support of the "vanishing teas" being sponsored by the hospital auxiliary to pay for that equipment. Persons who would like to contribute toward that effort may contact either Valerie Larson at 681-5699 or Ann Duckworth at 681-5569.



GETTING A CHECKUP from Dr. Richard Heinrichs, Sid Bruggeman can smile because he knows his heart is beating. Back in September it stopped completely, but he was lucky enough to have been in the hospital when it happened. Due to the availability of highly trained staff people and modern equipment he was revived and is now able to enjoy an independent life at home. As part of "Help a heart month" activities, the hospital auxiliary is conducting a series of vanishing teas to finish paying for some of that heart monitoring equipment. Persons who would like to contribute toward that effort may contact either Valerie Larson at 681-5699 or Ann Duckworth at 681-5569.

With warm weather to remind us that spring is just around the corner, we san say "It's great to be alive." But for Sid Bruggeman of Thief River Falls, that statement holds even more meaning, because for a short period of time, he wasn't alive.

Sid was lucky. He was at Northwestern Hospital in Thief River Falls on November 22, when his heart stopped and he temporarily "died." Because highly trained staff people and modern electronic equipment were right there, they were able to restart his heart and make him what he is today. . . alive! In gratitude for that opportunity, Sid and his wife Helen agreed to share their story in hopes of encouraging people to cooperate with fund rasing efforts being conducted to pay for some of the monitoring equipment that makes surviving heart failure possible.

According to Dr. Richard Heinrichs, Sid's medical history includes nearly every condition and treatment that can affect a heart patient. He had his first heart attack in 1964, at age 42. He did reasonably well until 1974 when he began to have angina pectoris, and suffered a second heart attack. He continued to have angina and developed a weakened area of his heart that balloned out into an aneurysm. In July of 1975 he underwent bypass surgery and had the weakened area of his heart removed in a procedure called an angioectomy. Over the years he has continued to require medication to control his angina.

In September 1983, Sid was undergoing a thorough evaluation of his lung at Northwestern Hospital. While walking down the corrideor with his wife on September 22 he had a sudden cardiac arrest at about 10:30 a.m. "Code Blue" procedures were initiated almost immediately by nurses and medical staff trained in advanced cardiopulmonary resuscitation, who gave him artifical respiration and cardiac massage. An electrical shock was directed through his heart to establish normal rhythm, and he was immediately transferred to the intensive care unit.

Although the immediate crisis was handled within minutes, Sid had to overcome

EDITORIAL EDITORIAL

We're Following Up

In a front page editorial about two weeks ago, we commented on the order issued by an official of the U.S. Department of Agriculture that county and state offices of the ASCS were not to release information on the dairy program sign-up. The sign-up had been completed, county offices had compiled their statistics for federal reporting, and our contention was that the results were public information.

We know that county office personnel in this area, who have had good relationships with the news media for many years, were disappointed and perhaps even a little embarrassed that they couldn't release the information they had available. Several even questioned the authority of the federal official to put a lid on the information until totals were released in Washington, but they abided by his directive.

So we called the United States Department of Agriculture in Washington and asked for Roy Cozart, the acting deputy administrator for state and county operations, who had signed the order (Notice LD-203) forbidding release of information. It was the day after the sign-up program results were announced in Washington by Secretary John Block.

Mr. Cozart assured us that the county offices could indeed now release the information on their county sign-ups. "After the Secretary announced the sign-up," he said, "everything is open then. We thought they (county office personnel) would understand that."

The message apparently wasn't very clear, however. When we assured one county director that we had received clearance from Cozart by phone, he still needed to contact another county director to be sure he could give out the information. And a couple of other county office workers were unsure about reporting the totals we requested.

Asked why county totals couldn't be made available immediately upon end of the sign-up period, Cozart said that ". . . we had to look at the national before we could determine if there needed to be any reductions or what have you in the contracts. Until we could look at the national picture on the thing, anything they would have told out there could have, in effect, been changed."

We asked if such a change could not also have been reported later, since farmers who signed individual contracts for specific percentages would have to be notified if that percentage was to be reduced. That apparently wasn't the impertinent type of question that Cozart appreciated.

"Do you realize how much guys like you could have bugged the hell out of every county in the nation? They'd spend half their time on the phone talking to every news man in the country if they could have gotten that information!" he said.

In that statement of attitude is the crux of the matter. Guys like us in the news media, who consider it our responsibility to report the news, are a nuisance, a burr under the saddle, a source of irritation that interferes with the orderly flow of big government. Run our public service releases and meeting notices and explain our programs in language that people can understand, is USDA's attitude expressed by Cozart, but don't bother our people about things that we don't think you need to know.

Well, we happen to believe our area readers have the right to know what is going on locally in these public programs. And we happen to believe that laws exist which guarantee that right to know, and that Cozart is over-stepping his authority in attempting to restrict the availability of such information.

Later in the conversation he assured us that restriction of local information is common practice in his department and that county offices are not to release information on wheat and feed grain sign-ups as well. Someone could take undue advantage of the programs if they had advance information on the sign-up, he reasons. We reminded him that the dairy program sign-up had been completed when we asked for information, and that the USDA had indeed attempted itself to influence the program by encouraging sign-up during the open period. "Well," he said, "they can give it to you."

We are disturbed by this official's presumption of authority to manage public information. We are following up on it and we will keep you posted.

Carlson Holstein Herd Dominates DHIA Honors

Outstanding Holstein dairy herd owned by Mr. and Mrs. Mylo Carlson of Angus earned three of the four trophies awarded at the annual meeting of the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association Monday evening at the Eagles hall in Thief River Falls.

The fourth award, for greatest increase in herd average over a three-year period, was won by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Nelson of Goodridge. The Nelson herd increased in average production by 59 pounds of butterfat per cow to an average of 544 pounds for the 57-cow herd.

All officers of the association were reelected at a reorganization of the board following the annual meeting. Reelected were John Hess, Argyle, president; Robert Rausch, Thief River Falls, vice president; Roger Walter, Plummer, secretary-treasurer; Duane Krohn, Viking and Marvin Koop, Thief River Falls, directors. Koop was reelected to a three-year term at the annual meeting.

But the Carlsons' herd made a shambles of the production awards presented at the meeting. Butterfat average of 778 pounds per cow for the 60-cow herd topped the nearest competitor by an even 100 pounds and more than doubled the average for two of the herds on test. Average milk production of 20,456 pounds was almost a ton and a half (2,741 pounds) greater than the second place herd in that category.

Not only did the Carlsons have the top individual producing cow which yielded 22,882 pounds of milk and 1,041 pounds of butterfat in a 305-day lactation, they had all five of the top cows in the association and nine out of the top 10. All nine of those cows had more than 900 pounds of butterfat in 305-day lactations and only one had less than 20,000 pounds of milk — 19,411 pounds. The second place cow produced 27,369 pounds of milk and the seventh place animal had a record of 25,749.

And it doesn't appear that the hold on top production

TROPHY ACCUMULATION for Mr. and Mrs. Mylo Carlson of Angus continued this year at the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association annual meeting. Three of the four trophies awarded by the association went to the Carlson herd which had the top individual producer with 1,041 pounds of butterfat, top two-year-old with 837 pounds of butterfat in her first lactation, and top herd average of 778 pounds of butterfat for the 60-cow herd. The herd average topped the next best average among the 28 herds listed by 100 pounds of butterfat per cow. At left is Glenn Johnson, branch manager at Warren for the Federal Land Bank of Grand Forks, and at right is Curtis Brandt, loan officer for Production Credit association of Thief River Falls, whose offices were sponsors of the awards presented.

Bjorsness And Helm Vows Exchanged In Fargo

Carol Suzanne Bjorsness and Wesley L. Helm, Jr., were united in marriage December 23 at Fargo, N.D., at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Helm, Sr.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Bjorsness of Newfolden.

Rev. Earl Eveland of Newfolden officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Attending the couple were Joydell Skjerven, Newfolden, sister of the bride, and Scott Schnieder, brother-in-law of the groom. Vickie Schneider, sister of the groom, was the bride's personal attendant.

A wedding reception for the bride and groom was held January 22 at the Newfolden Evangelical Free church. Included was a program of devotions, songs and readings presented by Rev. Eveland, Valerie Christensen, Tammy Reierson, Marilyn Jensen, Paula Eveland and Brenda Dahl.

At the reception that followed, the bride's aunts Ivadell Reierson and Verna Christensen, cut and served the wedding cake, baked by Janice Olson. Kathy Brandt, Roseau, a sister of the groom, poured coffee.

Wendy Shern, a friend of the bride, was at the guest book. Jeremy and Jason Skjerven, nephews of the bride, carried the gifts and Tina Larson and Kari Gunderson ladled the punch. Waitresses were Dawn Olson and Elaine Hanson.

Alpha Phi Names Etter Woman Of Achievement

Edith Etter, local teacher, was named 1984 Woman of Achievement for Alpha Phi chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International at a meeting of the chapter held February 9, at the home of Mrs. Patricia Johnson.

Miss Etter will be honored together with other chapter Women of Achievement at the Tau State convention set for June 8-10 at Roseville.

In addition to balloting for Woman of Achievement, the meeting included the feature "Searching for our Roots" by Northland Community college faculty member Barbara Hauger. Miss Hauger, who teaches a course on geneological research and also presents area workshops on the subject, described the procedures and sources for tracing one's family. Illustrated examples were from her own experiences.

Hostesses for the evening were Marge Espe and Edith Etter.

EFC Ladies Aid to Meet At Newfolden

Ladies aid of the Evangelical Free church, Newfolden, will meet at the church on Friday at 8:00 p.m.

Special guest will be Dean Paskewitz of Thief River Falls, who will show slides of God's Creation, set to coordinating music. He will also provide musical selections.

Lunch will be served following the program.

The public is welcome.

TRF Christian Women's Clubs To Meet Tuesday

Pauline Janzen of Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada will be speaking at the Thief River Falls Christian Women's club meetings on Tuesday.

The luncheon meeting will be held at 12 noon at the American Legion. A special feature will be on books, led by Dode Wilson and Shirley Sorvig with several other women participating. Music will be furnished by LeRoy Aasland. The cost of the luncheon will be $3.50.

The After 5 club will meet at 6:30 p.m., at the Best Western. Folk artist Marie Seeger, Red Lake Falls, will present a feature on painting. Music will be provided by Jim White. Cost of the dinner will be $4.00.

Reservations for the meetings, as well as the nursery service provided at the luncheon, are necessary. Reservations may be made or information received by calling 681-6146 for the luncheon, or 681-3587, for the After 5 club.

Compassionate Friends To Meet At Crookston

Crookston chapter of Compassionate Friends will meet Monday at 8:00 p.m., at the Presbyterian church library in that city.

Compassionate Friends is a self-help international organization offering friendship and understanding to all bereaved parents.

The program will be a discussion on the tape, "Good Grief," explaining the state of shock, how to express emotion, how to react to depression and the feeling of loneliness, the typical symptoms of distress, that panicky feeling, how to handle guilt, what to do with hostility and resentment, the frustration of not being able to return to usual activities, and then the gradual return of hope. A handout summarizing the grief process will be given to each participant.

Those desiring further information may call Mrs. Stanley Davis 281-4194; Dr. Cliff or Gladys Stadem 281-3522 or Jack or Audrey Eickhof 281-4636.

Martha Circle of Holt Will Meet on Tuesday

Martha circle of the Nazareth Lutheran church, Holt, will meet Tuesday at 2:00 p.m., at the Norma Dahle home.

Members are reminded to bring their quilt blocks.

Anna Robarge Celebrates Her 99th Birthday

Anna Robarge of this city celebrated her 99th birthday on Wednesday, February 8, with a party at Oakland Park Nursing home, where she has been a resident for the past three years.

The party was hosted by her family, Robert Robarge and Eva Lendobeja, both of Thief River Falls; Grace Galbrath, Hibbing; John Robarge, Pengilly, and Dorothy Brattland, Minneapolis, who was unable to be present.

The Oakland Park staff assisted in serving ice cream and birthday cake to the guests and residents.

Among the guests was Thief River Falls Mayor Bob Carlson, who presented Mrs. Robarge with a fresh rose. He commented on the many birthdays he had observed with her and stated that he would be with her next year when she would be noting her 100th birthday. Mrs. Robarge expressed her appreciation to all her attended the party and "hoped that each one would enjoy the beautiful afternoon and go home happy."

Year's Study Is Introduced At Campanula Meet

Campanula Garden club's topic for the year, "Folklore and Symbolisms of flowers, plants and trees," was introduced at the meeting of the club held Wednesday afternoon at the Valley Home conference room.

Introducing the topic by giving the lesson on the language of flowers, sentiments and symbolisms, was president Ruth Holmes. Olga Johnson gave the study on the Bible flower, the crocus. She stated it was similar to today's flowers.

Seven members attended the meeting, together with Mrs. Sig Grothe, a member, who is now a resident at Valley Home. They answered roll call by listing something from the February Nature calendar.

The year's calendars, made by Sheryl Novacek, were distributed to the members, as were the garden club T shirts, which several had ordered, and bottles of plant food for house plants, gifts from Ruth Holmes.

Ruth Holmes presided at the meeting, Eleanor Torness read the secretary's report, Olga Johnson, the financial report, and Bernice Knutson, the good cheer report. At the conclusion of the meeting, members signed a get-well card for Ellen Peterson, and participated in a Valentine exchange. Members were also reminded that the booklet covers will be judged at the March meeting.

Prior to the meeting, the members served quick breads to the residents and staff at Valley Home.

Amateur Night Set By Lakeside Twirlers

Lakeside Twirlers square dance club of Erskine has scheduled an amateur night for Saturday at the multipurpose room in the Erskine school. Dave Muir will call the tips. Lunch will be served.

All square dancers and spectators are welcome.

Americanism Program Heard By Legion-Aux.

An Americanism program, led by Bob and JoAnn Reeve, was presented at the joint meeting of the American Legion and auxiliary held February 7 at the Legion club room.

Participating in the program were Frances Stromberg of the Democratic party, and Charles Oakes of the Republican party. They stressed the importance of voting and explained the purposes of caucus meetings and why they should be attended. A question and answer period followed.

The regular meeting of the auxiliary followed with the initiation of new members: Deborah Ernst, Susan Schneider, Sharon Gould, Loretta Novak, Violet Poole, Peggy Berganev, Hannah Hetteen and Becky Forsberg.

Unable to be present were Barbara Ammerman, Kathy Brenna, Grace Bridges, Rebecca Bruggeman, Rebecca Hanson, Lisa Marie Joppru, Suzanne Krause, Arlene Peterson, Coleen Pearson, Karen Reierson, Rita Soine, Delores Spencer, June Swanson, Linda Spyhalski, Kara Wilson, Elinor Wiskow, Charlene Swanson, Kathy Johnson and Eileen Hutchinson.

Past president Mrs. Mayer Holen served as initiation officer. The group was welcomed by the membership chairman, who stated that an additional 36 members are needed to meet the unit's quota.

Report was given on the unit's meatball supper. It was noted that the event totaled $245 with $20 to be donated to the Senior Citizen trip to the Crookston Winter shows and $200 to the scholarship fund.

A report was also given on the Mid-Winter conference at Red Lake Falls, attended by 14 members.

Members decided that the unit will sponsor three girls to Girls States. Representing the unit will be girls from Thief River Falls, Goodridge and Grygla. Plans were also made to assist the post in serving a joint breakfast February 19.

Communications and the district bulletin were read, as was an invitation to a bypartisan caucus and workshop to be held at Crookston on March 3.

A reminder was given by the chaplain, urging members to bring prayers for the Prayer book.

Ekelund Group Three Will Meet Monday

Group three of the Ekelund Laides aid will meet at the church dining hall on Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Everyone is welcome to attend.

Correction

In Wednesday's edition of the Times, announcing the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Colin Melby, an error was made in listing the grandparents. The paternal grandmother should have been listed as Mrs. Joy Melby of Hawley, and not Mr. and Mrs., as the paternal grandfather is deceased. The Times regrets the error.

Rites Held For Les Lockhart, Badger Editor

Funeral services for Leslie Lockhart, 48, of Badger were held Saturday at 2:00 p.m., at Our Redeemer's Lutheran church in that city. Lockhart, editor of the Badger Enterprise and a fourth generation printer, died February 6 at the United hospital in Grand Forks, N.D.

Officiating at the services were Rev. Jerry Hanson and Rev. James Goldsmith. Interment was in the Badger City cemetery.

Serving as active pallbearers were Jerry Wilhelmi, Larry Rislov, Jan Geroy, David Borgen, Darrell Borgen and James Meland.

Leslie Sydney Lockhart was born June 21, 1935 in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada to Edward and Mabel Lockhart, who are deceased. As a young boy, he came to the United States with his father. He attended school in Baudette and Williams, graduating in 1953 from Williams high school. For three years, he worked in Burlington County for the Burlington Record newspaper.

He married Marie Koebernick on June 10, 1956 at Williams. They moved to Badger, in August of 1958, where Lockhart managed the Badger Enterprise for two years. On Jan. 1, 1960, the couple purchased the business.

Lockhart was active in community affairs, serving for 23 years as a member of the Badger volunteer fire department, was gun safety instructor for many years, held offices in the Badger Town and County, served several times with the Northwest Community Action, Inc. board, and also served on the church council at Our Redeemer's church.

He is survived by his wife, three sons: Steven and Scott, both of Dallas, Tex.; and Stacey, Badger; two daughters: Mrs. Michael (Susan) Wilebski, Badger, and Samantha, at home; his mother, Joyce Lockhart; Williams, a brother, Dick

He was preceded in death by a grandson.

Pearl Sheedy Services Held Here Monday

Funeral services for Mrs. Pearl Sheedy, 90, of this city were held Monday at 11:30 a.m., at St. Bernard's Catholic church. Mrs. Sheedy died Friday morning at Northwestern hospital.

Rev. Stanley Bourassa officated at the services. Mary Amundson was the organist and the Resurrection choir sang. Interment will be in the church cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Michael Shoberg, Earl Pilloud, Mitchel Dicken, Murray Dicken, Randy Joppru and Kory Joppru.

Mrs. Sheedy, the former Nettie Pearl Fish, was born Jan. 19, 1894 in Mason City, Iowa to Daniel and Henretta Fish. At the age of eight years, she moved with her family by covered wagon to Ottertail county, Minnesota.

She was united in marriage to Walter John Shoberg. They farmed for many years in the Deer Creek area before moving to northern Beltrami county, to Cloquet and later to Thief River Falls.

Following her husband's death in 1936, Mrs. Shoberg worked for 10 years as a baker at the Park Hotel in this city.

In 1948, she was united in marriage to William Sheedy. He died March 17, 1955.

Surviving are two sons: Richard Shoberg, Las Cruces, New Mex.; and Robert Shoberg, Sunnyvale, Calif.; two daughters: Genevieve Helgeson, Bemidji, and Bea Johnson, Thief River Falls; 12 grandchildren, 25 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren; two sisters; Bernice Berthiaum, Carlton, and Bertha Robinson, Longview, Wash.; and numerous nieces and nephews.

In addition to both husbands and her parents, she was preceded in death by one sister and two brothers.

Funeral services and burial will be at Forest Lawn in Long Beach.

Surviving, in addition to his wife, Ruth, a daughter in California, a son at Finley, N.D., and eight grandchildren, are five brothers: Bob of Tacoma, Wash.; Dean of St. Cloud, Ed of Thief River Falls, Allen of Elbow Lake and Tom of Minneapolis.

Services Held Tuesday For Floyd Hageman

Funeral services for Floyd Hageman, Sr., 58, of this city, were held Tuesday at 2:00 p.m., at St. Bernard's Catholic church. Hageman died Friday at the Veterans hospital in Fargo, N.D.

Rev. Stanley Bourassa served as celebrant. Music was provided by the Resurrection choir with Christie LaCoursiere as organist. Interment will be in the church cemetery. The Green Funeral home is in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Don Joppru, Jerry Thompson, Rick Brekkestran, Marvin Jensen, Kevin Klockman and Glen Iverson.

Floyd Stanley Hageman, a son of the late Emil C. and Heddie B. Talbott Hageman, was born Oct. 28, 1925 in Fork township of Marshall county, near Stephen. He attended school and grew to manhood in that community.

From 1943 until 1946, he served in the U.S. Navy, stationed part of the time in Guam.

Following his discharge, he moved to Grafton, N.D., where he married Dorothy Steigar on Oct. 10, 1946. The couple lived at Grafton and later at Stephen. In 1954, they came to Thief River Falls and since then had made their home here.

He was a member of the Disabled American Veterans of Crookston and a former member of the American Legion.

He is survived by his wife, two daughters: Linda, Thief River Falls, and Joy, Denver, Colo., five sons: Frank and Floyd, Jr., both of Thief River Falls; Jack and Emil of Denver, Colo.; and Jim, Bowstring; and 15 grandchildren.

Also surviving are six sisters: Agnes Merdock and Norma Jean Laudal of Stephen; Frances Van Overberg, Milan, Ill.; Gladys Johnson, Lowell, Ark.; Mabel Sandberg, Erskine; and Marlys Benson, Crookston.

KING GEORGE

VALLEY HOME conducted special activities on Tuesday, Valentines Day, with the residents voting to elect George Lindbeck and Clara Ness as their King and Queen of Hearts for 1984. George, 77, says that he "roamed quite a bit" before becoming a resident at the home, but lived for quite a while at Newfolden. Clara, 82, was a long time resident of the Gully area, where she farmed with her husband. Relinquishing their crowns were last year's royalty Ray McGregor and Ethel Monroe.

OAKLAND PARK nursing home residents voted Tuesday, to elect Floryan Szymanski and Olga Engelstad as their King and Queen of Hearts for 1984. Floryan, 85, was born in Poland, but came to the U.S. at age 16, and farmed in Kratka township for about 55 years. Olga, 83, had eight children, and has lived in this area for many years. She and her late husband Mons donated the land for Camp MOE to the Girl scouts.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

What does OEA mean to Thief River Falls?

Has someone tried to sell you a candy bar? That someone is a member of the Office Education association at the AVTI participating in a fund raiser in order to attend state competition in office occupations. Last year our OEA students brought home a trophy and eight plaques to add to the pride of our community.

Has someone tried to get you to sponsor him or her during February for a Bowl-a-Thon? That someone is an OEA member participating in a fund raiser and a community service project to help the handicapped bowl and to compete in Special Olympics in the spring. Last year OEA contributed $1,500 to our local Special Olympians.

Has someone come to your elementary school dressed as a ghost or goblin at Halloween, or have you noticed someone dashing in and out of our local hospital CNC unit and the nursing homes with tray favors on holidays? That someone is an OEA member spreading safety with OEA, plus love and care throughout our community.

Has soneone asked you, as one of our local professional business leaders, to speak to our chapter and to help us develop as competent professionals and business leaders of tomorrow? That someone is a local member of the Office Education association, which has over 76,000 members.

Our local chapter of the Office Education Association, which includes students in vocational business and office programs, asks you to join us in celebrating OEA Week and Vocational Education Week February 12-18.

Thank you for your yearly support, Thief River Falls!

Sincerely,
Jackie Helms,

To The Editor:

In response to occasional WCTU articles that appear in the Times I would like to relate the following information.

Prohibition was repealed over 50 years ago! It just didn't work! Now most people understand why, but for some that just don't quite understand, please pick up the January 23 issue of Time magazine. It relates to the situation in Sudan. That particular article relates how Sudan attempts to eliminate its problems by dumping all of its booze and beer into the river Nile. Someone named Khomeini applauded that effort. Remember him?

Anyway, let's put a few things into perspective! The United States tried something of that nature 50 years ago. Most of us remember how that worked. All of us remember that it didn't. But it was the start of what we now recognize as organized crime in the United States. Fortunately the 18th amendment was repealed. Unfortunately there was no repeal for the problem that was created by prohibition.

Yet there still remains a certain segment of society that would prefer to turn back that clock for what they profess to be the good of all. Would the WCTU or anyone in a similar frame of mind deny themselves the benefits derived from the billions of tax dollars paid by the distilled spirits industry? If so, I can furnish them with a formula that would enable them to return to federal and state governments that portion of benefits they receive each year from our industry. Thus leaving them a truly clear conscience to pursue their particular beliefs.

Of course I don't expect that to happen. I just feel that perhaps the time has come for this industry to be recognized for its more positive aspects, one example of which is the Sky Ranch for Boys located in Buffalo, S.D., and operates under the guidance of Father Dale Kutil. Sky Ranch is funded totally by members of our business and is recognized nationally as one of the most positive and successful programs for troubled youngsters. Perhaps someone would care to write to Father Dale Kutil and ask him how he feels about this business.

I guess the basic message I am trying to convey to those who look upon our industry with a negative viewpoint is simply to wake up and smell the coffee.

Essays On Food, Fitness Being Sought

Youths ages 13 to 18 with thoughts on U.S. agriculture's importance to the world food supply and to individual health and well-being will be able to compete for prizes and national recognition in a nationwide essay contest being sponsored by the agricultural extension service of the U.S. department of agriculture.

Part of a year-long food and fitness effort by the agricultural extension service, the contest has a March 1 deadline for the 500-word (maximum) essays to be submitted to local county extension offices. Local winners will be selected in each of three age categories (ages as of Feb. 1, 1984): 13 to 14 years, 15 to 16 years and 17 to 18 years.

Winning entries will be sent for statewide judging and the three Minnesota winners' names will be announced March 12. State winners will receive prizes and trips to the Twin Cities. In addition, their winning entries will be judged against those from other states for prizes and trips to Washington, D.C.

"Food: America's Growth Industry" is the theme of the contest. Participants are encouraged to practice their research, interviewing and writing skills in preparing their essays.

Three winning Minnesota essayists will come to the Twin Cities during 1984 Minnesota agriculture week, March 16 to 22, a public awareness campaign sponsored by the metropolitan chapter of Minnesota women for agriculture. Like the essay contest, the week's events will have a food and fitness theme.

Details on the contest are available from the Pennington county extension service at 681-2116.

HAPPY 22nd
Mark J.

Legislative 4-H Project Given Grant

A multi-county 4-H legislative project has been selected to receive a 1984 citizenship-in-action grant, provided by Reader's Digest Foundation. Award is one of the 37 in 22 states made to provide seed money for community projects.

The project, initiated in Anoka county, has been in existence for three years. It has now grown to cover 10 additional counties in the twin cities metropolitan area: Benton, Carver, Dakota, Hennepin, Ramsey, Scott, Sherburne, Stearns, Washington and Wright.

The club will use the $250 grant to underwrite the costs of a five-month project. It is designed to help 4-H participants 14 to 19 years of age acquire a better understanding of the legislative system in order to become contributing, productive voters later. They will meet state government representatives to learn how their portion of government operates. In "mock" legislative sessions at the state capital they will work on committees and study possible bills on issues of concern to youth.

Goal is not only to increase teenage awareness of the citizen's role in the decision-making process, but also to make the legislators more aware of problems youth consider important and help the teenagers explore government-related career possibilities.

Grant will be matched by additional funds to be raised locally. Selection of 4-H groups to receive the grants was made by the Cooperative extension service. Awards are arranged by national 4-H council.

KITCHEN UTENSILS purchased for the trainable mentally handicapped (TMH) class at Lincoln high school annex in Thief River Falls are inspected by Sharon Wayne of the Goodridge Lioness club and Mike Burkel, a member of the class. The Goodridge Lioness group provided the money as part of its public service program. The gift permitted purchase of the items shown, including the mixer which Mrs. Wayne and Mike are discussing. Other gifts to the kitchen area of the program have been provided by parents of students, according to Mrs. Polly Reed, instructor in the program.

Hermreck Gets First Place At UMC Ag-Arama

Marv Hermreck of Thief River Falls, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Hermreck and an agriculture major at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC), placed first in nail driving in mechanized agriculture at the ninth annual Ag-Arama held recently on the campus.

Ag-Arama is held annually to provide a variety of contest areas for UMC agricultural students. Competetive events were held in beef, dairy, sheep, swine, horse, and crop judging; mechanized agriculture; wildlife and tree identification. Fun contests included pie eating, pole tossing, match and log splitting, log chopping and peeling, tobacco splitting, and many more.

Dislocated Workers Aided By Fed Funds

U.S. department of labor is making available $23.5 million in discretionary funds nationally to help dislocated workers become re-employed, it was announced recently by the Minnesota job training office. Job training office, a part of the Minnesota department of economic security, is coordinating grant requests from state organizations.

In national competition to share in the funds, priority will be given to dislocated workers in highest unemployment areas and designated enterprise zones who have been affected by mass layoffs, natural disasters or federal government actions.

Organizations and agencies submitting proposals must demonstrate severity of need, a concentration of eligible persons and cost effectiveness, the job training office said.

Applications and proposal guidelines may be obtained from Ed Retka, governor's job training office, phone 612-296-7918.

Completed applications must be received by the office by March 15. Proposals for grants will be evaluated by the job training office and then submitted to the department of labor in Washington for funding.

Dr. Langland Is Rated High In National Exam

Dr. Jim Langland was recently certified as a diplomate of the American Board of Internal Medicine, scoring in the top five per cent of physicians taking the two day qualifying examination nationwide.

Dr. Langland has been associated with the Falls Clinic since July, and is one of three internal medicine specialists there.

Physicians who are awarded a diploma in the speciality of internal medicine must have completed a minimum of three years of acceptable post-doctoral education, demonstrated competence in the clinical evaluation of patients, and passed the certifying examination in internal medicine.

Purpose of the American board of internal medicine is to improve the quality of medical care by developing standards to ensure that certified internists possess the knowledge, skills and attitudes essential to the provision of excellent care. Certification serves as recognition by peers of a superior level of ability.

Mesaba Boosts South Dakota Route Traffic

Mesaba Airlines carried 1,652 passengers between Pierre-Sioux Falls, SD, and Pierre-Minneapolis-St. Paul in January, compared to 1,256 passengers by the former carrier during January of 1983, for a 32 per cent increase.

Mesaba provides three daily round trip flights between Pierre-Sioux Falls and two round trip flights daily between Pierre-Minneapolis-St. Paul. These flights are timed to give greater flexibility to travelers selecting flights in these markets.

Corporate Farm Take Over Not Materializing

Are big businesses taking over family farms? Many people are concerned about corporations moving into agriculture and displacing the traditional role of family farms.

As businesses, farms are organized in three major ways: sole ownerships, partnerships and corporations. Most family farms fall in the first class. About 10 per cent of America's farms are partnerships; these, too, are mostly formed by family members.

But in the 1970's, corporations were the fastest-growing type of farm, even though they accounted for only a small percentage of all farms. During the short span of 1974-78, such corporations almost doubled.

It would appear that "big business" is taking over family farms but a closer look punches holes in that theory. Why? Because the corporations are being formed by family members. The growth of corporate farming in the 1970's was almost entirely due to an increase in the number of family corporations.

Meanwhile, nonfamily corporations declined in the same period — both in the amount of farmland operated and in the value of the products they sold.

At last count, Minnesota had only 158 nonfamily corporate farms out of a total of over 100,000 farms in the state. Almost one-third of these nonfamily corporate farms were engaged in poultry production.

So the information simply doesn't support the perception of a nonfamily "corporate takeover" in farming. Rather family farmers are becoming more and more aware of the advantages of the corporate form of organization.

And the biggest influence, pushing them in this direction — more than any other policy or federal government program — is IRS tax regulations.

IRONING CLOTHES is demonstrated by Carmen Suoto of the TMH class at the Lincoln high school annex in Thief River Falls for Dorothy Wayne, second vice president of the Goodridge Lioness club. The club recently provided a $100 contribution for use in purchase of items needed by the class in teaching domestic skills to the students. The department emphasizes education in many living areas with the domestic skills an important part of the program. The new iron and ironing board were purchased with part of the Lioness club funds.

Chief's Corner

by Ken Froschheiser
Chief of Police
Thief River Falls, MN.

During a conversation I had with one of our local residents, he asked me about the traffic law relating to yielding to emergency vehicles. He further explained that he had observed numerous violations and requested that I write this article. He is correct in his observations, and tickets have been issued in some cases.

Minnesota traffic code 169.20, subd. 5, requires all motor vehicle traffic and any other type vehicle including bicycles to pull over to the far right side of the roadway and stop, unless motioned ahead by a law enforcement officer, whenever a duly recognized emergency vehicle with red lights flashing and an audible siren operating is approaching. The law further states that all other motor vehicle traffic shall remain stopped until after the emergency vehicle has passed.

Officers of this department have encountered many of these situations, either in responding to a call or escorting another emergency vehicle such as an ambulance or fire truck. The driver of the emergency vehicle does not have the right to proceed without caution. However, in entering intersections and driving enroute to the scene he or she does have the expectation that other vehicles will pull over and let the vehicle pass or proceed through an intersection even if the light is red or there is a stop sign.

We ask all residents and visitors to remember this when driving whereever they may be. If an emergency vehicle is approaching, especially from the rear, pull over as far as possible and let the emergency vehicle by. Sometimes just a few minutes may make the difference in life-threatening situations.

Thank you.

Firms Initiate Two Recalls Of Food Products

Minnesota department of agriculture announced that two firms have initiated voluntary recalls of food products in the state of Minnesota.

Dr. Rollin M. Dennistoun, deputy commissioner, stated that the recalls were initiated because samples of the food products were found to contain concentrations of Ethylene Dibromide (EDB) in excess of environmental protection agency (EPA) allowable guideline levels.

The food products that are being recalled are identified as follows: 32 ounce bags of brown long grain rice, Comet brand, from the Comet Rice Company, Inc., Houston, Texas 77001, Code H4733; 18½ ounce boxes of Pillsbury Plus Pudding in the Mix, artificial banana flavor cake mix, from the Pillsbury Company of Minneapolis, Minnesota 55402, Code G3W26.

Dr. Dennistoun has asked Minnesota retailers and wholesalers to remove the above products from sale for return to the manufacturer.

Consumers who have this product with the above identification and code number should return it to the place of purchase.

Fee to attend both sessions will be $12, single session $8, and no reservations are required. An exhibit room with many products in merchandise lines of many educational toys and material companies will be provided. Persons with questions may call 681-7445.

Vision Being Stressed In 4-H Program

Vision education programs in 4-H offer learning through community service and international travel for young 4-H'ers. The 4-H'ers learn through public presentations (youth-in-action demonstrations), which have been the most popular part of the programs. In this program, 4-H'ers develop vision-related demonstrations, sometimes with the help of a local optometrist or auxiliary member.

They present these demonstrations at county or state fairs by attracting an audience, then involving audience members in a vision education experience.

National 4-H council, with financial support from optometrists, has published a series of 18 activity guides for children of all ages who want ideas for other local vision education activities and for demonstrations. The Minnesota optometric association (MOA) has purchased and delivered a set for about 60 per cent of the counties in the state. If you have not received a set of guides, you may want to purchase a set from the national 4-H council.

County vision screening programs have helped people both at home and abroad. 4-H and local optometrists cooperate to conduct a free vision screening program for the fair-going public. It is geared toward early detection of eye problems for those who rarely have their eyes tested.

4-H members also collect used eye glasses. Volunteer Optometric Service to Humanity (VOSH) depends on groups such as 4-H, Lions, Kiwanis, granges and churches to collect used glasses and then distributes them to needy people in the developing world. This is the international part of the program sponsored by 4-H VOSH and the Minnesota optometric association auxiliary.

Every year a 4-H member, 16 years or older, is invited to join VOSH volunteer team on an eye care and eyeglass distribution trip to a developing country. Those competing for a position on the VOSH team will want some experience in vision education. Applications are due in the Pennington county extension office by November 1 each year.

Forsberg Ends Army Basic

Pvt. David K. Forsberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger A. Forsberg of Thief River Falls, has completed basic training at Fort Dix, New Jersey.

During the training, students received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and army history and traditions.

Tips Given On Prevention Of Poisoning

Small children are naturally curious — they tend to touch, hold and (unfortunately) taste things as a means of learning. Many common household substances, however, can be harmful to children if ingested, says the Minnesota safety council, supporters of poison prevention week March 18 to 24.

Following are tips from the safety council to safeguard children from accidental poisoning:

—Put away all hazardous substances, including medicines. Lock up household chemicals such as cleansers, polishing agents, solvents and paint.

—Store products in their original containers.

—Let children know that medicine is serious business; never tell them it is candy. Purchase medicines with childproof safety caps. Put medicine and other hazardous substances in upper cabinets, well out of the reach of children. Install child-resistant latches and locks on cupboards where harmful products are stored.

—Purchase syrup of ipecac and keep it at home for poison emergencies. But use it only when there has been a poisoning and the physician or poison control center instructs you to administer it — it will help the person vomit the poisonous substance.

—Keep phone numbers of your state and local poison control centers and your physician near the telephone. If a poisoning occurs, have container at hand when you call so you can accurately describe what has been ingested.

More than half of all reported poisonings involve children under six, according to statistics from the National safety council.

LEC Reports 11 Cases Feb. 14

Law enforcement center report dated Tuesday, February 14, listed six cases investigated by Thief River Falls police department and five cases investigated by Pennington county sheriff's department by reporting date.

Cases handled by Thief River Falls police department included the following:

February 1 — Mary J. Geatz, Thief River Falls, was driving north on Spruce Avenue at about 7:30 p.m., and Antoinette Swanson, Thief River Falls, was driving west on Edgewood Drive and attempting a left turn onto Spruce when they collided. Damages were estimated at $500 to the Geatz vehicle and $100 to the Swanson vehicle.

February 7 — Kevin J. Sanders, rural Goodridge, was attempting to back from a parking stall at approximately 12:30 p.m. when he struck a parked vehicle owned by Dean Holmstrom, rural Strandquist. Damage was estimated at $600 to the Holmstrom vehicle. Sanders' vehicle was apparently undamaged.

February 7 — Daniel Austad, Thief River Falls, was driving south on Arnold Avenue, and Albert Causin, rural Oklee, was driving east on Seventh Street when they collided at about 2:25 p.m. Damages were estimated at $1,000 to the Austad vehicle and $700 to the Causin vehicle. Charges are pending.

February 8 — Jim Tri, Hallock, reported that a camera and accessories, value $600, had been stolen from his vehicle while it was parked in the lot at Northwestern Hospital. Forced entry to the vehicle caused approximately $20 damage.

February 8 — Jerry Joringdal, Thief River Falls, was driving west on Fourth Street and attempting a left turn onto LaBree Avenue at about 11:22 a.m. when he collided with Marvin Frank Johnson, rural Thief River Falls, who was driving east. Damages were estimated at $3,000 to the Johnson vehicle and $100 to the Joringdal vehicle.

February 12 — Nine different vehicles were vandalized at various locations on the 800 blocks of both South Tindolph and Crocker Avenues. Eight sustained broken rear view mirrors, with damage estimates ranging from $25 to $50, and one vehicle received a broken rear window, value about $100. Case is under investigation.

February 5 — Tina Juneau, Thief River Falls, reported that she had discovered her purse missing after visiting in Rocksbury township. Thinking that it might have fallen out of the car when she opened the door, she returned to the area but was unable to find it. Contents of the purse included $250 cash and a diamond wedding and engagement ring set, with a total value of approximately $2,055. Case is under investigation.

February 5 — Dean Prestegaard, Thief River Falls, reported his fish house had been broken into, with $175 worth of contents stolen which belonged to himself and two friends. Damage to the door was estimated at $10.

February 5 — Jay Tunheim, Thief River Falls, reported theft of an ice auger, value $35, from his fish house. Damage from the forced entry was estimated at $10.

February 8 — Hal Waale, Thief River Falls, reported theft of two bottles of LP gas, value $150, from his property in Kratka township. Case is under investigation.

February 11 — Larry Johnsrud of Star township reported that two heifer calves in a pasture had apparently been shot, with one found dead and the other one injured so that it had to be destroyed. Estimated value of the animals was $1,200. Case is under investigation.

Workshop On Temperature Control Slated

Pneumatic temperature control workshops can make the terms fuel economy, comfort, convenience and safety as familiar to a building operator as they are to a car dealer. One of the workshops is scheduled June 12 and 13 in Thief River Falls.

Two-day pneumatic temperature control workshop is designed to help building managers and operators maximize the operation of heating, ventilating and air conditioning equipment. The workshop is sponsored by the Minnesota energy division, the Minnesota department of education and local area vocational-technical institutes.

Proper selection and operation of pneumatic temperature controls will be provided through classroom lectures, combined with actual experience. The workshop fee of $75 includes lunch, coffee and materials.

Workshops will be held at 23 sites throughout the state from February through October. Contact Thief River Falls AVTI for registration information at 681-5424.

Pottery For Children Is Set At UMC

Pottery course for children in grades two through six will be offered from 4 to 6 p.m. February 21, 23, and 28 at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) in Owen 203, through the office of continuing education.

Children will build clay pots by using the pinch, slab and coil methods, and they will help load the pots in the kiln and learn how to make them colorful by glazing, according to instructor Pat Kuznik, UMC art instructor.

Children are urged to wear washable, comfortable clothing. Cost of the course is $17 which includes materials.

Social Security Men Here Tues.

Ted Hoversten and Neil Rowe, field representatives of the Grand Forks social security office will be in Thief River Falls at the city auditorium on Tuesday from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

FOOD COMMITTEE members have been busy making final plans for the Jaycee Women Community Ball to be held this Saturday from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Elks club. Planning the hors d'oeuvres menu are Donna Smith, Deb Swanson, Carolyn Schmitz and Judy Adamson. Ticket price of $4 will include an evening of dancing, entertainment and lunch. All proceeds will be divided between the Falls DAC and the ODC. Tickets are on sale at Ekeren Drug, Larson Music or from any Jaycee Woman. Tickets will also be available at the door.

SBA Approves Loans For 26 MN Companies

Celso C. Moreno, director of the Minnesota district office of the U.S. small business administration (SBA), announced that $5,080,920 in SBA guaranteed loans had been approved for 26 Minnesota companies, and $1,307,000 had been approved in economic development loans for nine Minnesota companies in the month of January. Projected additional employment created as a result of these loans is 837 jobs.

Direct management assistance was provided to 240 Minnesota firms through the small business administration's in-house counselors or through support groups like the service corps of retired executives (SCORE), the small business development centers, and the 12 colleges participating in the small business institute program.

Seventy-two loans were paid in full during the month of January.

Willet Won't Enter Seventh District Race

State Senator Jerry Willet of Park Rapis has decided not to seek the DFL nomination for the Seventh Congressional district seat.

"This was a tough decision to make," stated Willet. "I have, in my 14 years as a state senator, worked to get into a position where I could do the most good for the constituents in my senate district and northern Minnesota.

"I am now chairman of the Minnesota state senate's finance committee, have considerable seniority in the senate, and have come to the conclusion that I can do greater good for our area of the state by remaining in the state senate. Therefore, I have decided not to run for Congress in the Seventh district."

Norman Added To Disaster Counties List

Congressman Arlan Stangeland says he has secured disaster relief for farmers in Norman county who were hit by a variety of natural disasters in 1983.

Relief will be in the form of FmHA loans covering 80 per cent of farmers' losses, up to $500,000. Farmers must show that they received substantial crop losses and cannot obtain credit elsewhere.

Norman county was swept by a variety of natural disasters between June 10 and August 25, 1983 including hail, excessive rain and extreme heat, Stangeland said. Farmers may apply for the loans at the FmHA office next week.

During the past 12 months, Congressman Stangeland said he has secured similar relief for 1983 crop losses in Beltrami, Polk, Marshall, Pennington and Red Lake counties and for 1982 damage in Marshall, Pennington and Red Lake counties.

Interest rates on these disaster loans are usually eight per cent, but at the Chicago summit on drought relief last September, state farm leaders convinced Secretary of Agriculture John Block to drop that rate to five per cent on the first $100,000 of disaster loans.

"That increased the purchasing power of these loans by up to $3,000," Stangeland said.

A member of the House ag committee, he secured FmHA "limited Resource" loan status for Pennington and Red Lake county farmers.

Hogan To Speak For Senior Day At NW Library

Truck Driver Arrests Total 1,088 In 1983

Truck driver arrests for violations of state regulations governing motor carriers totaled 1,088 in 1983, the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) announced recently.

This total compares with 1,154 arrests in 1982, said Gordon Boldt, director, Mn-DOT's office of motor carrier safety and compliance.

Of the number of arrests in 1983, 348 were for violations of vehicle safety standards and markings; 437 for driver qualifications or logbook requirements; 295 for interstate and intrastate authority requirements; and 10 for hazardous materials transportation violations.

During 1983 Mn-DOT enforcement agents took 153 vehicles out of service for serious equipment violations, he said.

Warnings for minor equipment repairs totaled 1,270; for driver qualifications, 730; for authority, 348; and for hazardous materials, 78. The total was 2,426 for an increase of 34.8 per cent from the 1,800 written the previous year.

Arrests were made by motor transportation representatives during unannounced road safety checks at 21 sites around the state, at weigh stations and other locations, he said.

Many inspections were made in cooperation with the Minnesota State Patrol, Interstate Commerce Commission, Federal Highway Administration, county sheriff departments and city police departments.

During 1983 there were 21 unannounced truck road safety checks compared with 14 the previous year. We expect to increase these surprise road safety checks from 21 to 30 in 1984, Boldt said.

BEST OF BOTH WORLDS is enjoyed by Gene Nesland (right) and Ron Winter of Nesland, Winter & Associates in Thief River Falls. Nesland has sold his accounting business after operating since 1956 but is staying on with the company. Winter bought the firm after being associated with it for seven years but has the advantage of Nesland's continuing assistance.

Nesland Sells Business But Stays To Help

Sale of his accounting service to Ronald Winter doesn't mean Gene Nesland is retiring. After being in business in Thief River Falls since Feb. 6, 1956, he plans to continue in the business for an indefinite period of time. The firm name has been changed to Nesland, Winter & Associates.

"I'm happy doing what I have been doing over the years," Nesland said, "and I'm not ready to leave the people who have been my clients. But I'm looking forward to having a little less active schedule and a chance to take some time to visit our children and get to know our grandchildren better."

"This appears to be a good opportunity for me to build on a business which Gene has established," notes Ron Winter, who has been with the firm since October of 1977. "I appreciate having been able to work with him and to become acquainted with the clients. I'm pleased Gene has consented to continue in the business for an indefinite time."

Nesland worked for Taxeraas Implement company in the parts and bookkeeping departments for four years and then for Forkenbrock Motor company in the automotive entries and records department, all in Thief River Falls. After working as an accountant with Ralph Luhman for four years he opened an office Feb. 6, 1956, on the second floor of what is now the Norwest bank building. On June 1 of that year he moved to his present location on Second street.

In 1968 he passed the examination which permitted him to represent taxpayers before the Internal Revenue service and in 1979 he received his licensed public accountant designation. He has attended a number of extension classes and seminars, originated a group of accountants which meets on a district basis in Thief River Falls and is a member of the Minnesota and national associations of public accountants. He has served several terms on the board of the state association and served on state committees as well.

His company has grown to include four full-time and one part-time office employees in addition to Winter and himself. He has been treasurer of the Lions club for five years, served on the community's American Revolution Bicentennial committee in 1976, has been trustee and treasurer of Our Savior's Lutheran church for many years.

A past member of the Jaycees, he is a member of the local and U.S. chambers of commerce, the national federation of independent business and the Minnesota taxpayers association.

His family includes his wife, Doris; two daughters, Carol Johnson of Cardington, Ohio and Cindy Schlenk of Hopkins, and a son, Jerry of Halstad. He notes that one client, Art Dicken of Falls Farm Service, has been with him since he started business in 1956.

Ron Winter is originally from Waubun, graduated from Moorhead state university in 1968 with a major in accounting and business administration, and served in the U.S. army from 1969 to 1971. He worked at Midland National bank for Northwest Bancorporation as cost accounting manager, accounting manager and manager of data processing before joining the Nesland firm.

He has been a licensed public accountant since 1980, is membership chairman of the chamber of commerce, serves on the advisory board for the local enterprise zone commission, has served on committees at St. Bernard's Catholic church and is a member of the American Legion, Eagles, Elks and Minnesota association of public accountants.

Ron and his wife Dee have two sons, Troy 10 and Tony 4, and a daughter, Trisha 7.

Insurance and Safety Tips

VALUABLE PERSONAL ARTICLES REQUIRE SPECIAL PROTECTION

You're a prudent person. Your Homeowners policy is up to date. Consequently, your Valuable Personal Articles jewelry, furs, silverware, fine arts and the like are adequately insured. Right?

Not necessarily. Most Homeowners policies include coverage limits on the loss of such items. Consequently, if jewelry valued at $5,000 is stolen from your home, you may receive only a fraction of its worth under the terms of your policy.

Is there a way out of such a dilemma? Yes, all you need is Valuable Personal Articles (VPA) coverage such as that provided by INA Aetna. It's inexpensive (less than $4 per year in most areas for silverware valued at $1,500, for example) . . . it allows you to insure for the full amount . . ., and it provides all-risk protection on a worldwide basis.

Compare the cost of such coverage to the cost of replacing your cherished personal items. The conclusion is obvious.

We represent INA Aetna. But we work for you.

15 Train For Respite Care At NW Hospital

Becky Swenson, Sheila Kelly, Lynn Mortenson, Sue Hillman, Mabel Paulson, Esther Gallager, Velma Hulst-Gates, Nancy McKenzie, Janet Berberich, Stacy Eggebraaten, Blanche Palm, Laurie Axtman, Kim Tharaldson, Yvette Schmitz and Marsha Larson are now qualified and available to provide services to families of homebound, disabled, aged persons in this area, according to respite care director, Leslie Fox. They are now trained to work for families in caring for elderly relatives, by assisting the elderly with daily activities such as grooming, dressing, meal preparation, recreation and exercise.

First Aid For Farm Families Seminars Set

A number of one-day seminars on "First Aid for Farm Families" will be offered in the region during February and March, sponsored by the Northwest Minnesota Emergency Medical services, St. Luke's hospitals and Fargo clinic, in cooperation with local rescue personnel, Minnesota and North Dakota agricultural extension services and several area hospitals.

Among dates and locations of seminars are February 24 at the University of Minnesota Food Services Building at Crookston; March 16 at the courthouse at Hallock; March 20 and 24 at St. Luke's hospitals, Fargo, N.D.; and March 23 at First Lutheran church, Baudette.

The seminars are designed to train the entire farm family in techniques of first aid. Since the first person to aid an accident victim (usually a family member) can affect the final outcome, this seminar will cover life and limb saving techniques for the first rescuer.

Injuries from accidents are the leading cause of death in the United States for people 30 years and younger. Fifty million injuries occur annually in the United States and 10 million are disabling.

"First Aid for Farm Families" will run from 8:45 a.m. to 4 p.m. at each location, covering accident information, first aid and heart saver training. Registration cost is $15 per person or $30 per family, including all materials, breaks and lunch. Registration is limited and must be received one week before the scheduled course. No registrations can be accepted at the door.

To register, contact Roseann J. Campbell, Emergency Medical Services Coordinator, St. Luke's Hospitals, Fifth Street at Mills Avenue, Fargo, N.D. 58122 or telephone (701) 280-6054. Checks should be made payable to St. Luke's Hospitals.

Senator Urges Rewriting Of Wheat Program

In the face of PIK's failure to reduce wheat stocks enough to affect the already low prices, Senator Rudy Boschwitz has urged the senate leadership to make the time to rewrite the wheat program.

In a letter to Majority Leader Howard Baker and Minority Leader Robert Byrd, Boschwitz said that the efforts to negotiate a new wheat program over the past six months should not be forgotten.

"It is imperative that we act now," Boschwitz said. "We cannot allow our wheat producers to suffer because of division among the other commodity groups, nor should we take lightly any budget savings."

Boschwitz said that wheat prices did not go up because of the widespread drought in 1983, unlike many other commodities, because of late announcement of the 1983 PIK program on top of excellent growing conditions.

He predicted that the 1984 wheat program will lead to low farmer participation because "most farmers will not find it an attractive financial alternative. Lower participation will increase carryover stocks, which will result in lower farm prices and higher program cost," he said.

Boschwitz added that one of the alternative bills, for example, would save $3.3 billion over five years and would mean higher prices for the farmer, according to CBO.

"Not only would an improved wheat program save money, it would encourage greater participation," Boschwitz said. "Increased participation also means a more equitable distribution of benefits."

"Their participation in our scholarship program is appreciated by the students, administration, faculty and advisory committee", states Brenda Marben, financial aid assistant at Northland.

ID Handicap Of Pre-Schoolers

Parents of handicapped children up to age four should contact the special education office of school district 564, to discuss specific needs of the children, and ways in which school personnel may provide assistance.

If no contact with the office has been made previously, they may be reached by calling 681-2700, extension 386.

Nation At Risk Topic For BSU Conference

"A Nation At Risk, brought about a debate on the educational standards in our nation," states Dr. Anne Campbell, member of the national commission on excellence in education. Campbell will address the report in a speech at the excellence in education conference at Bemidji state university, February 23-24.

"A Nation At Risk," is a controversial report addressed to the American people and the secretary of education. Through the report, the commission proposed a set of standards for American schools. Recommendations for educational improvements include stiffer state and local high school graduation requirements, along with tougher college entrance requirements.

They suggested that schools devote more time to learning the basics and that academic achievement standards be raised. Increased citizen involvement as well as better training and pay for teachers are also among the proposals.

In academic achievement tests given in 21 nations, the U.S. never finished first or second in any area and finished last seven times. The commission cited this fact with other evidence warning that America must stop the rising tide of mediocrity in its educational system.

Campbell noted that, "The changes in education had begun before the report was brought to the attention of the American people. The standards have already been accepted in some states and school districts."

Campbell is a former commissioner of education in Nebraska. She has been a trustee for an educational testing service and a member of the editorial advisory board for a large encyclopedia company.

"Excellence In Education, A Report on the Reports," will be held in the Beaux Arts ballroom on the BSU campus. The first general session, beginning at 9 a.m., February 23 will focus on Campbell's input to the "Nation At Risk" document.

The conference will also include a presentation on the Carnegie findings by Marilyn Cohn of the Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teaching.

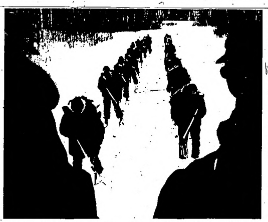
The first day will conclude with a speech by Dr. David Imig, executive director of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education, at 6:30 p.m. at the Bemidji Holiday Inn. His topic will be in response to the day's reports.

Day two of the conference will present Minnesota's involvement in the educational reform issue. The action for excellence report and its relationship to the Minnesota commission on education and economic growth will be discussed on February 24.

Speakers will include Ruth Randall, Minnesota commissioner of education, State Representative Doug St. Onge, State Senator Gerald Willet and Bill Ridley of the Minnesota commission on economic growth.

State Senator James Pehler of the Senate education committee; Willard Baker, executive secretary of the Minnesota School Boards association; Marti Zins, president of the Minnesota Education association; and State Representative Robert McEachern of the House education committee will also speak on the second day.

Pre-registration deadline for the conference is February 17 and there is a $25 registration fee. Registration materials and additional information may be obtained by writing to Dr. Ray Nelson, Bemidji State University, Box 44, Bemidji, Minnesota 56601 or calling 218-755-2774.



SKIJORING National Guard troops are observed by two winter operations instructors seated atop an armored personnel carrier as they are pulled by the tracked vehicle at Camp Ripley. Skijoring is a rapid cross-country method of moving ski troops which was developed during World War II by the Norwegians and Germans, and is just one of the winter operations techniques which Minnesota Army National Guardsmen will be instructed in during their winter encampment, February 25 to March 10. Minnesota Army National Guard photo by SSG Charles Reimler.

Film Series At UMC To Start February 15

Live-Laugh-Love film series will be held at the University of Minnesota - Crookston (UMC) beginning Wednesday. Sponsored by UMC's campus ministry, the Josh McDowell series is for youth and their parents, according to Brent Jacobson campus ministry director.

Film series is a total learning experience that approaches love, sexuality and relationships for a variety of age levels and uses dramatic vignettes, full-drama story lines and documentary film footage to present a biblical basis for love, marriage and sex, according to Jacobson.

Film series is scheduled for the following days; February 15 in Kiehle auditorium, "The Sexual Puzzle"; March 14 in Bede, "The Secret of Loving"; March 28 in Bede, "Givers, Takers and Other Kinds of Lovers"; April 11 in Bede, "Maximum Dating"; and May 2 in Bede, "How to be a Good Lover".

All films begin at 7:30 p.m. There is no charge, but a free-will offering will be taken.

Luncheon To Honor Area Women For Achievement

Area women selected for their contributions in the areas of religion, culture, family education, science, business, politics and athletics will be honored at a tea sponsored by the Thief River Falls chapter of the American Association of University Women Wednesday, February 22, at 2 p.m. in the Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls.

The women were selected as representative of all women who have and continue to play responsible roles in community life. Women selected for the recognition and their activities include the following:

Athletics

Deb Jacobson

Originally from Hendrum, Jacobson is women's athletic director at Northland community college, instructor in health and physical education and coach of the women's volleyball, basketball and softball teams.

A member of the Moorhead state university golf team for three years, she has continued active in the sport since coming to Thief River Falls. In 1983 she won the Thief River Falls women's invitational and club championships, five tournaments on area courses and participated in the Pro Gal tournament at Detroit Lakes. She manages the pro shop at the Thief River golf club in the summer and in the future hopes to start work toward a doctorate degree in education.

Science

Marilyn Wigness

Beginning her service in Thief River Falls as instructor in the practical nursing program at the area vocational-technical institute, she began employment at Northwestern hospital in 1973 and became director of nursing in 1975. She is presently assistant administrator of nursing services.

Marilyn sings in the church choir and is accompanist for the "Trinitaires" singing group at Trinity Lutheran church. She is a member of the district nursing service administrators organization and American Society for Nursing Service administrators. Married to Jerry Wigness and mother of Kim, Michael and Steven, she enjoys bowling and motorcycling as hobbies.

Family

Dorothy Wold

With her husband Bernard and children Valerie, Peggy Jo, Kim and Arlene, Dorothy has always had the family home open for troubled young people. Some problems were solved in a few hours, others required more time, and a few youngsters became members of the family for a number of years.

Dorothy has been a leader in Girl scouts and 4-H club work, taught Sunday and vacation Bible school, served on the board of directors for local drum and bugle corps (Bridgeman Half Pints and TRFinettes) and helped form the junior unit in the Veterans of Foreign Wars auxiliary. Her love and concern have led to happier lives for many youngsters. Her present employment is as a hostess at the Best Western inn.

Business

Annette Bergan

When Annette Bergan isn't away from home conducting a tour, she is probably at the office planning one. Her enthusiasm for travel and the travel business is shared by her husband Robert and their daughters Tammy and Paula.

After establishing "Annette's Fabrics and Yarn," she sold that business and started the Bergan Travel agency, later adding the Big Scoop ice cream store in the Falls Mall. She has served on chamber of commerce committees, is a member of the Zehlian art group and belongs to a book club.

Culture

Dee Forney

Music and art interests have led Dee Forney into a number of activities, including state president of the National Federation of Music clubs, one of the founders and past president (two terms) of the Thief River Falls community arts council, chairman of the arts committee of the Northwest regional development commission for seven years, president of the Thief River Falls Concert association and president of the Zehlian art group of the Thief River Falls federation of women's clubs.

Currently she is one of two organists at Trinity Lutheran church, chairs a committee on scholarship to the international music camp for the Minnesota Federation of Music clubs, is arts chairman of the Ninth District Minnesota Federation of Women's clubs and a member of the Thief River drama group. She and her husband Walter have four sons, Walter (Jay), David, Donald and James. Dee is a member of "Who's Who in American Women."

Politics

Marcella Gonsorowski

The only woman in northwestern Minnesota to serve on the county board of commissioners, Marcella Gonsorowski of Newfolden was elected to the Marshall county board in 1980 and was recently elected board chairman. She also serves on a nine-member committee concerned with hazardous waste disposal and is very interested in agriculture and agricultural programs.

Mrs. Gonsorowski says her major concern is the next generation and she believes all citizens should work to make changes in our society to provide for a better world tomorrow. Marcella and her husband Leonard have a daughter and two sons.

Education

Margaret Marvin

Having just completed a term on the state board of education, Margaret Marvin of Warroad has served as chairman of the subcommittee on libraries and on the government affairs committee for the National Association of State Boards. She has been active in Girl scout leadership, assisted in establishment of the Northwest regional library system and has been honored with a certificate of merit from the Minnesota Library association.

Margaret taught school in Warroad where she met and married Bill Marvin of Marvin Windows and the couple has six children. For some time she presented a radio broadcast five days a week from her home, providing news of the Warroad community, fishing reports, interviews and features.

Religion

Rev. Nancy Jewell

After studying dental hygiene and then teaching the subject at the University of South Dakota, she earned a master of arts degree in educational psychology and decided to attend Luther-Northwestern seminary in St. Paul where she received a master of divinity degree. She was ordained into the ministry in 1981.

Now pastor of First Lutheran church in Warren, Rev. Jewell is chairman of the task force for equality and justice for women and men in church and society for the Red River Valley synod of the Lutheran Church in America. The task force has placed its initial focus on family violence, and Rev. Jewell also served on the board of directors of the Ripley shelter for battered women in Thief River Falls. Her hobbies include bowling, golfing, ice fishing and sports cars.

PALM TREES and sandy beaches would be a welcome sight to many Minnesotans weary of winter weather. Hawaii will be the topic of the evening Lions club's travel and adventure series Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium. Dennis Cooper will present this program which is the third in the travel and adventure series.

With an estimated 130 dairy producers in Beltrami county, 26 agreed to reduce their 143,767 hundredweight base by 29,746 hundredweight or 20.7 per cent. Nine of the dairymen agreed to cut production by 30 per cent, six by 27 per cent and three by 15 per cent. Total payment is estimated at $297,464.

Kittson

Ten of the approximately 22 dairy producers in Kittson county agreed to reduce their 53,482 hundredweight base by 11,235 hundredweight or 21 per cent. Six agreed to cut production by 27 per cent. Total payment is projected at $112,356.

Help A Heart Month Special To Bruggeman

many problems over the coming weeks. Initially, a long monitoring line had to be placed through his heart into his lung arteries to control congestive heart failure. His heart had to be monitored continually and multiple drugs were administered to reduce irritation of the heart and prevent another arrest. He was unable to breathe on his own for several days and had to be placed on a respirator.

Dr. Heinrichs notes that fifteen years ago, cardiac arrest almost always meant certain death. He credits the immediate start of CPR with bringing Sid out of his arrest state, but adds that subsequent complications which arose would have again meant certain death without the newer monitoring techniques and drugs which have become available in the last five years.

Purchase of that monitoring equipment at a cost of $65,000 has been financed almost completely by the hospital auxiliary, a volunteer group which has raised funds in a number of innovative ways, including operation of a hospital gift shop, but one of their most successful efforts has been the conducting of a series of "vanishing teas."

Under this project, auxiliary members invite people to attend a tea party and make a donation to the fund. Each of those individuals invite some of their friends to another tea party, and soon, until the number of people who haven't attended diminishes to a "vanishing point."

Valerie Larson, one of the co-chairmen of the auxiliary project notes that they only have $6,000 left to pay on the heart monitoring equipment at this point. "If we get a good response on the vanishing tea project, I feel we can pay that debt off by the middle of March," she said.

Sid and Helen Bruggeman are quick to add their support to the project, and express a lot of faith in the willingness of Thief River Falls people to lend their assistance.

"I think everyone in town was praying for me when I was in the hospital," says Sid. "That's the real reason we can be together today," Helen adds.

"But it's terrific to have this equipment here," comments Sid. "There's just too many heart patients, and they can't afford to be without it." Having sold cars in Thief River Falls for over 25 years, Sid should know a good deal when he sees it.

Carlson Herd Takes Honors At DHIA Meet

records will end, since the Carlsons also had the top producing two-year-old which had a record of 20,662 pounds of milk and 837 pounds of butterfat in her first lactation. Twenty-two of the association's top 50 cows were from the Carlson herd, 16 of them in the top 25.

Second place herd in butterfat production was Duane Krohn of Viking with an average of 678 pounds of butterfat while second place in milk production was the Lyle Swanson herd of rural Thief River Falls with 17,715 pounds of milk. Ten of the 28 herds on DHIA test with the association had butterfat averages higher than 600 pounds per cow.

Robert Rausch of rural Thief River Falls had the only non-Carlson cow in the top 10 among individual producers with a sixth place animal that yielded 19,607 pounds of milk and 922 pounds of butterfat.

Records kept by Jerry Hamre, supervisor of the association, indicated that there were 64 cows which produced 100 pounds of milk or more on test day during the year. Top production was 127 pounds by an animal on the Mylo Carlson farm and second was production of 122 pounds on the Walter Brothers farm at Plummer.

Hamre also reported that there were 287 cows owned by members of the Pennington county association which had individual production records of 620 pounds of butterfat or more during the past testing year. Despite the high production, the association average of 538 pounds of butterfat per cow during 1983 dropped to 17 pounds below the state average of 555 pounds. In 1982 the association's average production was 540 pounds and the state average was 546, and in 1981 the association's average of 540 pounds was seven pounds above the state average of 533.

The James Muzzy dairy herd at Thief River Falls continues to be the herd with longest membership in the association at 36 years. The John Hess herd at Argyle has been a member 29 years and the Earl Erickson herd at Viking and Hanson Heritage herd at Thief River Falls are 24-year members.

Financial statement of the association for 1983 showed income of $28,797 and expenses of $26,899. Sonia and Myron Iverson have joined Jerry Hamre as supervisors for the association which now lists 36 member herds.

Junior High Math Contest Set At UMC

"Mathcounts", the new nationwide math program for seventh and eighth grade students, will hold its first regional competition on Saturday at the University of Minnesota - Crookston (UMC). Program is being organized by Lake Agassiz chapter, Minnesota society of professional engineers, with Bob Wolfe of Bemidji as president.

Mathcounts is both a coaching program and a competition series at the school, regional, state and national levels. In their local schools, students took a screening exam to alert teachers to their math strengths and weaknesses. Teachers then spent several months coaching students for the oral and written competitions. Those who make the school math team will compete in the region against other school "mathletes" on February 18.

The engineering society anticipates that as many as 50 students will participate in the regional meet this year. Winning teams of each state will receive trips to Washington D.C., for the national finals in May. National winners will be flown to Cape Canaveral for a space shuttle launch, among other prizes.

By sponsoring the Mathcounts program, the engineers hope to address the nationwide problem of declining math skills among pre-college students. For more details about Mathcounts in northwest Minnesota, contact Omar Rood at 281-6522.

Indian Schools To Be Studied In Minnesota

Three meetings have been scheduled by the Minnesota department of education and the Minnesota state board of education to hear from American Indian communities regarding their concerns about public education services.

Meetings will be held from 9 a.m. to noon February 21 in Redlake, (information on exact location is available from the superintendent of schools in Redlake); 9 a.m. to noon February 22, at Leech Lake Reservation tribal council chambers in Cass Lake; and 1 to 3:30 p.m. February 23, at the Ojibway school on the Fond du Lac reservation.

Purpose of the meetings is to improve communication among Indian educators, parents, tribal officials and students, and improve services to American Indian learners in Minnesota, according to Paul Schultz, assistant commissioner of the state department of education. "While American Indian students in Minnesota have begun to realize important educational gains, there are still many problems to be addressed," says Schultz. "This effort will help identify the special needs of American Indian students and suggest changes to enhance educational opportunities for them."

Grain Farmers Meet Monday At Auditorium

Farmers interested in developing a grain shipping point for block marketing through Thief River Falls are encouraged to attend a meeting Monday at 1 p.m. in the basement meeting room of the Thief River Falls city auditorium, according to Ronald Kotrba of Goodridge, representing the Zone 1 grain department of the National Farmers Organization (NFO).

At a monthly meeting of the county NFO Thursday, Richard Jorde of Thief River Grain in Thief River Falls was present to offer use of that facility to move grain in this area through a "Gulf Grain Block." Rates were reported to be 72 cents per hundredweight for single car shipment, 61 cents per hundredweight for three cars, and 58 cents for 24 cars plus a five or six cents per hundredweight handling charge by the elevator.

Kotrba said that organizations including the Farmer Labor association, National Farmers Organization, Farmers Union, American Agriculture movement, Farm Bureau and COACT are working together to affect an increase in grain prices.

He quoted from a statement following a combined meeting of these groups in Granite Falls which said:

"The farm coalition is working together actively supporting and endorsing the Gulf Grain Block to get pricing of corn at $4.50 and soybeans at $10 basis gulf delivery and what at $5 basis Minneapolis. We believe these prices are reasonable and attainable when the commodities are signed in a block and represented in the marketplace by the National Farmers Organization.

"Furthermore, the farm coalition represented here today will continue to work together in supporting state and national minimum pricing at a minimum of 80 per cent parity, plus its implementation."

Kotrba pointed out that the USDA projected carryover for 1984 indicates 595 million bushels of corn, an increase of 83 million bushels or a 17½-day supply; 185 million bushels of soybeans, an increase of 35 million or a 40-day supply; and 1.441 bushels of wheat, an increase of 35 million; 135 million bushels of barley, a decrease of 17 million; and 170 million bushels of oats, virtually unchanged.

Compassionate Friends Meet Set At Fosston

Fosston chapter of the Compassionate Friends international will hold a public meeting at 8 p.m. at the Embassy community center at 3rd and North Eaton in Fosston February 21. The meeting will be in the form of a concert of various types of music and poetry readings featuring a wide variety of Fosston musical and dramatic talent.

President Lorraine Evje, of the Fosston compassionate friends reports that music and poetry are some of the newest forms of therapy being used today in the field of health.

There is no charge for the evening's concert but a free will offering will be accepted to assist the Fosston compassionate friends chapter to purchase records, tapes and books to aid them in their ministry to bereaved parents in the area.

Lunch will be served by the group following the evening's musicale! The public is invited to attend.

Hawaii Topic For Travel Series Monday

On Monday the Thief River Falls evening Lions club will present its third program of the "Travel and Adventure" series at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium.

Dennis Cooper has turned his talent for creating fun-filled entertainment to the Islands of Hawaii. Often called the "Paradise of the Pacific" for their beauty, climate and hospitality, the Hawaiian Islands are the subject of Monday evening's program.

The film features Kauai, the "Garden Island", where every pathway is alive with tropical blooms; Oahu, with its famous Waikiki beach, Pearl Harbor and majestic Diamond Head; the Polynesian cultural center; sugar cane and pineapple fields of Maui; the old whaling port of Lahaina; the black sand of Hawaii's Kona coast; and the Parker Ranch, second biggest ranch in the United States.

Ingebrigtsens At Hegland

Mr. and Mrs. Ingolf Ingebrigtsen of Karlstad will be providing special music for a meeting of the Luther League at Hegland Free Lutheran church, rural Strandquist at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, February 19.

Program is open to the public, with fellowship and refreshments to follow.

Park Board To Meet Tues.

An 82-76 loser to unbeaten Northwest Division leader Fergus Falls Tuesday, the Northland community college basketball team is in trouble, but isn't out of the running yet for a Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) state basketball tournament berth next week, in Bloomington.

But with a 5-5 division record, the Northmen are going to need help to get there, admitted coach Chet Engelman.

Fergus Falls is 10-0 and will enter the state tournament quarterfinals a week from Thursday as the No. 1 seed from the Northwest Division. At 6-3, Brainerd currently has a definite edge for second place behind Fergus Falls and the No. 2 state tournament seed from the Northwest Division. University of Minnesota-Crookston is 5-4 and Northland 5-5, but both could still steal second place away from Brainerd.

Actually, all three could end up in a second place tie as the regular season schedule ends this week. Brainerd will be at Fergus Falls and Northland visits UMC Thursday, then UMC will drive to Brainerd Saturday to close it out.

A Fergus Falls win over Brainerd, coupled with a Northland victory over UMC and then a UMC decision over Brainerd would leave the Red Raiders, Northmen and Trojans all 6-5 in the Northwest Division. And the tie-breaking system would be complicated by the fact that all three would have split each home-and-home series with one another.

In the other three MCCC divisional races, Vermilion has a lock on the Northeast Division pennant, with Itasca the likely runner-up finisher; Worthington and Rochester are separated by just one game in the Southern Division race where they have a cushion over the rest of the field; and Anoka-Ramsey has a two-game lead in the Central Division, where Normandale has a one-game edge over Inver Hills and Lakewood for second place.

Prowlers Face Bemidji Friday

Its been mentioned before that since absorbing an 84-39 drubbing at the hands of Bemidji back on Jan. 6 that dropped the Prowlers to 2-6, the Lincoln high school basketball team has turned things around to be a very competitive 4-4 over the last eight games.

Friday, however, they face that Bemidji squad again. That starts a string of strong season-ending assignments for the Prowlers, who will host Park Rapids on Tues., Feb. 21, then finish the schedule with Friday night games at East Grand Forks and Warren Feb. 24 and March 2.

A 48-35 win over Middle River Saturday closed out a six-game homestand for the Prowlers, whose Friday night trip to Bemidji is their first road game in exactly one month. With three of the final four games on the road against strong teams, the Prowlers' bid to improve upon their 6-10 record will be tested.

Lincoln Girls Host Green Wave

Final regular season home appearance for the Lincoln high school girls basketball team Thursday features an East Grand Forks team that has lost just once in 16 games as the opponent.

East Grand Forks, a 61-43 winner over Thief River Falls earlier this winter, beat Bemidji 49-44 Thursday in a match-up of teams expected to be the favorites in area Class A and Class AA tournament play.

Bemidji, the North Sub-Region 8AA favorite, then lost to another Class A power Saturday when Cass Lake rallied from a 46-36 deficit with 4½ minutes left in regulation time to edge the Lumberjills 58-52 in overtime. Bemidji fell to 11-5 with the back-to-back losses to the teams who are rated the Region 8A favorites. Cass Lake ran its record to 18-0 with the win.

Hibbing, UMC Are Hockey Favorites

Regular season league winner Hibbing and defending state champion University of Minnesota-Crookston will be the favorites this weekend in the new Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) state hockey playoff format.

Playing two-game, total-goal series at two separate sites instead of the single-site, four-team semifinals and finals used in the past, Hibbing will be at home against No. 4 finisher Rochester and No. 2 UMC will host No. 3 Rainy River this weekend.

Those winners will meet the following week in another two-game, total-goal series at the site of the highest regular season finisher in the state finals.

Minnesota state champion will receive an automatic berth into the national tournament at DuPage, Ill., while the state runner-up will play NDSU-Bottineau for the right to advance as the second team for Region 13.

Prowlers Beat Warroad; Host Otters Friday

Thief Rivee Falls jumped out to a 3-0 first period lead, held off a second period Warroad comeback try and finished with a 5-2 Section 8 high school hockey win Tuesday that was expected to clinch a top four seed for the Prowlers in the upcoming Section 8 tournament quarterfinals.

Two goals by Mitch Semanko, sandwiched around a goal by Ryan Bakke, gave Thief River Falls that early 3-0 edge. They started quickly, getting a game-opening goal by Semanko at 2:12 and one from Bakke just 1:31 later.

Warroad shaved the margin to 3-2 in the early stages of the second period, but goals late in the period by Scott Novak and Brian Johnston rebuilt the Thief River Falls lead and completed the scoring.

Thief River Falls' record climbed to 12-6-1 with the win, which includes a 10-1-1 mark in the Prowlers' last dozen games. They finish their 1983-84 regular season schedule Friday against an equally-hot Fergus Falls squad in a 7:30 p.m. game at the sports arena that will not count in the final Section 8 standings.

Outdoor Rinks Being Closed

All outdoor skating rinks in Thief River Falls are closed, it was announced today by the park and recreation department, because of the warm weather. Rink will be reopened immediately when weather permits.

TRF Backcourt Club To Host Girls, Parents

Girls in the fourth and fifth grade youth basketball program, and their parents, are invited for coffee, pop and doughnuts in the Lincoln high school home ec room Thursday between the junior varsity and varsity Thief River Falls-East Grand Forks girls basketball games — approximately 7:15 p.m.

Thief River Falls Backcourt Club is sponsoring the event to promote basketball in Thief River Falls.

A reminder that all the children involved in playing the elementary basketball games at halftime of the Prowlers' games are not required to pay an admission, but all parents must pay to get into the game.

A WINNER by an easy margin in the diving portion of Tuesday's Thief River Falls-Bemidji high school swimming meet at the Franklin middle school pool was the Prowlers' Todd Wing, a junior shown here beginning a forward dive. Wing and teammate Jeff Rosetta have dominated the area diving scene this winter and rank as Section 8 favorites in the event. Rosetta, a senior, missed the final Thief River Falls home meet of the 1983-84 season because of illness.

LHS Swimmers Lose To Jacks

Combination of a strong Bemidji line-up and illness that struck down several of the top Thief River Falls point scorers made for a one-sided high school dual meet swimming result Tuesday as the Lumberjacks handled the Prowlers 101-67 in the Franklin middle school pool.

Bemidji swimmers won eight of the 11 events as the Thief River Falls dual meet season record fell to 5-3 in the Prowlers' final home appearance of the 1983-84 season. Thief River Falls closes out its schedule Friday with a 4:30 p.m. dual meet at Moorhead.

Thief River Falls winners included a double triumph by senior Dave Ose, who won the sprints with a 23.83 in the 50-yard freestyle and a 53.74 in the 100-yard freestyle.

Bemidji's Paul St. Onge had a hand in three wins with a 2:01.50 in the 200-yard freestyle; a 5:38.83 in the 500-yard freestyle; and the lead leg on the Lumberjacks' winning 400-yard freestyle relay.

After traveling to Moorhead, Thief River Falls will be idle until the 1984 Section 8 meet, scheduled to be held March 2-3 at Bemidji.

Lakers Hand Prowlers 65-55 Basketball Loss

Detroit Lakes defeated Thief River Falls 65-55 Tuesday in a girls high school basketball game at the Lincoln gym, handing the Prowlers their third straight loss and dropping their record to 9-8 for the year.

Thief River Falls has a tough assignment Thursday when the Prowlers close out their 1983-84 home schedule against a strong East Grand Forks team that beat them earlier this year 61-43. Regular season play ends next Tuesday for the Prowlers at Fergus Falls.

Jan Hepola, a 5-6 junior guard, poured in 29 points for the Lakers, who owned quarter leads of 16-13, 34-26 and 51-40. Several Prowlers were slowed by the effects of the flu, including center Michelle Puetz who still managed to score a team-leading 15 points despite sitting out long stretches of the game. Connie Grovum had a strong 14-point game for the Prowlers and Michelle Olson scored 10.

"We didn't look sharp at all," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer, who said the flu virus the Prowlers were fighting had a lot to do with their performance. "We just didn't move well at all."

However, he was quick to give Detroit Lakes' its just due. "Detroit Lakes is probably the most aggressive team we've faced this year defensively," said Schafer. "They're all over the court. Their full court press really bothered us."

Thief River Falls lost the ball 35 times on turnovers.

Both teams had solid shooting games. Thief River Falls was 23-for-56 from the field (46 per cent), while Detroit Lakes as 26-for-60 (43 per cent). The Prowlers were 9-for-19 at the free throw line (47 per cent), where the Lakers were 13-for-24 (54 per cent). Thief River Falls charts showed the Prowlers with a big 37-21 rebound edge, but that was offset by the turnovers. Detroit Lakes turned the ball over 22 times, but the Lakers' hot first half shooting (16-for-33) built an early lead the visitors never surrendered.

Division-Leader Spartans Defeat Northmen 82-76

Fergus Falls remained unbeaten in Northwest Division play Tuesday with an 82-76 victory over the Northland community college basketball team.

Northland fell to 11-8 for the year, 5-5 in the Northwest Division. The Northmen will complete their 1983-84 regular season schedule Thursday at the University of Minnesota-Crookston. Fergus Falls is 15-4 for the year, 10-0 in the Northwest Division.

"It was a good ball game," reported Northland coach Chet Engelman. "Our kids played well. They played with some enthusiasm. It was probably the best effort we've had in a long time. I can't find too many things to fault them with."

Northland was in the game the entire 40 minutes. The Northwomen led 29-24 with 5:28 remaining in the first half after a basket by freshman guard Dan Flanagan, but Fergus Falls finished the half by out-scoring Northland 14-4 the final five minutes to take a 38-33 lead into intermission.

"That kind of settled the issue right there," admitted Engelman.

Kyle Ramsey, coming back from an ankle injury that kept him out of a 102-86 loss at Brainerd Saturday, and Rod Scales scored 20 points apiece for the host Northmen, while Shorty Johnson—and Jon Neumann both added 10. That 20-point figure was matched by Fergus Falls' Tom Schneider, while Kevin Boe scored 17.

Northland shot 47 per cent from the field (34-for-72) and 67 per cent at the free throw line (8-for-12). Fergus Falls shot 52 per cent from the field (39-for-75) and 50 per cent at the line (4-for-8). The Spartans had a 42-37 rebound edge, with Ramsey grabbing 13 for the Northmen and Johnson getting 10. The Northmen topped the turnover figures 18-17.

LHS Basketball JV, Freshmen Defeat Lakers

Brenda Russell scored 15 points for the winners, who trailed at the quarter stops 9-2, 21-10 and 29-28.

Thief River Falls is 10-5 for the year.

Meanwhile, the Lincoln freshmen girls broke into the win column for the first time in nine tries with a 50-33 victory over Detroit Lakes as Laura Belto scored 14 points and Debbie Souto had 10.

Top Four Section 8 Teams Are Picked

As expected, Roseau, Bemidji, Fergus Falls and Thief River Falls were the top four vote-getters this morning (Wednesday) as the 19 Section 8 head coaches telephoned their choices for the Section 8 hockey tournament qualifiers to Frank Fee in Crookston.

Coaches for the first time were to seed the top four teams into the Section 8 tournament quarterfinals, scheduled to be played in Thief River Falls Feb. 24-25. Teams could be selected regardless of their finish in the Section 8 standings, which were finalized with Tuesday's games. As it worked out, though, the Rams, Lumberjacks, Otters and Prowlers did finish 1-2-4-5.

Rest of the teams will battle for the remaining four Section 8 tournament berths through sub-sectional play, beginning this weekend at various sites.

Those parings are based upon the final Section 8 standings, broken down into a north-south basis.

First round sub-section games Saturday in the North Half will include a doubleheader at Baudette, with Warroad playing Indus at 6:30 p.m. and East Grand Forks Sacred Heart taking on Lake of the Woods at 9 p.m. In 7:30 p.m. games, Hallock will be at Red Lake Falls and East Grand Forks will be at Crookston.

Saturday's first round sub-section games in the South Half will all have 7:30 p.m. starting times as Little Falls plays at Moorhead; Crosby-Ironton at Alexandria; and Detroit Lakes meets Bagley at the Bemidji city arena. Brainerd draws a first round South Half bye.

Second round sub-sectional games will be played Monday.

CELEBRATING A victory in the 50-yard freestyle during Tuesday's Thief River Falls-Bemidji high school swimming meet at the Franklin middle school pool was the Prowlers' Dave Ose, a senior who turned in a 23.83 clocking in the event. Ose also won the 100-yard freestyle in 53.74. The Lumberjacks beat the Prowlers, though, 101-67.

Spartans Beat Northland 90-67

A game second half effort couldn't make up a huge first half deficit Tuesday as the Northland community college women's basketball team lost a 90-67 Northwest Division game to Fertus Falls.

Visiting Spartans ran up a 50-24 first half cushion and was never threatened, although the Northwomen came back to out-score the winners 43-40 in the second half.

"We played probably the best half of basketball we've played this year in the second half," pointed out Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "It was a good second half. The first half wasn't so good."

Kathy Pietruszewski, a 5-7 freshman from East Grand Forks, scored a season high 19 points to lead the Northwomen, getting 15 of those in the second half, mostly from the outside.

Northland shot 40 per cent from the field (29-for-71) and 53 per cent at the free throw line (9-for-17). Fergus Falls shot 47 per cent from the field (41-for-88) and 50 per cent at the line (8-for-16). The Spartans had a 55-43 rebound advantage and the Northwomen were charged with 30 of the game's 42 turnovers.

Final game of the 1983-84 season for the Northwomen will be played Thursday when they visit the University of Minnesota-Crookston for a 6 p.m. game. Northland is 7-11 for the year, 2-8 in the Northwest Division.

Region Archery Shoot Set Here This Weekend

Thief River Falls Archery Club will be hosting a Minnesota State Archery Association (MSAA) regional archery qualifying shoot Saturday and Sunday at the local indoor range, located above the old arena in downtown Thief River Falls.

Competition will be held Saturday and Sunday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. featuring 2-300 rounds of all MSAA classes and divisions.

Coffee and doughnuts will be served. For additional information contact Ed Swantek at 681-6291.

LHS Freshmen Lose Tuesday To Valley 46-45

Lincoln high school freshman basketball team lost a close 46-45 decision to Valley junior high of Grand Forks Tuesday in the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

Thief River Falls led 16-18 at the end of the first quarter, but trailed 26-21 at halftime and fell behind 40-32 in the third quarter.

Brian Stark scored 14 points for the host team, with Griff Newland and Andy Gengler both adding 10. Chad Sattler scored 20 for the winners.

Thief River Falls fell to 4-12 with the loss, but three of the last four losses have been by a combined total of just five points. Thief River Falls will be at Schroeder junior high in Grand Forks Thursday for a 4:15 p.m. game and will be at Bemidji Friday for a 5:45 p.m. game.

Sports Boosters Plan Meeting

Lincoln high school swimming coach Jay Forney will be the guest speaker Thursday at the weekly 12-noon Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club luncheon meeting in the basement of the Rex Cafe.

Youth Basketball

Tim Benson scored 18 points for the winners, while Peter Balmer had 16 and Brice Anderson 14 for St. Bernard's.

In the other A game, Washington defeated Mark Twain 53-24 as Travis Lewis scored 21 points and Peter Balmer 20. Tyson Treat and Mike Swanson both scored 9 points to lead Mark Twain.

Meanwhile, Mark Twain beat Northrop 27-20 in a B game as John Wallberg scored 9 points and Lance Hendrickson had 8. Matt Kaushagen scored 8 points and Kelly Leher had 7 for Northrop.

Boys schedule for Saturday at Knox will include Northrop vs. Mark Twain in a 1 p.m. B game; Northrop vs. Mark Twain in a 2 p.m. A game; and Washington vs. St. Bernard's in a 3 p.m. A game.

Becky Bjerken scored 22 points and Becky Hasby had 18 in the St. Bernard's victory, with Jodi Kruta scoring 10 for Mark Twain. Karen Feuerstein scored 18 points in the Washington win.

In girls B games, Bernard's edged Mark Twain 42-40 and Washington beat Northrop 32-14.

Tanya Schob scored 16 points and Karla Ortloff had 14 for St. Bernard's, while Tarek Koivisto scored 22 points and Beth Peterson had 10 for Mark Twain. Ramada Erickson and Syndi Steinert each scored 12 in the Washington win.

Girls games scheduled Wed., Feb. 22, will feature St. Bernard's at Washington and Northrop vs. Mark Twain at Knox. Games at both sites will begin with B games at 3:15 p.m. and will include the A game at 4:15.

Bats are the only major predators of night-flying insects, and they're good at it too, says International Wildlife magazine. A single gray bat may consume 3,000 or more insects during a night's feeding; and a single cave of free-tailed bats in Texas may eat 500,000 pounds of small insects nightly.

— TRF Youth Hockey —

by John Michael Anderson

Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRF-AHA) teams closed out the regular season schedule over the weekend and will enter district play Saturday and Sunday.

Pee-Wee B

Coach Dale Wennberg's Pee-Wee B team finished its regular season with a pair of victories, defeating Fargo North 6-3 at home Saturday and beating East Grand Forks 6-2 Sunday, putting their record at 18-5-2, including a 14-1-2 mark in District 15-16 play and 7-1-2 in the North Division.

In 25 games they have scored 184 goals and allowed only 57. Leading goal scorers are Roger Anderson (31), Paul Borchert (30) and Paul Kezar (21). Assist leaders are Jerold Kolden (18) and Jamie Harder (17). In goal, Karl Heinrichs has a 2.33 goals-against average while Todd Stewart has a 2.25 figure.

Pee-Wee A

Eagles Pee-Wee A team finished the regular season with a 17-8 record, 11-5 in league action.

They split a home-and-home series with East Grand Forks over the weekend. At home Saturday, Thief River Falls posted a 9-6 victory in a real shoot-out. Rick Looker scored five goals, Wade Jorde two and Aaron Bruzek, along with Corey Poole, one each.

Thief River Falls lost the rematch in East Grand Forks Sunday 7-4. Looker scored twice while Bruzek and Poole each scored once.

Eagles Pee-Wee A team will be the host team for district tournament play here Saturday and Sunday.

Bantam B

Coach Scott Bergland's Bantam B team finished regular season play with a 15-10-1 record and will enter district tournament play in East Grand Forks.

Saturday, Thief River Falls lost to Roseau 6-1, with Chris Johnson scoring the lone goal. Sunday, Steve Gillespie scored twice and Shawn Krepp scored once as Thief River Falls defeated East Grand Forks 3-1.

Bantam A

VFW Bantam A team improved its record to 16-11-1 with a pair of one-sided wins over East Grand Forks, along with a well-played 4-4 tie with Roseau.

Against Roseau, Thief River Falls led 2-1 after one period on goals by Bill Dicken and Steve McGann. The score was tied 3-3 after two periods as Roseau scored twice and McGann scored for Thief River Falls. Jon Matson's goal tied the game at 9:19 of the third period.

Thief River Falls bombed East Grand Forks twice, winning 10-3 at home Saturday and winning 15-5 in East Grand Forks Sunday.

VFW Bantam A team will enter district play in Bemidji.

Bantam Merchants

Sunday, Aaron Wedul's two goals, along with single tallies by Brunkhorst, Mark Minor and Murry Meigaard, helped Thief River Falls beat Red Lake Falls 5-2.

Pee-Wee In-House

Thief River Falls Pee-Wee In-House players lost three games against outside competition over the weekend, with two of the games going into overtime.

East Grand Forks beat Thief River Falls twice Saturday by 13-2 and 4-3 scores, with the second one going into overtime, and Fosston won a 5-4 overtime game on some pretty soft ice in Fosston Sunday.

Goodridge Girls Win A 72-70 Shoot-Out Mon.

Senior Diana Troska scored 30 points and sophomore Jennie Boutain had 29 Monday as Goodridge outlasted Clearbrook 72-70 in a high-scoring overtime girls high school basketball game played at Clearbrook.

"It was a real shoot-out," reported Goodridge coach Patti Johnson. "I thought we really played well."

Lead changed hands at every quarter stop as Clearbrook posted a 14-10 first quarter lead but trailed 32-30 at halftime despite shooting 75 per cent from the field the first 16 minutes (15-for-20). The Hornets went back on top 49-48 as the third quarter ended, but blew a six-point lead in the final two minutes of regulation time as the Huskies rallied for a 65-65 tie. Clearbrook missed the front end of two bonus free throw opportunities near the end that could have put it away.

Clearbrook also had a chance to tie it at the end of the three-minute overtime by grabbing an offensive rebound with four seconds left. But the Hornets didn't get the shot off in time.

While Troska and Boutain did most of the Goodridge scoring, five Clearbrook players reached double figures, led by Jeanie Arnold with 15 points.

Goodridge shot a solid 48 per cent from the field (33-for-69), but that still didn't match Clearbrook's 53 per cent night (31-for-58). The Huskies shot poorly at the free throw line, making just 6 of 20 attempts. The Hornets were 8-for-19 at the line. Clearbrook had a 45-34 rebound advantage, but also topped the turnover charts 40-27.

It was just the fifth win in 16 games for the Huskies, but Johnson was enthused with the performance. "I think it looks promising for the tournaments," she said.

Goodridge will host Warren Thursday, then close out the 1983-84 regular season schedule Thuesday at home against Oklee.

Marshall County Central surrendered 15 first quarter points, but then allowed just 13 the rest of the way Monday en route to a 45-28 win over Strandquist at Newfolden.

Missing starters Shelly Anderson and Nancy Nelson because of illness, Marshall County Central fell behind 15-9 at the end of the first quarter, but gained a 21-21 tie at halftime and out-scored Strandquist 24-7 in the second half, building a 31-25 third quarter lead.

"We have a tendency to start slow," admitted Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde, "but I thought the team played pretty well in the second half with those two starters out."

Freshman Jodi Foss scored a game-high 19 points for the Nordics, while Jodi Nelson added 12 and Karen Busch had 10. No Strandquist scorer reached double figures.

Marshall County Central shot 33 per cent from the field (20-for-60), with Strandquist shooting 26 per cent (11-for-43). The Nordics were 5-for-14 at the free throw line, where the Warriors were 6-for-16. Marshall County Central had a 28-26 rebound edge and Strandquist had more turnovers, 14-6.

Two games remain on the Nordics' regular season scheduling, including a Thursday night showdown in Newfolden against rival Middle River. Marshall County Central, 10-7, will be at Greenbush Monday.

Plummer let an early 10-point lead slip away, but the visiting Cardinals held on for a 48-45 Monday night win over Oklee.

Ahead 12-2 at the start, Plummer owned a 14-8 first quarter lead, maintained a 25-20 halftime spread and carried a 33-32 advantage into the fourth quarter.

Two free throws by freshman Robin Brantl with eight seconds left opened up a three-point cushion for the Cardinals, who improved their record to 10-5.

Junior Jody Pahlen led a balanced Plummer attack with 15 points, while Sheila Jaegar scored 14 and Brantl had 10. Brantl also had 15 rebounds and Pahlen grabbed 11 as Plummer built a 43-30 edge on the boards.

Both teams shot 30 per cent from the field, with the Bobcats going 21-for-70 and the Cardinals 18-for-60. But Plummer was 12-for-18 at the free throw line, with Oklee going just 3-for-10. Plummer topped the turnover figures 24-20.

Plummer hosts East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Thursday and visits Stephen Friday before finishing the schedule Tuesday at home against unbeaten Middle River.

Grygla . . . . . . . . . . 40

Grygla tried to recover from a slow start Monday, but finished two points short in a 42-40 loss at Lake of the Woods.

"That first quarter really killed us, but after that we played probably the best three quarters we've played defensively all season," explained Grygla coach Mike Gast. "I felt we did a really good job defensively."

Lake of the Woods started with an 11-4 first quarter lead and carried a 22-14 edge into intermission. The Bears held on to a 30-24 lead after three quarters and managed to hold off the Grygla come-back in the final eight minutes.

Grygla shot 31 per cent from the field (16-for-51) and 44 per cent at the free throw line (8-for-18). Lake of the Woods shot 42 per cent from the field (16-for-38) and 62 per cent at the line (10-for-26).

Final regular season game for the 4-14 Eagles will be played Thursday when they host Badger.

DNR hotline

This spring Lake Bemidji State Park will be establishing a volunteer naturalist program to conduct activities primarily for special groups, such as scouts, grade school or other youth groups. Volunteers may lead hikes to look at spring flowers or trees or conduct other activities that will increase an awareness of plants and animals of the park for these groups. Other volunteer assistance is also needed in journalism, graphic arts and audio-visual production. Volunteers need not have formal training in program presentation, only the willingness to work with youth groups and be able to learn the skills of a Naturalist. For more information, call the Lake Bemidji State Park Office at 755-3843. John Fylpaa, Lake Bemidji State Park Naturalist.

2. This year when I returned to the White Earth State Forest for deer hunting, I found huge (hundreds of acres) sites clear cut to the bare ground. What is happening there?

I can't specifically say what is happening as I don't know the exact location or ownership of the clear cuts, but I can explain some of the characteristics of clear cuts in the White Earth State Forest.

Most of the area is covered with stands of 45-60 year old aspen. If aspen is not cut when it is mature (45-50 years old), it eventually deteriorates to a stand of low value hardwoods and brush. The DNR cutting policy in aspen types is to limit clear cuts to 20 acres in size, as this provides greater benefits for wildlife. However, sometimes it is not possible to cut just part of a stand because of damage from disease or weather. Then it may be determined that a larger clear cut that will allow a healthy stand to regenerate is better than leaving diseased and damaged trees, and taking a chance on losing the aspen in the stand. This may be the reason for the cutover areas you mentioned.

Aspen cannot tolerate shade, so all the trees are clear cut in an aspen logging operation. This allows the aspen and associated shrubs and forbs to regenerate and grow rapidly from the root systems. These areas produce excellent deer habitat, so keep an eye on them for future hunting opportunities. Doug Anderson, Bemidji Area Forestry Office.

3. Do you have a question, complaint or suggestion regarding how your natural resources are managed?

DNR Hotline is your direct channel to a representative who will answer you, whether it concerns parks, fish, wildlife, forests, waters or minerals. Write: DNR Hotline, 2115 Birchmont Beach Road NE, Bemidji, MN 56601.

Hockey Book Is Published By TRF Native

After 2½ years of research, a book authored by Lincoln high school graduate Bruce Engel documenting Iron Range conference hockey, was due for release on January 20. The book, entitled "Iron Range Conference Hockey: The Finest High School Hockey In The USA", focuses on the last twelve years, 1971-1983, of northeastern Minnesota hockey.

Each chapter of the book includes a story section and a statistics section for that particular year. The story section takes a personal, in-depth look at every team, their best games and players, the regular season and tournament action. The statistics section contains scores, rosters, records and other information on each of the twelve teams.

Engel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cordes Engel of Thief River Falls, is a former sports director and broadcaster at WHLB in Virginia, got the idea for the book while researching old scores as background information for sports broadcasts. Engel stated, "The further I went back, the more I became aware of the pride and interest the people of the area have in their hockey teams. Everyone really enjoyed looking back and reminiscing about the great teams and players from the past, and I just felt that the IRC deserved some type of records book."

Engel has been contacting hockey organizations in each of the twelve cities in an effort to get the book sold at high school hockey games and at the high schools themselves. The main purpose of the book is to promote IRC hockey and act as a fundraiser besides with partial proceeds going to the hockey organizations in each city.

Locally, the book will be available at TG Sporting Goods. It is priced at $5 per copy.

Goodridge Beats Grygla For Second Time, 67-48

Goodridge completed a two-game regular season sweep of rival Grygla Tuesday with a 67-48 high school basketball victory in Goodridge. The Huskies won the earlier meeting in Grygla, 59-51.

Goodridge took a narrow 14-12 first quarter lead and turned it into a 33-23 halftime cushion, then opened up a 48-31 third quarter gap.

Ross Parnow scored 17 points to lead a trio of Goodridge double figure scorers, with Scott Groven adding 12 and Tim Wayne 11. Jeff Klein had 17 for Grygla and Wayne Byklum added 12, but high-scoring Tony McLean netted just 5 as he battled illness in addition to the Goodridge defense.

Goodridge finished with a sizeable 53-27 rebound advantage, and that had a lot to do with the outcome, noted Brinkman. Wayne grabbed 12 rebounds, Groven 11 and Parnow 10. "They really hit the boards nice," he explained.

There was also an edge in shooting for the Huskies, who were 25-for-51 from the field (49 per cent), while the Eagles were 19-for-53 (36 per cent). A scrappy defensive game on both sides led to a number of fouls and free throw opportunities. Goodridge was 17-for-34 at the line and Grygla was 10-for-30.

Goodridge, now 7-11 and bouncing back from a 61-38 pasting Friday at the hands of Warren, will host Alvarado in a Polar Conference match-up Friday. Grygla, 5-11, hosts Roseau in a North Border Conference game Friday and will be at Plummer Monday.

Grygla coach Vern Johnson confirmed the rebounding difference was a big factor in the game. "Our inside rebounding was nonexistent," he said. "We didn't rebound at all. They just out-played us. That's proabably the most disappointed I've been in the team all year."

Johnson has been stressing the importance of Friday's game against Roseau as the Eagles try to improve their North Border position for a more favorable post-season draw.

Plummer . . . . . . . . . . 48

Plummer, after enjoying early season success in close game, lost its second consecutive narrow decision Tuesday when the host Cardinals dropped a 50-48 ball game to Mentor.

Last Friday Plummer lost an even closer 61-60 contest at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart. Those two narrow setbacks have dropped the Cardinals to .500 for the year. They visit Stephen Friday.

Plummer led 18-17 at the end of the first quarter, but fell behind 30-28 at halftime and trailed 39-34 after three quarters. The Cardinals had a chance to tie it when they controlled the ball the final 30 seconds for a final shot, but the 12-footer missed with eight seconds to play.

Tim Gagner scored 20 points for Plummer and Gene Fisher contributed 10. Steve Passmore led Mentor with 21 points.

Shooting percentages were pretty even. Plummer shot 39 per cent from the field (21-for-54) and 60 per cent at the free throw line (6-for-10), while Mentor shot 40 per cent from the field (19-for-48) and 60 per cent at the line (12-for-20). The other numbers were even, too, as Plummer posted a narrow 26-25 rebound edge and also topped the turnover chart 27-22.

Schedule

Mon., Feb. 20 — Grygla at Plummer.

Kennedy's Tommy Jon Deere and Scott Johnson followed a season-long pattern by combining for 48 points Tuesday as the Rockets defeated visiting Marshall County Central 63-55 in area high school basketball action.

Deere had 30 points and Johnson 18. Rest of the Rockets produced just seven total points.

Marshall County Central led 7-6 at the end of the first quarter and took a 27-25 edge into halftime, but came out of the third quarter trailing 42-37.

Ken Krohn scored 12 points and Randy Dahl 11 for the Nordics, who fell to 11-6 with the loss. They face another strong District 32 challenge Friday when Marshall County Central and Tri-County meet at Karlstad.

Kennedy has lost just twice all year — a season-opening setback to Alvarado and a 53-39 loss to host Thief River Falls in the Christmas Classic tournament.

"Their inside-outside combination is pretty tough to contend with," acknowledged Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland, "but I thought we played fairly well. We had a few mistakes that were costly."

Marshall County Central, ahead once 18-8 in the second quarter, out-scored Kennedy from the field, but the Rockets were 17-for-24 from the free throw line, where the Nordics were 7-for-14. Marshall County Central went 24-for-58 from the field (41 per cent), while Kennedy was 23-for-41 (56 per cent). The Nordics out-rebounded the Rockets 25-19, and Kennedy had one more turnover, 17-16.

Middle River . . . . . . . . 66
Badger . . . . . . . . . . 57

It was not a good Middle River performance, reported Skippers coach Eldon Sparby. "We were lucky to win," he said. "If it were not for Danny Cwikla coming off the bench and scoring his nine points in the last 9-10 minutes, we probably would have lost."

Badger led 16-10 at the end of the first quarter and had a 32-29 halftime edge. Middle River went ahead 45-44 at the end of the third quarter, and iced the win when Cwikla made three key free throws down the stretch.

Tom Neumann of Middle River and Barrett Hoosier of Badger shared game-high scoring honors with 19 points each, while Kevin McKeever of the Skippers hit 18 and teammate John Scheff contributed 10.

Badger shot 49 per cent from the field (26-for-53), but the Rockets were just 5-for-14 at the free throw line (36 per cent). Middle River shot 45 per cent from the field (27-for-59) and were 12-for-21 at the line (57 per cent). Badger owned a 30-21 rebound edge.

Middle River, 7-10, will host Warroad Friday.

Conservation Clubs Given NWF Awards

Sixteen community conservation clubs have been selected by the National Wildlife Federation to receive the NWF 1983 President's Award for exceptional achievement during the last year.

All the clubs belong to a state affiliate of the National Wildlife Federation, the nation's largest conservation organization with over four million members and supporters.

Winners, chosen by NWF President Benjamin C. Dysart from 6,000 eligible clubs in 51 state and territorial affiliates, were cited for accomplishments in affective conservation action and environmental education programs, and for their contribution to their state affiliate.

Those 16 clubs were congratulated by Dysart for their "collective efforts which have served to emphasize the importance of an alert, active and aggressive community club as the essential ingredient of an efficient and effective state federation."

After spending millions of dollars to stop erosion along creeks in the west's arid sagebrush hills, engineers turned to beavers for help, reports National Wildlife magazine. Grass is now growing and trout have returned to Wyoming creeks, thanks to dams built by eight beavers that were trapped and then released there two years ago.

DNR NEWS

Lands Aid Schools

State owned lands administered by the Department of Natural Resources have produced over $32 million for Minnesota's permanent school fund during the past eight years.

Earnings from the fund, which now totals $321 million, are appropriated to Minnesota's public schools.

Lands contain the timber, minerals and other resources that produce revenue for the fund and were granted to the state by the federal government in the 1800's.

Nearly eight million acres of such land were originally granted, but land sales over the years have reduced the figure to 2.5 million acres, or about 30 per cent of the original land grant.

Income from sales of land and timber, royalties and leases of state minerals and crop land rentals are deposited in the fund's principal. The principal is invested in various stocks, bonds, bank deposits, government securities and other investments and the interest and other income from these sources is allocated to the public schools.

By law, the fund's principal is kept intact and only the earnings from its investment are available for the schools.

Currently the fund accounts for $28.90 of $1,475 per pupil distributed in state aid to the schools.

DNR Appointment

Appointment of a 'community liaison officer' to serve as a "bridge of information and communication" between Indian reservations and the Department of Natural Resources was announced recently by DNR Commissioner Joseph Alexander.

Named to the post was Joe Day, Bemidji, who had been director of administration for the Minnesota Chippewa Tribe at Cass Lake since November, 1980.

Prior to that he was director of personnel for two years, during which time he developed and implemented personnel policies, medical and retirement plans, coordinated training seminars and instituted a salary plan for the tribe.

He is a graduate of Walker high school and DeAnza College of Cupertino, California, where he majored in industrial technology.

Day has served as Indian Education Chairman for the Bemidji school district and on the board of education of School District 31.

Alexander said the DNR is continually involved in discussions with reservation officials over such matters as hunting and fishing regulations, land titles and wild rice harvesting.

"We were very much in need of an individual who enjoys the trust and confidence of Indian tribal leaders and department officials," said Alexander. "I believe Joe Day is that person."

Tree Order Deadline

Those planning to order tree seedlings from the Department of Natural Resources for planting this spring have until March 15 to submit those orders, forestry officials reminded.

In fact, the order deadline has passed for those intending to plant in 14 southern Minnesota counties. Orders had to be in by Jan. 31 for trees to be planted in Dodge, Faribault, Fillmore, Freeborn, Goodhue, Houston, Martin, Mower, Olmsted, Rice, Steele, Wabasha, Waseca and Winona.

Foresters said quantities of the following species are still available from DNR nurseries: White Pine, Norway Pine, Scotch Pine (Riga), White Spruce, Colorado Spruce, Norway Pine Transplants, Soft Maple, Poplar, Caragana and Wildlife Packets.

Limited quantities of Black Walnut, Green Ash, and Colorado Spruce Transplants are also on hand.

Tree seedlings are sold by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources for the purposes of reforestation, windbreaks, shelterbelts, erosion control, soil and water conservation and for permanent food and cover for wildlife.

Trees may not be planted for ornamental purposes nor resold or given away with the roots attached.

Prices for tree planting stock are:

Conifer seedlings — $65 for 1,000; $35 for 500; $9 for 100.

Deciduous seedlings — $65 for 1,000; $35 for 500; $9 for 100.

Conifer transplants — $145 for 1,000; $75 for 500; $18 for 100.

Wildlife packets — $45 for 500.

Price lists and order blanks can be obtained from DNR Forestry offices, A.S.C.S. offices, S.C.S. offices, County Extension offices or by contacting DNR Forestry, P.O. Box 95, Willow River, MN 55795, phone 372-3183 or DNR Forestry, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155, phone 612-296-4480.

DNR Permits

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has reminded shoreland owners and contractors that a DNR permit is usually required before changes can be made to a protected lake, wetland or watercourse.

Officials noted that the construction season is almost here and many new shoreland owners may not be aware of state water laws and regulations.

Most activities or projects involving the placement of fill or a structure in a lake, wetland or watercourse will require a permit from the DNR. Typical projects requiring a permit are excavation of a lake bed or along a shoreline, placement of fill, removing ice ridges, changes in stream channels, dams, breakwaters, harbors and marinas.

However, many minor types of projects (such as rip rap, beach sand blankets, debris removal, boat launching ramps and seasonal docks) do not require a permit.

Officials cautioned anyone planning to work in or near protected waters to play it safe and check with the DNR first to find out if their project needs a permit and thus avoid violating state laws.

More information can be obtained from the DNR regional offices in Bemidji, Grand Rapids, Brainerd, New Ulm, Rochester or St. Paul; or from the DNR Division of Waters, Third Floor Space Center Building, 444 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55101.

Dam Safety Project

Department of Natural Resources reports that the agency has received $2,000 in federal funds to assist the state in paying its share of costs to produce a safety guidebook for dam owners.

Larry Seymour, DNR director of the division of waters, said the funds were received from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to help the state strengthen its dam safety program.

Minnesota is participating in the preparation of the Dam Safety Guidebook in cooperation with Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois and Nebraska. The guidebook is expected to be completed by January, 1985.

Seymour said the guide will complement a FEMA sponsored project, currently underway by the division of waters, to develop statewide guidelines for emergency response plans related to failure of dams.

"These projects will enhance public safety by providing owners of dams with assistance and information for the safe operation and maintenance of their dams," Seymour explained.

Flood Insurance Sessions

National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) has announced its 1984 schedule for insurance agent training sessions in Minnesota, says the Department of Natural Resources.

These training sessions will include an overview of the NFIP (including recent coverage and rate changes) and work exercises in reading flood plain maps and completing flood insurance application forms.

Dates and locations of the workshops include March 6 — Rochester Ramada Inn; March 7 — Mankato Holidy Inn; March 8 — Bloomington Thunderbird Inn; March 9 — St. Cloud Western Americana; March 12 — Duluth Holiday Inn; March 13 — East Grand Forks Regency Inn; and March 14 — Moorhead Ramada Inn.

There will be an enrollment period for each session starting at 8 a.m., which will include payment of a $10 enrollment fee. Each session begins at 8:30 a.m. and will end at approximately 1 p.m.

Those interested in attending are encouraged to contact the NFIP for pre-enrollment materials at 1785 Bloomingdale Road, Glendale Heights, Illinois 60139, phone (312) 462-7607 (not toll-free). Individual sessions will be cancelled if sufficient interest is not expressed in advance.

Fish Record Book Will Be Ready In April

Annual updated book of world and state record sport caught freshwater fish will be available to the public and the fishing industry the latter part of April, it was announced by Bob Kutz, director of the National Fishing Hall of Fame, a non-profit organization and fishing museum located in Hayward, Wisconsin.

A 70-page, 1984 edition of the annual publication will list world records caught through spring 1984 for over 125 species by all tackle and line class. The latest fish records of all 50 states, state by state appear on 16 pages of the book.

Book is sent free to 10,000 Hall members and thousands of supporters, media persons, fisheries personnel, tackle manufacturers, and angling organizations. Copies are available to the public for $2 at the Hall or $3 by mail to cover postage, packing and handling (outside USA - $4) from the National Fishing Hall of Fame, Box 33, Hall of Fame Drive, Hayward, Wisconsin 54843.

Included are tips on qualifying records, rules and application forms. Orders may be placed now for April delivery.

"Angling records are listed in divisions for rod-reel catches, fly fishing, pole-line-no reel and ice-fishing. Hall initiated world record keeping for all sport caught fish in 1970 and published its first records in 1973 in mimeograph form. Practically all dated records which created the base for the original lists have been exceeded," a Hall spokesman said.

A ham dinner was served at seven o'clock, followed with a short program, including the presentation of a 25-year certificate, a sing-a-long led by Kathy Rokke and a fashion show, "Spring Into Fashion".

The East Steiner homemakers club was well represented at the banquet. Present were Lennae Enge, Shelly Jacobson, Sue LaMoine, Glenda Olson, Barbara Rodahl, Beverly Rupprecht, Sharon Russell, Lorraine Sannes, Linda Skibicki and Madelyn Vigen. The report heard is "good food, good style show".

Members of the Silver Creek Luther League and advisors enjoyed ice skating Sunday afternoon, followed with lunch and a meeting at the home of John and Lorraine Sannes.

We are happy to report that Melvin Saugen returned home from Northwestern hospital Friday, Feb. 10, following a hip replacement Wednesday, February 1. He recovered very well and is getting along fine.

NEWFOLDEN . . .

Callers and visitors this past week at the Curtis Thompson home have been Randy Nelson, Stan Holmaas, Floyd and Adeline Nelson and Jeremy Wilson.

Tuesday evening company at the Bob Engen home were Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Stromgren and family. They were also coffee guests.

Card of Thanks
We wish to express our sincere thanks and concern shown us in the loss of our father, grandfather, great-grandfather and great-great-grandfather. Thanks to Pastor Kalmoe for his comforting words and visits; to all those who sent cards and memorials; to Mrs. Hammer who provided the music and son; and the pallbearers. Thanks to the Inter-County Nursing service and the Hospice program that came to the house and helped. Thanks to the Esther circle for serving the lunch and Green Funeral home for their services.
FAMILY OF ENOS WHITSON

Card of Thanks
Our sincere thanks to all for the kind expressions of sympathy shown us in the loss of our wife, sister, and aunt. A special thank you to Pastor Smerek and Ada for their comforting message in word and music, for all the memorials, cards, flowers, and prayers, to the pallbearers, and those who contributed food and the Circle members who served lunch following services.
God bless you all.
Family of Phyllis Salveson

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS
DRAGLINE WORK

The Board of Managers of the Red Lake Watershed District will receive Bids at the District office, 309 LaBree Ave. N., Thief River Falls, MN 56701 until 1:00 p.m. on Feb. 23, 1984, for the rental of fully operated crawler mounted dragline(s).

The work will be located northeast of Grygla in Beltrami County, Minnesota. It will consist of embankment construction by dragline excavation of earthen materials from adjacent areas. The amount of earth work expected to be accomplished in 1984 is 1,000,000 cubic yards. It is anticipated that equipment will be rented from more than one contractor.

The proposed dragline(s) may range in size from ¾ yard and larger, although most work is expected to be done with 2½ yard machines. The dragline(s) must be equipped with Servis Recorder, mats suitable to support the machine working in swamp conditions, boom, bucket, and counterweights appropriately matched and suitable for work in swamp conditions.

The required proposal forms and other essential information may be obtained from the District office. Phone (218) 681-5800.

Dated this 27th day of January, 1984.
Lloyd Wiseth, Secretary
Red Lake Watershed District

Home Study Group Meeting Held Feb. 7

Pennington county extension home study group members and guests promoted February as Heart month at their dinner meeting held at the American Legion club on February 9. One hundred and sixteen people heard Patti Swanson, a cardiovascular instructor from Hallock, describe the five ways of having a healthy heart.

Mrs. Swanson advised that everyone should have a blood pressure check at least once a year; exercise for at least 20 minutes three times per week; quit smoking; eat a diet that is low in fats and sodium, but high in fiber; and decrease stress in one's life. Audience was also encouraged to take a cardio-pulmonary resuscitation course to be prepared for emergencies.

Wanda Murphy, Pennington county home council president and Pauline Aubol, vice president, were hostesses for the evening.

Pennington county has 26 organized extension home study groups which meet on a monthly basis to study topics presented at monthly leader trainings. Study group members receive training in the study areas from the extension agent before teaching the new skills or information to their fellow study-group-members.

Anyone wanting more information on extension home economics programs in Pennington county should call the extension office at 681-2116.

Farmers May Ask For Refund On Electricity

Financial problems plaguing Minnesota farmers were taken into consideration when the 1983 legislature passed two important measures to improve farmers' cash flow, reports State Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls.

Sparby said area farm families should be aware of these laws. One allows farmers to maintain tax-exempt tanks for farm-use gasoline. Another allows the sales tax on farm-use electricity to be deleted from monthly electrical bills. With this last change, many rural electrical cooperatives are charging tax on the portion of the bill pertaining to home-use electricity only.

This is actually "money in the hand" for farmers on a monthly basis, whereas under the old law they had to wait to realize this tax savings until they claimed it as an income tax credit. The tax credit was eliminated in the process of conforming state deductions to those at the federal level.

"This is a substantial sum of money — especially for those with large operations — considering the electrical expense for irrigation, heating and more," Sparby said.

He acknowledged a problem in some rural communities where the electrical cooperatives are not yet equipped to automatically separate farm-use electricity from that used in the home. In those cases, farmers are urged to file for a sales tax refund with the department of revenue.

"Eventually we hope all the state's electrical providers will have computers sophisticated enough to automatically subtract the sales tax from the farm-use portion of the electrical bill," Sparby added. "But in the meantime, affected citizens should contact the department of revenue for the form necessary to file for a refund.

Form ST 11-A is available by writing Minnesota Department of Revenue, Sales and Use Tax Division, Box 43446, Location 273, St. Paul, MN 55164, toll free telephone 1-800-652-9747, Ext. 6181.

NEWS Of Computers

16 BILLION CALCULATIONS PER SECOND!

Finding oil is easier thanks to a system that makes lightning-fast calculations.

A few years from now—when you read the weather forecast, or buy gas for your car—you might give a nod of thanks to a new system that makes weather forecasting, the search for oil, and a host of other jobs easier.

The system is a new way of computing known as a multiple parallel processor. It provides the massive computational power necessary for a broad range of numerically intensive commercial and engineering/scientific data processing activities. These include economic and financial modeling, weather research forecasting, oil exploration and aerospace applications.

In a configuration of 64 of these Cyberplus systems from Control Data, linked to a single Control Data 170 Series 800 computer, 16 billion calculations can be achieved. When additional computers are used, the calculation per-second rate can be increased even further.

The result is faster answers to more perplexing questions. Because of its flexibility, the range of applications is very wide.

Stumpf Reports State Ranks High In Survey

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer, vice chairman of the Senate's education committee, says he was "very pleased but not surprised" at the results of a recent national survey showing Minnesota scoring well in some key areas.

The survey results, released in January by the U.S. department of education, showed Minnesota rating first in the nation in terms of graduating high school seniors (91.5 per cent) and third overall in terms of its college entrance scores for students considering advanced education (20.2 per cent score).

"While our educational system has been roundly criticized by some people, and does not always live up to all of our expectations, I personally am pleased with the strides we have made in our public schools, which are reflected in these latest statistics," Stumpf said.

Stumpf also noted that the survey also showed Minnesota ranking relatively high in terms of its pupil-to-teacher ratio (17 to one, 16th overall), and that "our state is above average in most categories overall."

"During the 1983 legislative session, we made a strong commitment to solidly fund education over the next two-year budget period," Stumpf said, noting that the Legislature approved a 12.3 per cent increase over this time.

A recent article published in "State Legislatures" magazine pointed out that rising unemployment rates are directly related to the lack of educational progress by students entering the job market.

"Whereas workers with a minimum of one to three years of high school can expect to experience a jobless rate of about 16 per cent," Stumpf said, "high school graduates can expect to encounter an estimated 10 per cent unemployment rating, while those with college backgrounds will see this rate drop to as low as 7.3 or 3.5 per cent if they have at least four or just two years of advanced learning."

In terms of financing its commitment to education, "State Legislatures" pointed out that Minnesota as a state makes a balanced and above-average funding commitment to education, although it is below average in terms of federal funding received for education.

"However, even with these rosy statistics, we know that much needs to be done to improve our educational system, which has been pointed out time and again by our education commissioner," Stumpf said.

A special education commission has been touring school districts statewide during the interim to get input into the needs and goals of parents, teachers, school administrators and school board members, and is expected to present a detailed report and recommendations to the 1984 legislature this year.

Parenting Class Slated Here Feb. 27

Class for infants, birth to crawling, and their parents has been scheduled to start on Monday, February 27. Class will meet from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at Knox elementary school for eight weeks. Tuition is $12 per family.

Instructor Jan Kemper will cover a wide variety of topics to make parents of newborns more comfortable and secure in their role. Topics include nutrition, infant massage, safety, infant CPR and changes in the family.

46 Students On Honor Roll For Goodridge High

Forty-six students were named to the second quarter honor roll at Goodridge high school, with 24 achieving an "A" average grade, and 22 achieving a "B" average grade.

TO TURN AGAIN

In winter the pond freezes over, and the old mill wheel is idle. But although the landscape appears dormant, there is hidden life beneath the surface. One day it will be spring again, with water rushing over the mill wheel and corn being ground into meal.

If you have been living in a winter of your own, why not take a lesson from the old mill? The winters of our life are bleak — they are hard to weather. But forever and ever there is the chance to start again. Spring will come and your church will sustain you through doubt and disappointment and give you promise of another chance — another life.

Men And Women Speak Different Type Of Language

by Lynette Lamb
'U' M News Service

Clashes between men and women in the workplace could be reduced if each sex understood how the other is taught to communicate, says a University of Minnesota speech - communication professor.

"Male and female differences are often intercultural differences — they are taught to value different things," said assistant professor Jerie McArthur. "Women are socialized to believe that relationships are the most important things in the world, whereas men are socialized to believe that power and ability are the most important things," said McArthur, who explained that this basic difference has a great impact on communication differences between the sexes.

Speaking up at a meeting or in a class is one area where men and women traditionally differ, said McArthur. Men engage in what McArthur calls "competitive turn-taking" — that is, they get their chance to speak by interrupting. Women, on the other hand, are usually trained at an early age that to interrupt is impolite. They may sit through hours of meetings or classes waiting for their chance to talk, while their male colleagues wonder if they'll ever have anything to say.

Wording of statements is another area in which the styles of men and women differ, said McArthur. Women make indirect statements, men make direct statements, and it's the latter that people tend to remember, the speech professor noted. "A woman might say at a meeting, "Don't you think it would be better to send them that report first?" and a man could agree, saying, "Yes, it would be better to send that report first." The group will remember the idea as the man's because the woman never really claimed it," McArthur explained.

Men's tendency to use military and sports metaphors in their work language is another communication difference between the sexes, one that can cause women to feel uncomfortable or confused, said McArthur. When men use expressions like, "The ball's in your court" or launch into long war stories designed to illustrate a point, women, who are often strictly task-oriented, and who don't always understand the function these stories and metaphors fill, can become impatient and disapproving, which, in turn, makes the men feel uncomfortable with them, McArthur explained. "I found that learning about football has been very helpful to me in understanding men and their language," McArthur added.

Although she didn't study football with the sole intention of better understanding masculine communication, sometimes an effort of this sort is necessary, McArthur believes. "It is critical for women in the workplace to at least understand the male culture, because that is the dominant culture," said McArthur, adding that learning a language is only the first step toward understanding a culture. "For the non-dominant culture, knowing and understanding the dominant one is sometimes a matter of survival."

The fact that men and women also establish trust differently can affect their communication styles, McArthur said. "Women establish trust by talking — by sharing their secrets and themselves, whereas men are taught to build trust on the basis of actions and track records," she added. "Women don't realize that in a win-lose culture like our's you don't display weakness or vulnerability because the enemy could use that against you at any time."

Despite her insistence that women in the workplace must understand the male culture, McArthur said that the ideal would be a blend of male and female values and styles. "I would like people to be more flexible and situational," McArthur said. "It's important to cooperate as well as to compete — a good leader will use what works in a given situation with a given person and not be rigid about adhering to a certain style."

Just as men and women should recognize their cultural differences, said McArthur, so too should they recognize that these differences do not exist in each member of that sex. "When I talk about these communication differences, I'm talking about males and females in society as a whole," McArthur cautioned. "Obviously there are many individuals who were not socialized in these ways."

To illustrate that point, McArthur gave this personal example: "Many women feel very intimidated by the sheer size of certain men. But I'm 4 feet 11 inches tall and I've never felt that way."

CREATIVE COOKING

Savory Salmon Custards require very little preparation. They need an hour in the oven, so you'll have time to toss a salad, set the table and relax a bit too.

SAVORY SALMON CUSTARDS

1 can (15-1/2 oz.) Bumble Bee Pink Salmon
4 slices French bread (1/4 to 1/2-inch thick)
2 cups shredded Monterey Jack cheese
2-1/2 cups milk
4 eggs
1/2 teaspoon thyme, crumbled
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper

Drain salmon. Place slice of bread in four (1-1/2-cup) casseroles or oven proof bowls. Break salmon into bite-size pieces and place over bread. Top each with 1/4 cup cheese. Beat together milk, eggs, thyme, salt and cayenne. Pour mixture equally into each casserole. Top each with remaining cheese. Fill 3-quart casserole dish with 1 inch warm water. Place casseroles in dish. Bake in 300°F oven 1 hour 15 minutes until knife inserted along sides comes out clean. Let stand 15 minutes before serving. Makes 4 servings.

For more delicious salmon recipes, send a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to: Dept. N 83, Bumble Bee, Box 7758, San Francisco, CA 94120.

THE BEST OF THE ROCKIES.

Coors starts out clean and fresh. And then it stays that way.

But that's where the similarity ends.

You see, we start with pure Rocky Mountain spring water. That's because we make our beer in one place and one place only: Golden, Colorado. And its perfect brewing water is why we started there in the first place.

In the second place, we use a brewing process that's unique to the industry. We start with only natural ingredients—absolutely no additives or preservatives—and then we brew Coors more slowly and age it longer than most beers.

Then, we package Coors cold. Other beers are subjected to extreme heat (up to 140°) after being put in cans or bottles. Coors doesn't do that, simply because the less you heat beer, the better it tastes.

One of our secret ingredients has 18 wheels and weighs 32,000 pounds.

When Coors and Coors Light are finally through aging, they have a wonderfully cold, clean, brewery-fresh taste. The last thing in the world we'd want to do is put that nice, cold beer on a big, hot truck like other brewers do. So we don't.

We use refrigerated trucks. And they take our beer—nice and cold—up to 2,000 miles (give or take a detour) to our distributors. At this point, it makes no sense to truck cold beer all that distance and let it get warm in some warehouse.

Don't worry. It doesn't. Our distributors use refrigerated warehouses for our beer. (It's more expensive, but we know they like that brewery-fresh taste as much as we do.)

Next, our distributors take that nice, cold Coors and put it in their own refrigerated trucks and take it to where you can finally buy some.

Does Coors have to be refrigerated?

No. Every now and then, you might see Coors out in one of those big displays at your store.

If you do, don't be concerned. Even though we go through all the expense and trouble to keep Coors and Coors Light fresh from the Rockies to you, our beer is no more affected by heat than any other beer.

To kind of sum it up, we refrigerate our beer because we want to, not because we have to.

Now on tap. Soon in your store.

We're getting Coors and Coors Light out to you as fast as we can. Chances are, you might find it first on tap at your favorite tavern. Check around. It's worth it. And when you do find it, give it a chance. The real beauty of Coors is how it keeps that brewery-fresh taste beer after beer.

Thanks for reading all this, and there's just one more thing: Enjoy!

Coors
The Best of the Rockies is here!

Grygla

Lillian Sundberg, Grygla, 294-6146

Mrs. Rod Twito and Sarah spent the weekend visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Payne at Paynesville. Mrs. Twito (Kathy) is also serving on the Beltrami county jury this month.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Johaneson spent a few days visiting at the home of her daughter Linda and family, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Skibicki at Duluth last week. While there they attended a hockey game at Cloquet in which their grandson Brent played and also attended a basketball game at Pike Lake where their granddaughter Shannon played. They also visited the Duluth Historical Museum one day.

Information Wanted

We have been asked to help find information about a lady whose name was Pearl Hanson, when she lived in the Grygla area. Any information regarding her married name or her descendents will be appreciated. According to records, she lived in this area many years ago.

Natalee Ann Holte, daughter of Steve and Shirley Holte was baptized at the Grace Lutheran church on Sunday, Feb. 12th. Her sponsors were Galen and Jane Dahlen of Thief River Falls and Larry and Pat Grabowska of Goodridge. Natalee weighed 9 lbs., 5 oz. and was 22 inches tall. She was born on Dec. 21, 1983. After services a dinner was served at the Steve Holte home to the following guests: Pastor and Ada Smerek and Heidi, Mr. and Mrs. Galen Dahlen and Karla, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Grabowska, Jamie, Sarah and Amber, Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Vigen and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Grabowska and Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Holte. Congratulations Natalee.

THE SUCCESS CORNER

GOAL-SETTING: A VITAL SKILL

By Tom Hopkins

The whole idea of setting goals is to plan your life rather than go bumbling along, muddling through, taking it as it goes. Begin by setting 20-year goals.

First, list the personal achievements you want to accomplish. Who and what do you want to be in 20 years? What do you want to own? Where, and in what kind of housing, do you want to live? What are the status symbols you dream of? What do you want for your family? If you don't know what you want, how can you get it?

Hopkins

Take a hard look at the future and at yourself. Say, "That's the person I want to be in 20 years and I'm willing and eager to pay the price to become that person."

Once you have your 20-year goals sketched out, cut them in half and there are your ten-year goals. Halve them again for five-year goals. Do it one more time and your 30-month goals appear. Then set up goals for the next 12 months. Work on this one carefully. Then break it down in months, weeks and finally goals for the coming week and for tomorrow.

Have a set of goals for every day and review the results every night. It may seem like a lot of time and trouble but isn't making a success of your life worth it? It's not the trouble that bothers you, it's the discipline. Think that through, because if you're not willing to accept your own discipline, you're not going to accomplish two percent of what you could...and you'll miss out on 98 percent of the good things you could have.

Just think about it. Most people spend more time planning for a vacation than they do for their own lives.

Home Financing Knowledge Can Save You Money

Home financing. The term is one which has struck fear in more than one home buyer. The labyrinth of financing schemes, payback schedules and hidden charges in monthly payments can be truly confusing, reports the Minnesota attorney general's office.

Consumers often learn about available credit terms for new homes or refinancing from newspaper advertisments. But, just as often, they have no idea what to be looking for when they compare credit items.

Here are anwers to a few questions home buyers should ask themselves about home-credit advertising:

(Q) What kinds of facts does a home financing ad have to carry?

(A) If an ad includes a credit term, such as the amount of the monthly payment, the amount or percentage of the downpayment, or the length of the mortgage, the federal truth in lending act requires that the ad include the following:

— The interest rate expressed as the "annual percentage rate." The annual percentage rate includes all the costs of credit other interest rates do not — i.e., the cost of mortgage insurance or things like points (fees sometimes charged when the mortgage is closed); the amount of the monthly payment; the amount or percentage of the downpayment; and the length of the mortgage.

If an ad includes any interest rate, such as the simple interest rate or rates that apply for a limited period of time, the law requires that the annual percentage rate also be advertised. If an ad says "10 per cent financing," the equivalent of six per cent," or simply "eight per cent," the advertised rate is probably not the annual percentage rate. The actual cost of the credit is likely to be higher. Therefore, you should ask for the annual percentage rate and compare terms.

(Q) What are some of the "dollars-and-cents" differences between the annual percentage rate and other interest rates?

(A) suppose you had to choose between a 12 per cent simple interest rate and a 12 per cent annual percentage rate on a 30-year loan for a home that costs $79,000 with a five per cent downpayment. Because of the small downpayment, many lenders would require you to buy mortgage insurance, often costing one-half of one per cent of the loan balance. With a 12 per cent simple interest rate and the extra cost for the mortgage insurance, your monthly payments might be as high as $803. But with a 12 per cent annual percentage rate, which includes the cost of mortgage insurance, your monthly payments should not exceed $775. The difference between these two rates could be $28 a month, or over $8,000 for the life of the mortgage.

(Q) What do ads offering "creative financing" mean?

(A) Creative financing plans typically include lower payments in the earlier years of the financing plan, interest rates that change during the term of the loan, or some combination of these features. Look for the following information in the ad, or ask the lender these questions:

— Will the interest rate or the monthly payments change during the term of the loan? In some loans, a below-market rate and lower payments apply only for the first few years, but higher rates and payments follow for the remainder of the loan.

— How will the new interest rate or the monthly payments be calculated? The increased rate and payments are stated in advance in some mortgages. In others, they are tied to certain indexes and depend on future market conditions.

— Will the advertised monthly payments be large enough to pay off the mortgage? Some mortgage plans offer low monthly payments even though the interest rate is fairly high. If these monthly costs are not enough to repay the loan amount and the interest charges, the difference may be added to the principal. In some plans, you could owe more at the end of the mortgage term than at the beginning.

— Will you have to refinance the mortgage after a few years? If a large, or "balloon," payment is due after a few years and you do not have the necessary cash, you may have to refinance the mortgage. If you do refinance and interest rates have gone up, you may have to make higher monthly payments than you had planned.

(Q) How can I tell if the advertised credit includes monthly payments or interest rates that will change?

(A) Phrases such as "effective rate," "adjustable rate," or "flexible payments" tell you that the credit terms may change. If you see any of these phrases in an ad, find out more about the credit terms. For example, if an ad offers a "seven per cent effective rate," look for other information, such as the annual percentage rate, to tell you the full cost of credit.

If you think you need more assistance in understanding or comparing mortgage plans, it would be wise to consult an attorney, accountant, realtor or banker.

For more information about different types of mortgage plans, write for a free copy of the "Mortgage Money Guide," Federal Trade Commission, P.O. box 37633, Washington, D.C. 20013. If you believe you have been deliberately defrauded or misled in purchasing home financing, contact the Minnesota Attorney General's Office, Commerce Division, (612) 296-9412.

FARMER UPDATE — (CORRECTION)

St. Hilaire Elevator has been running an ad for the last two weeks giving patrons the option to haul in grain now before road restriction time to cooperate with the State and County Highway Department.

This ad was worded wrong in that it said St. Hilaire Elevator is offering "Free Storage" or free service charge from February 1, 1984 through March 31, 1984. The correction is; and the ad should have stated: St. Hilaire Elevator is offering free service charge on delayed pricing grain from February 1, 1984 through March 31, 1984. The two words "free storage" should not have been in the ad.

Your St. Hilaire Cooperative Elevator wishes to thank you and the County and State Highway Department for the large support of originating over 1⅓ million bushels of grain from February 1 through March 20, 1984, which will be off the road during road restriction time.

School Election Change

Somewhat surprisingly, there has been little public reaction to the Thief River Falls board of education decision to conduct the annual school election in conjunction with the general election in the fall. For a number of years the annual elections for school board members have been held in May, apart from any other elections.

Major objective of the change seems to be to involve a greater number of people in the school election process. The idea is that general elections will have a collective attraction for voters while a school election alone — in which there may be only a few candidates and no special issues — may not have sufficient stimulus to get a wide voter turnout.

To that end, the November election may well be worth a try. Its main drawback in relation to the central issue of involving more voters is that general elections are held only every-other-year while school elections are held annually. The off-year election again leaves the school district alone in the effort to attract voters, and creates the problem of how to conduct that election.

During election years, the school district could fit its voting in with existing precincts holding general elections. On off-years it would have to be determined if those same precinct voting places should be used or if the district should revert back to some sort of reduced number of polling places. Presently the district residents vote only at Franklin and Lincoln schools and the area vocational-technical institute.

Maintaining use of the rural and city precincts should make it more convenient for most residents of the district to vote in the school election and thereby result in a better voter turnout. Such a practice would also provide for continuity from year to year and less voter confusion. Necessity of hiring more election judges to cover those polling places would increase election cost, however, and that must also be a consideration.

At least report, 11 school districts in Minnesota conduct or will conduct November elections. Some are on the Iron Range where practice of electing school boards every-other-year during the general election has been "grandfathered" into existing law. Others are experimenting with the change which is authorized by Minnesota statutes.

There may be some danger in lumping school elections with general elections that the local balloting will get overshadowed by the state and national issues. When the school elections stand by themselves, they are a highly visible focal point of public interest. School boards who have opted for the change hope that the increased voter opportunity will override the potential negative aspects.

We think the proposal is worth a try. Minnesota laws provide that school boards can set the election date, and if the change proves to be less that what it is expected to be, it can be changed back to its original schedule. But if the change isn't attempted, nobody will ever know how well it might have worked.

Ontario Retaliation

State Representative Jim Tunheim of Kennedy has supplied us with a copy of the bill he has proposed to retaliate against the province of Ontario and its anticipated user fees. The bill lists Representatives Sarna, Sparby, Fjoslien and Munger as cosponsors and was pre-filed January 13 for introduction on the first day of the 1984 session March 6.

An editorial in the Times a couple of weeks ago commented on the potential problems which a retaliatory bill might cause, particularly if it was directed against all Canadian provinces. Of special concern would be Manitoba, which so far has been quite generous in permitting use of its resources by people from the United States side of the border.

Tunheim pointed out that his bill is intended to specifically counter the Ontario plan for user fees. The bill would amend Section 97.45, subdivision 8, of Minnesota Statutes 1982, dealing with shipping of lawfully taken game and fish from Canada into Minnesota.

The latter part of that subdivision which presently states, "Game fish lawfully taken and possessed in Canada, may be brought into the state for the purpose of filleting and packing, and may be transported to any point within or without the state" will be amended by adding:

"except that no wild animal or game fish or part thereof taken in any province which levies a user fee or imposes any discriminatory regulation against Minnesota-based anglers on boundary waters shall be transported into or possessed within Minnesota other than fish taken by anglers operating out of a Minnesota location or fish imported for resale to the public by a restaurant or food store." The law would be effective the day following its enactment.

The Ontario government is expected to decide this week what measures will be imposed on American anglers who fish Ontario waters. Ontario minister of natural resources Alan Pope had first proposed that any non-resident fisherman would have to stay at an Ontario resort, but later amended the proposal to provide for the $3 per day use fee in addition to a regular fishing license. Anglers would avoid the use fee by staying at an Ontario resport.

Pope has requested a written list of all Minnesota proposals to limit fish harvest on Lake of the Woods and the Rainy river system so he can present it to the Ontario cabinet. "What they say may have an impact on the final decision," he said.

We would still much prefer that the situation be resolved through negotiation rather than attempted legislative action. Our bargaining chips in this controversy are few and small and we are much more dependent on the good will of our Canadian neighbors than the strength of our position. A law that would antagonize those with whom we wish to maintain good relations isn't a very heady maneuver.

Chemical Use In Sports

Editor Ken Hickman of the Grand Rapids Herald-Review comments on reports from the Chemical People survey that shows a young person's involvement in athletics had little relation to whether he or she would use mood-altering chemicals. He quotes Tom Griffin of Hazelden Prevention center as stating:

"We've held onto the image of the clean-cut, All-American athlete, and we know that sort of person would never use chemicals." We were also sure they wouldn't use chemicals because there were rules like those of the Minnesota state high school league (MSHSL).

"Talk with athletes and coaches. You'll find that athletics involves the expectation of constant improvement, competitive stress, public performance and evaluation, and the risk of injury and inability to play any longer. All that causes a good deal of stress.

"What's more, our society links athletics and alcohol use — if you win, you celebrate with a drink; if you lose, you drown your sorrows. There's lots of parental pressure on high school athletes. Parents expect stars. And there's a natural selection process — not every 10-year-old star remains one at age 16."

Editor Hickman points out that emphasis in athletics has always been placed on dedication, teamwork, respect for authority, hard work, fairness, honesty and obeying the rules. There is a real opportunity to become a better person through participation in organized sports, he notes, but it does not always happen.

Hickman calls attention to MSHSL rules which are aimed toward helping young people who find themselves in trouble due to chemical use. The rules provide for a brief suspension for first offenses with longer suspensions for second or third offenses. The penalties are cumulative throughout a student's team or activity participation.

"The Chemical People's report should not be interpreted to indicat that the majority of high school athletes and extra-curricular activity leaders have become drug abusers," Hickman writes. "It simply points out that the temptations and problems which plague professional athletes also affect impressionable youngsters.

"Extensive efforts are underway . . . to meet chemical abuse problems head-on. It seems far better to recognize the problems and to counsel young people who use mood-altering chemicals than to discard them as punishment."

Interesting Opinions:

Couples Are To Be Aware Of Tax Breaks

Many married couples nowadays have a hard time making ends meet. And, with tax filing season upon us, they need to get the best deal they can from the IRS. When it comes to taxes, that means taking advantage of what the law allows, says the Minnesota society of certified public accountants (CPAs).

Most significant tax break this year is the deduction for married working couples. It has doubled since last year. If you and your spouse worked and file a joint return, you can deduct up to 10 per cent from the salary of the lower-paid spouse. Maximum deduction is $3,000.

Last year, when married working couples could have received as much as $1,500 for the marital deduction, two million couples failed to claim it. If you are among them, file an amended return to get your deduction — plus interest. The IRS is paying 11 per cent interest (compounded daily) for the overlooked deductions, and the interest paid is computed from your filing deadline of last year.

Here's how the marital deduction works. If the husband earned $20,000 in 1983 and the wife's salary was $15,000, they can deduct $1,500 (10 per cent) from her salary if they file jointly. Keep in mind, however, that contributions to IRAs and Keoghs, as well as business expenses, must be subtracted from your gross income before making the 10 per cent deduction.

Though the marital deduction provides an easy-to-get tax break, some couples may get even bigger breaks if they file separate returns and take advantage of other tax laws. Just a few minutes of simple computations can help you see which option is best, CPAs say.

To illustrate, take a closer look at this year's tougher medical deduction formula.

Now, you may deduct only unreimbursed medical expenses that exceed five per cent of your income (it used to be three per cent). Furthermore, you may no longer deduct $150 separately for medical insurance premiums you paid; they're to be included with your overall medical expenses.

For example, with a combined income of $35,000, a husband and wife can deduct any medical expenses above $1,750 (five per cent) if they file jointly. If the wife incurred $3,000 in medical expenses, they are entitled to a $1,250 deduction if they file jointly. If they file separately, however, she is entitled to a $2,250 deduction ($3,000 minus five per cent of her income). Since the $2,250 deduction is greater than the $1,500 marital deduction, it may pay for the couple to file separate returns. Always figure it out both ways, CPAs say, because there are many factors involved, including a higher tax rate for separate returns.

One of the best ways for a married couple to cut taxes is to open two individual retirement accounts. Two wage earners can stash away up to $4,000 a year in their IRAs and avoid paying taxes on that amount until the money is withdrawn. Principal is tax-deductible and the interest it earns is tax-deferred.

Married couples with children may be eligible for the child and dependent care tax credit if they paid someone to watch their children while they were at work or attending school full-time. If your child is under 15, or if you have another dependent who cannot care for him or herself, you may qualify for the credit.

Credit is allotted on a sliding scale. For families with an income of $10,000 or less, a 30 per cent credit may be claimed on child or dependent care expenses of up to $2,400 for one child and up to $4,800 for two or more children. So, a couple with an income of $10,000 or less who paid $2,400 to care for their child can subtract $720 from their tax bill. Maximum credit for two or more children would be $1,440.

As income increases to $28,000 and more, the credit decreases to 20 per cent of expenses. Maximum tax credit for one child at that level is $480 and $960 for two or more children.

Keep in mind: a tax credit is subtracted directly from your tax bill, not from your income. Dollar for dollar, it's a bigger tax break.

FANCY THAT!

They're farming the sunshine for power these days at the Dead Sea! It's one of the lowest and one of the hottest points on earth and scientists have now developed methods that actually trap the sun, which shines there for 320 days a year.

Temperatures in the saltiest water on the bottom reach 202 degrees F. That's hot enough to boil liquid from the freon family, producing vapors to spin a nearby turbine. This particular pond creates enough energy to spark a 150-kilowatt generator.

Israeli scientists created this ingenious generator by making a solar pond. They lined a 9,000 square yard area with a dark material. Synthetic netting criss-crosses the surface to stabilize the pond so that layers of saline water will not be stirred up by the wind.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

A surburban couple repeatedly found their garbage in the swimming pool, with yard lights and furniture broken beyond repair. They were to the police for protection and got no help. They hired a guard service, the vandals were caught, and confessions implicating all participants were turned over the police. When these vandals were booked, there was no evidence of any bruises or other physical abuse. Since the vandals were identified, the vandalism has stopped.

That isn't this story's happy ending. The vandals' parents preferred criminal charges against the victimized couple, along with a civil damage suit. The innocent couple had to tolerate arrest and a criminal trial, with the cost in time, money and publicity that involved. They were found innocent but have the second civil trial for damage ahead of them.

When I heard about this case, I couldn't believe that our system of justice would penalize victims and send criminals home on "probation," but it did!

A judge who violated the law by soliciting sex from minor males is, as I prepare this column, still hearing cases and getting paid. Many of his lawyer friends have recommended that he continue serving as a judge. He is unwilling to say that he will not repeat his violation of this existing law. I thought we all had comply with laws until they were changed. This judge, apparently, believes in "supermarket justice," where you pick and choose what laws are to be obeyed. Those supporting his retention must agree!

When I heard about this case, I also couldn't believe that our system of justice would allow a law breaker to continue to be a judge, but it did!

A lady lawyer serving an elected District Attorney was transferred from one office to another. She was angry. When her boss would not reassign her to the original office, she tried to stir up a "mini-revolution" with a written survey questioning office morale, trust in supervisors and much more. She used office materials and work time. She was fired.

Two levels of courts heard her appeal and required that she be reinstated with full pay and allowances. It took tens of thousands of dollars in additional legal fees and costs to appeal this matter to the Supreme Court. The justices there acknowledged that a public official or any boss doesn't have to run his "shop" based on employee opinion surveys and does not have to allow a dissident employee to create havoc.

When I heard about this case, I couldn't believe that we had a system of justice that required an employer to retain an employee troublemaker, but through two out of three courts, it did! The Supreme Court decision was 5 justices for and 4 justices against the right to fire an employee troublemaker, a close split decision.

When I heard a sitting judge say that insurance companies are making so much money on their casualty insurance business coverages that he has sent damage judgements back to juries as inadequate, I was concerned. I know that casualty insurance companies are not making underwriting profits, and if the judge had kept current, he would have known that, too. Furthermore, his boosting jury awards also boosted insurance premium payments that his employer (us) had to pay. It was difficult to believe that our system of justice would tolerate lazy judges with big biases, but it did!

We have a surplus of lawyers (For 235 million people we have more than 600,000 lawyers, while the Japanese have less than 20,000 attornies in a nation of less than 120 million people!), and our system of laws and justice has become so tricky and complex, that I wonder whether justice has been distorted to provide full employment for all of these employers.

Recently a nest of crooked judges in a large metropolitan area was rooted out by the Department of Justice. I am also informed that many law firms try to get judicial appointments for senior partners they no longer wish to retain. These two situations may explain why the public sometimes gets stuck with "8-balls" who come up with wacky decisions.

As the employer of these judges, I believe it is time for us to take a look at them, check their hours and productivity as well as the common sense propriety of their decisions. I believe that judicial review commissions, made up of citizens excluding attornies (except as consultants) should consider appointments, retention or reappointment of all judges except those appointed to the Supreme Court of the United States.

That's Straight Talk!

INFLATION-FIGHTING FOOD IDEAS

FESTIVE FOODS: CHICKEN AND RICE

Made to order for holiday meals is this festive chicken and rice dish that requires a minimum of do-ahead fuss. It's easy on the budget, too. Wine and brandy add a French touch that can turn a simple dish into party fare.

CHICKEN A LA BONNE FEMME

3 chicken breasts, split in half
Salt and ground black pepper
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/2 cup chopped onions
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 can (4 ounces) sliced mushrooms (drain; reserve liquid)
3 tablespoons flour
1-1/2 cups chicken broth
1/4 cup tomato paste
1/4 cup brandy
1/2 cup white wine
1/2 cup sour cream
3 cups hot cooked rice

Season chicken with salt and pepper. Heat butter in a large skillet. Add chicken and cook until golden brown. Push chicken to one side. Add onions, garlic, and mushrooms to skillet. Continue cooking until onions are tender. Add flour. Stir in broth, tomato paste, brandy, wine, and mushroom liquid. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Adjust seasonings, if necessary. Spoon sauce over chicken pieces. Cover and simmer 30 minutes or until chicken is tender. Stir in sour cream. Serve over beds of fluffy rice. Garnish with fresh snipped parsley, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Although more than twice as many pedestrians are killed in urban as in rural areas, the chance of death compared with injury is much higher in rural areas. Lower vehicle speeds, better and more extensive police traffic enforcement and superior emergency medical services account for better chance of survival in urban areas.

Keenagers

About 60 Keenagers attended the regular monthly meeting on Friday, Feb. 10 and enjoyed the potluck dinner. Ann Borg conducted the blood pressure clinic. Annual financial statements were handed out to each family. Lloyd Larson, president, opened the meeting by having everyone stand up and sing, "The More We Get Together". He welcomed the guests, Ida and Clifford Steinhauer, Bernice Wagner, Mr. and Mrs. George Hayes. The secretary's report was read by Selmer Sorter and the treasurer's report by Hazel Nelson. Those in hospitals are Ted Gusa at the rehab at United hospital in Grand Forks, Melvin Saugen in Northwestern hospital and Edgar Horien who will be a patient at CNC at Northwestern. Edgar wanted to thank all who visited and sent cards. Ballots were handed out to select a king and queen of hearts. Gerry Nelson crowned Thea Peterson as queen and Ben Nelson as king. Pictures were taken by several people. Those who wanted to go to the winter shows in Crookston on Tuesday, February 21 were asked to sign up. It was also announced the St. Joseph ladies of Middle River would be having a valentine's party on Tuesday for senior citizens and Holt, Newfolden and Middle River were invited. Anna Davidson and George Hayes celebrated birthdays in February. Valentines were then exchanged. Kathy Erickson gave some highlights about the film, "Trail of the Moose" by Marlin Perkins of the Wild Kingdom, which took place in the Agassiz refuge in 1969. A study on moose was conducted by Bob Phillips from 1968-71 and this helped to establish the moose hunting season that began in 1971. It was very interesting and enjoyed by all. Kathy also showed another film called, "The Eighteenth Century in Virginia".

Award Of Merit Earned By Two Local Scouters

Peggy Bruzek and Bonnie Van Schaick of Thief River Falls received the Voyageur Trails district "Award of Merit" at a recent Boy Scout recognition banquet. The district award of merit is the highest honor that a volunteer in the scouting program can receive on a district basis.

Nominees for the award are judged on service rendered in the community as well as in the scouting program, according to Tom Przybylski of Thief River Falls, district scout executive.

Peggy Bruzek has been active in scouting for the past six years, starting her involvement by becoming a member of the pack committee and then becoming a den leader for three years. She was den leader coach for the pack for three years.

Involved with the training of other leaders, she served on staff for Cub scout training and Cub scout pow wow and is presently involved with the roundtable staff in Thief River Falls.

Mrs. Bruzek also has been very active on the district level. She has assisted with Cub scout caber days, been a part of Cub scout adventure camp and participated in the scout exchange program with Canada. She has earned the den leader training award and the den leader coach training award.

In addition to scouting, Peggy has been very active in her church by serving on the liturgy committee and assisting with the bishop's annual appeal. She has taught Sunday school for the past five years.

She is involved in the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association. She has three children, including two sons that have gone through the Cub scout program and a daughter in the Girl scouts. She is a member of St. Bernard's Catholic church and her husband Curtis is employed by Northwestern Bell.

Bonnie Van Schaick has been active in scouting for the past seven years. Her involvement began as a member of the troop committee. She has chaired the Thief River Falls scout exposition for two years, been involved with the scout exchange program with Canada, served as a volunteer on summer camp staff at camp wilderness, on staff for the Canadian national jamboree and with the world jamboree staff.

Mrs. Van Schaick earned the commissioner training award on the council and regional level ...at commissioner conferences and has gone through the Woodbadge training course. She has been on the district level of scouting the past three years by serving as assistant district commissioner for one year and is presently serving as the district commissioner for Voyageur Trails district.

Bonnie has been active outside of scouting with her involvement in church. She has served as a Sunday school teacher and chairs the health and welfare committee.

She is a registered nurse and was a member of the state legislative committee for the Minnesota nurses association. She is a member of the Kahler hospitals school of nursing alumni association at Rochester, a member of the United Methodist church, and has a son, James, who recently earned his eagle scout award.

Rehearsals To Begin For Fantasy On Ice Program

Rehearsals for the Thief River Falls recreational skating association's fantasy on ice production of "An Evening in Paris" will begin Thursday, when testing will also be conducted at the old arena for those skaters who were ill last Thursday. The ice show will be presented March 31 and April 1 in the sports arena.

General chairman for the show is Cher Torgerson and recreational skating board chairman is Polly Dehnert. Other chairmen for various areas of the show include Linda Sorenson, costumes; Mike Lee, scenery; Olive Goldesberry, programs; Vicki Breiland, tickets; Earl Lorenson, lighting; Nancy Tofte and Jan Peterson, pictures; Madeline Vigen, make-up; Sue LeMoine, mother helpers; and Catherine Campbell, publicity.

Having solos and features in the show will be the following skaters: Twyla Svendsgaard, Heather Wolbeck, Loralee Iverson, Jana Fessler, Jenny Nelson, Jessica Nelson, Petrina Kuyath, Rebekah Bortnem, Stephanie LeMoine, Lisa Howe, Becky Leander, Kim Peterson, Nancy Wojahn, Brenda Ode, Heidi Tofte, Terese Tranby, Siri Spong, Kristi Leander, Hillary Peterson, Karina Krepp, Colleen Johnson, Dena Sund and Dawn Berggren.

In addition to the testing Thursday for those absent last week, all classes for Thursday are being moved to the old arena. Groups for the ice show and their practice times are as follows:

Poodles, 3:30 p.m. — Kristin Chrzanowski, Erica Haglund, Kimberly Haugen, Jocelyn Helgeland, Sarah Hoefer, Jennifer Lasha, Jessica Lasha, Jennifer Martin, Erica Owen, Meri Quinlivan, Keri Schommer, Heather Trostvelt and Misty Yonke;

March Militaire, 3:30 p.m. — Leah Cleven, Roberta Dahlstrom, Sarah Harger, Jamie Martell, Jennifer Olin, Jenny Quinlivan, Kelly Skeim, Andrea Vigen, Lisa Hovet and Kim Rupprecht;

SCOREKEEPERS for special education students from the Thief River Falls elementary schools had to do more than just keep track of the number of pins knocked down during a bowl-a-thon for the Special Olympics, sponsored by the Office Education Association Thursday. They had to issue a few congratulatory hugs as well, with little Freddy Hagl making sure he checked in with Arlette DeFreece after nearly every frame. Over $1,000 was raised by the project, which will be used to send local handicapped students to regional and state Special Olympics events.

New Business Now Located In TRF Plant

Independent Machine Service is expecting to begin production today in its new quarters in the former Puetz Cabinet building along Pennington avenue on the south edge of Thief River Falls. The company moved here from Westminster, CO, near the Denver area.

The company manufactures labels for use in price marking equipment and will be operated locally by Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Magner. Darrell is a former Thief River Falls resident, as is his wife, the former Linda Jorde. They have two children.

Decision to locate in Thief River Falls was made because of the former residency and because the company wanted to expand and the property available here was obtained at about a third the cost of what would be required in Colorado, Magner said.

The company closed its Colorado operations February 6 and began moving into the Thief River Falls building February 10. Painting and remodeling in the new location, which offers 3,000 square feet of space, has been underway for the past week, as well as setting up of equipment moved from Colorado.

Magner said he has accumulated a backlog of orders during the transition and is eager to get into full operation.

BN Rail Users Plan Election At Greenbush

Rail users on Burlington Northern's Warroad to Red Lake Falls rail line will be meeting at the Greenbush community center at 2 p.m. on Wednesday to officially form a shipper's association to collectively address the need for improved rail service on this line.

The most recent statewide rail map, released in January of this year, does not place this line in any abandonment category. However, with train speeds restricted to less than 10 mph on the line, the shippers recognize the need to explore options to improve service on the line now before any further deterioration of track conditions occurs, according to Wayne Goeken of the Northwest regional development commission.

Shippers have completed a survey of their shipping patterns which will be analyzed by the Minnesota department of transportation to determine the rehabilitation potential of the line and possible inclusion in the state rail program. Officers will be elected at the February 22 meeting. Membership in the association and dues will be determined.

Support of shippers and non-shippers alike is needed as maintaining rail service along this line benefits the entire area. Public participation at this upcoming meeting is encouraged. Temporary chairman is Buzz Marvin of Warroad.

Red Lake And Pennington Court Appearances Held

Courtroom at the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls did double duty Friday as it served to handle first appearances for both Red Lake and Pennington county district court criminal defendants. Judge Warren Saetre presided at the session.

Two Red Lake county cases were on the agenda. Richard Robert Rhode, 38, of Red Lake Falls appeared on two counts of use of minors in sexual performance, one count of operating a disorderly house or place of public resort and two counts of furnishing non-intoxicating malt liquor to minors.

Rhode was arrested February 7, appeared in Red Lake county court February 11 and had bond set at $5,000. The alleged offenses reportedly took place in January in Red Lake Falls. Rhode entered a plea of not guilty to all charges, bond was continued at $5,000 and the case was ordered for placement on the spring term of court in Red Lake county.

Also appearing in Red Lake county district court was Russell Wayne Demarais, 34, Red Lake Falls, charged with attempt to escape, driving after revocation of his driver's license and driving a motor vehicle without current registration. He entered a plea of not guilty to all charges and an omnibus hearing was set for 12 noon Tuesday in Red Lake Falls.

In Pennington county district court, Alfred Christopher Bellerud, 56, Thief River Falls, appeared on the charge of fourth degree criminal sexual conduct and entered a plea of not guilty. The alleged offense took place on Jan. 4, 1984, in Pennington county. The case was set for trial at the spring term of court and Bellerud was released on his own recognizance.

Finn Eric Jax, 23, Thief River Falls, made his first appearance on a charge of gross operation of a motor vehicle while having a blood alcohol content in excess of .10 per cent. He had appeared in county court February 5 and was arrested Jan. 20, 1984, having had at least one prior violation in the past five years. Jax pleaded not guilty and the case was ordered scheduled for trial at the spring term of court.

Kenneth Rowdy Harger, 26, Thief River Falls, appeared on a charge of introducing contraband, specifically marijuana, into the Pennington county jail on January 24. At the time of the alleged offense Harger was serving a sentence for robbery at the county jail but involved in a work release program under the Huber law.

No plea to the charge was entered by Harger nor his attorney, public defender James Buening, who asked to have the defendant evaluated to determine if he is competent to stand trial. Examination was ordered at the mental health department of Northwestern hospital services in Thief River Falls.

Gary Boughton Pleads Guilty To Felony Theft

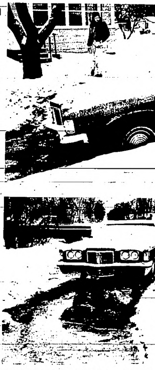
Gary Boughton, 37, rural Thief River Falls, entered a plea of guilty to felony theft in Polk county district court in Crookston February 14 and sentencing has been set for April 3 following a presentence investigation. Maximum penalty is five years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

According to Wayne Swanson, Polk county attorney who prosecuted the case, Boughton was arrested in connection with the theft of barley from a farm in Brandt township of Polk county east of Euclid in early October. The grain was in a quonset building owned by Bill Pahlen who reported the loss and the case was investigated by Polk and Pennington county sheriff's deputies and Steve Hagenah of Thief River Falls, agent of the Minnesota bureau of criminal apprehension.

Tire tracks in soft ground were followed from the quonset building to the Boughton farm driveway and a truck owned by Boughton was found in the yard, Swanson said. There were traces of barley in the box of the truck and the tire tread matched the tracks at the theft scene.

Also found in the Boughton yard was a half-ton pickup truck owned by Glen Sampson of Thief River Falls. Tire tread of that vehicle also matched tracks at the theft scene and investigation is continuing on Sampson's possible involvement, Swanson said.

Marshall Vagle of St. Hilaire Co-op Elevator reported that he had purchased 273 bushels of barley and issued a check for $638 to Sampson the day following the reported theft, the Polk county attorney added.



SPRING THAW can really be a bummer — especially when your car starts to sink into the street. Raelene Stern of 928 Horace av. N. (top photo) was greeted by this sight when she came out of the house Thursday morning. The car she had parked the night before had the front end resting bumper deep in mud and water. The problem was created by thawing conditions which caused fill in an excavation to repair a broken water line to turn to mush. A tow truck was summoned to extricate the car and additional gravel was used to temporarily fill the hole in the street. Forecast is for more temperatures above the freezing mark for the next several days.

Rooms Sought For Weekend Guests In TRF

With three big events scheduled in Thief River Falls next weekend, the chamber of commerce is collecting a list of people who would be willing to rent rooms for the weekend if hotels and motels run out of vacancies.

Possibility of that happening is very real, with the 1984 World Series snowmobile race, the Region 8 high school hockey tournaments, and a mixed doubles curling bonspiel all taking place between February 24 and 26. Chamber's efforts are being coordinated with the motel association, so that visitors seeking a place to stay can be referred easily, and the city's reputation for fine hospitality be maintained.

Persons who might have space available to rent for the weekend should contact the chamber of commerce office by calling 681-3720, as soon as possible.

Persons considering offering concessions during the snowmobile race should also contact the chamber office for prior approval.

LHS Band Notes 60 Appearances For '83-'84 Year

Approximately 60 appearances for Lincoln high school instrumental music groups or student members of those groups from Sept. 9, 1983 through July 15, 1984, have been listed by director Doug Engstrom. The list includes 23 appearances by the pep band at boys and girls athletic events, plus five nights of Section 8 hockey tournament games at the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Also listed are several concerts and competitions involving marching band, concert band, wind ensemble and stage band and 10 appearances by soloists or small groups at athletic contests to play the National Anthem. Band members have played taps for eight funerals to date this year and the band has taken part in three solo-ensemble performances and a flag-raising ceremony.

FmHA Task Force Studies NW Minn.

Farmer's Home administration (FmHA) has announced it will empower a special task force to investigate and correct irregularities in its operation in northwestern Minnesota, according to Sen. Rudy Boschwitz.

Undersecretary of agriculture Frank Naylor and FmHA chief Charles Shuman made the announcement following a meeting with Senator Boschwitz and Governor Rudy Perpich in Boschwitz's office recently.

The two Minnesota officials called the meeting to discuss increasing dissatisfaction of Minnesota farmers with the administration of FmHA programs in general. They mentioned specific problems in Pennington, Red Lake, Marshall, Polk and Beltrami counties.

Boschwitz and Perpich outlined complaints of their constituents that the application procedure is often time consuming, that attitudes and personality conflicts between farmers and FmHA employees sometimes slow the process, and that FmHA suddenly turned $550 million earmarked for economic emergency direct loans nationwide into loan guarantees. The two also concentrated on the problems of northwestern Minnesota farmers who, because of repeated bad luck with nature, are having difficulty qualifying for programs.

The task force first will scrutinize the implementation of the disaster emergency loan program to determine how many farmers are ineligible for the program because of strict adherence to the five-year rule — something Boschwitz said is critically important.

"Many farmers are falling between the cracks and not qualifying for these loans because of the formula used in calculating normal yields."

Solem Leads Judging Team To Top Finish

Cindi Solem of City View 4-H club led the Pennington county 4-H general livestock judging team to a strong first place finish in competition Saturday at the Red River Valley winter shows in Crookston, according to Terry Courneya, Pennington county extension director.

Solem was first place judge high overall individual in points earned among approximately 65 judges on 18 teams from throughout the area.

All other members of the team — Todd and Troy Carlson of Happy Acres 4-H club and Daryl Rupprecht of Silverton 4-H club — finished among the top 15 judges in the competition.

Also participating in the judging event was the second Pennington county team comprised of Paul and Suzanne Johnson of Happy Acres and Twyla Svendsgaard of Mavie, coached by Peter Solem of rural Thief River Falls.

Scott M. Andersons Are At Home In Warroad

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Michael Anderson are at home in Warroad, following an exchange of vows at a mid-afternoon ceremony at the United Methodist church in Thief River Falls.

The bride, the former Gwen Carol Erickson, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Erickson, rural Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Anderson of Grygla.

Rev. Melvyn Budke officiated at the double ring ceremony. At the organ was Joy Nordby, an aunt of the groom. "Wedding Song," "Through the Eyes of Love," and "Evergreen," were sung by Sandy Nordby, a cousin of the groom.

Candelabra and floral arrangements in lavender and ivory, graced the chancel. The pews were marked by deep lavender bows and sprigs of babies' breath.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a Victorian gown of white Chantilly lace featuring an English tulle yoke with Venice lace accenting the high neckline. A wide Chantilly lace ruffle outlined the yoke and two ruffles edged her bouffant skirt and chapel-length train. Her veil of bridal illusion was held by a derby styled bridal hat trimmed with Venice lace, satin flowers and pouf veiling. She carried a bouquet of lavender and ivory roses and carnations with a cascade of corresponding flowers and ribbon streamers.

Kim Holthusen, Warroad, attended her sister as matron of honor. Other attendants were Terri Holthusen, Debra Warne, Heidi Anderson, friends of the bride and groom, and Sherri Larson, a sister of the groom. They wore long sleeved, softly pleated, lavender gowns topped with lace jackets. Their bouquets were of lavender and ivory roses.

Attending the groom as best man was his brother, Tim Anderson, Grygla. Groomsmen were Dave and Steven Anderson, brothers of the groom; Gary Sletten, a friend of the couple; and Roy Holthusen, brother-in-law of the bride. The ushers were Paul and Bob Nordby, cousins of the bride; Shannon Osteby, brother-in-law of the groom, and Grant Hanson, a friend of the couple. They wore light gray tuxedos with lavender boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a sheer white and lavender floral dress with ruffle tiered sleeves. The groom's mother was attired in an ivory dress topped by a lace cape. Their corsages were of lavender roses.

Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Erickson and Mrs. Fern Knutson, grandparents of the bride. Jerri Larson and Sharon Loerzel were the bride's personal attendants.

A reception at the American Legion followed with Daryl and Gaye Comstock as host and hostess. Bernice Lenhart cut and served the three-tiered waterfall wedding cake decorated in white and lavender. At the coffee service was Elaine Albaugh.

Melisa Erickson and Michelle Comstock registered the guests as Cindy Polanski and Bonnie Verbout served the punch. At the gift table were Chad Erickson and Jared Comstock. Waitresses were Traccee Joppru, Roxanne Erickson, Janie Verbout and Chris Larson.

The bride is a 1982 graduate of Lincoln high school and is employed at Heritage Pharmacy at Warroad. The groom, a 1979 graduate of Grygla high school, is employed by Marvin Windows.

DeCor Club To Participate In Safety Project

DeCor club of the General Federation of Women's clubs, is joining the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission in a program to identify and eliminate electrical hazards in households during February, electrical safety awareness month.

Club members will undertake safety audits of their homes, using check-lists furnished by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission. The check-list is based on common electrical hazards and consumer practices that may cause serious accidents.

Decision to participate in this project was made at a meeting of the club held February 7 at the home of Ethel Aase. President Mildred Wik stated "We are pleased to be involved in this important project, demonstrating federal and local cooperation. It is hoped that by our envolvement, together with other General Federation of Women's clubs throughout the country, there will be a great reduction in fires, in persons injured and in property losses."

Information was also given on the Children's Health clinic scheduled for Tuesday, February 21, at the United Methodist church. It was noted, that as in past years, the clinic is being sponsored by the Women's club.

The program was based on current events with each member presenting a topic for discussion.

A dessert lunch was served by the hostess.

Members present were Mildred Wik, Gladys Isaacson, Madeleine Scramstad, Elvera Samuelson, Mabel Leyden, Signe Miller, Geneva Overum, Carla Peterson and Ethel Aase.

The next meeting of the DeCor club will be held March 6 at the Madeleine Scramstad home.

Child Print Program Has 1,121 Register

Operation Child Print was completed in Thief River Falls public and private schools last week with 1,121 of 1,256 eligible students fingerprinted for 89 per cent participation, according to Thief River Falls police chief Ken Froschheiser.

"The percentage was higher than we anticipated and we believe the program was well accepted," Froschheiser said.

Cost of materials was provided by the Minnesota chiefs of police, VFW auxiliary and Kiwanis. Fingerprint identification cards were returned home with the students for safekeeping.

Of the total children fingerprinted, 1,106 were handled through the schools and 15 at the law enforcement center on a voluntary basis. At the private schools in the city, 24 of 25 students (96 per cent) were printed at the Seventh-day Adventist school, 72 of 91 (79 per cent) at Our Saviour's Christian academy and 154 of 160 (96 per cent) at St. Bernard's Catholic school.

Delore Berards Honored On Their 59th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Delore Berard were honored recently on their 59th wedding anniversary at a surprise party hosted by Valley Home, where they are residing.

For the occasion, the couple was presented with a corsage and boutonniere made by Verna Rood, who also made the table decorations.

Lunch featured ice cream and an anniversary cake, baked and decorated by Carolyn Jablinski and Margaret Johnson.

Special guests were the couple's children, Mr. and Mrs. George (Lillian) Fanfulik of St. Hilaire and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Berard of Thief River Falls. Also present were Mr. and Mrs. Andy Hoefer and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Anderson of Viking.

Unable to attend were the couple's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Berard of Minneapolis.

25th Anniversary Noted By Harvey Hemmestvedts

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hemmestvedt were honored on their 25th wedding anniversary at an open house January 28 at Oak Ridge Lutheran church.

Hosting the anniversary observance were their children: Scott and September Hemmestvedt, who presented their parents with a corsage and boutonniere of yellow roses and pink carnations.

A program was given with Wayne and Diane Klementson in charge. Danny and Joyce Belto provided the musical selections and sang "Darling Let's Turn Back the Time." They also accompanied Diane Klementson and Audrey Burda as they sang, "Yes." An appropriate poem was read by Setember Hemmestvedt.

Highlighting the program was a mock wedding with Mike and Joyce Burkel, Steve and Julie Steiner, Ward and Rose Erickson participating. Wayne Klementson served as presiding clergy, using a doughnut as the wedding ring. The wedding march was played by Joyce Belto.

At the reception, the couple's son and his fiancee, Darla Knutson, cut and served the three-tiered anniversary cake baked and decorated with silver bells by Joyce Belto. A miniature bride and groom topped the cake.

At the punch bowl was Roberta Jo Opdahl, a niece of the couple, and Traci Klemetson. Friends of the couple were in charge of serving.

Approximately 100 relatives and friends attended the open house. Among them were Janet Cardinal of Andover, and Chet and Marlene Nessen, members of the original wedding party.

Other guests were from Minneapolis, East Grand Forks, Badger, Middle River, and the Thief River Falls community.

VFW Auxiliary Honors Winners In Democracy

Voice of Democracy contest winners were special guests at a banquet Monday evening Feburary 13, hosted by the VFW auxiliary. During the banquet, the winners read their entries.

The winners are Dawn Olson, first place; Charlene Fillmore, second place; and Cindy Peterson, third, all from Marshall County Central high school, Newfolden. After their presentations, gifts were given to the winners, as well as to their teachers.

At the regular meeting which followed, three new members were welcomed. They were Betty Evin, Barbara Holen and Victoria Idovich.

In a ritualistic ceremony, the chapter was draped in memory of Pearl Sheedy and Past Department President Alma Leigh Johnson. A memorial will be given to the National Home in memory of Pearl Sheedy.

AAUW Honors Tea Is Open To The Public

Thief River Falls branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) wishes to stress that the public is welcome to attend the Honors Tea on Wednesday at 2:00 p.m., in honor of the eight local and area women selected for making contributions to this community. The tea will be held at the Northwest Regional Library meeting room.

Past Presidents of the local branch, who will serve as hostesses, stated "that because women have played and continue to play a critical economic role in every sphere of our community's life by working in and outside the home, and because women have played a unique role by providing the majority of volunteers and have been particularly important in the establishment of cultural, social and educational institutions, and because these contributions often go unrecognized even by the women themselves, we wish to introduce these eight women to our community as leaders in their field."

The women to be honored and their field are Rev. Nancy Jewell, religion; Dee Forney, culture; Dorothy Wold, family; Margaret Marvin, education; Marilyn Wigness, science; Annette Bergan, business; Marcella Gonsorowski, politics; and Deb Jacobson, athletics.

UNUSUAL FASHIONS (to say the least) were modeled during the Goodridge Lioness club "brown bag fashion show" at the Goodridge senior citizen center Thursday. The fashions were devised by Lioness members, each of whom brought the costumes in a brown bag and exchanged with others who were required to wear the items. The Lioness members — such as Mrs. Ethel Wiseth in the photo above — strutted their stuff to the delight of senior citizens at a special Valentine party. Additional photos will be published in the Wednesday edition of the Times.

Council Grants $1,000 For Band Trip To Norway

Thief River Falls city council voted to contribute $1,000 toward the high school band's trip to Norway; $3,000 for rent of a sound system at the arena during the upcoming Section 8 hockey tournament; selected a new fixed base operator for the airport; and approved a zoning change previously denied by the planning commission, to allow construction of two condominiums in a current R-2 district.

Request for funding for the band trip was made by Jean Heinrichs, who noted that parents were footing the bills for the students personal expenses for the trip. She requested a $1,000 contribution from the city to be used for preparation of promotional materials, citing a need for city flags, decals for the bass drums, and a booklet or program for distribution to audiences. She also suggested that since the students would be spending several evenings staying with Norwegian families, they would like to give some sort of a gift to their hosts, suggesting Minnesota wild rice as a possibility.

Mayor Bob Carlson questioned whether the council should support what appeared to be a "hot issue" in the community with taxpayer money. He suggested that they might be "opening a door" to more requests from athletic teams and other organizations. He questioned whether the money would be used to promote Thief River Falls or a "group of kids who just happen to be from Thief River Falls." He suggested that the chamber already had brochures printed about the city which could be distributed by the musicians. The question of how much return could be expected from the promotion was never raised.

Without so much as a glimmer of opposition from any of the other council members, the mayor conceded defeat and the request passed unanimously.

Don Howe, representing TRFAHA, made a presentation on the need for an improved sound system at the sports arena. Noted that the present system had deteriorated considerably, he suggested that something needed to be done before the Section 8 hockey tournament which starts February 21. With bidding for the tournament becoming highly competitive, it was suggested that the poor sound system could result in loss of the event in the future.

Howe said that Park parks and recreation department supervisor Mike Mongoven had checked into costs, and had gotten a quote of $3,000 from Northwest Sound in Minneapolis to set up and rent a sound system for the duration of the tournament. If the system worked satisfactorily, the city would have the option of buying the system, with the rent applying toward a total price of $5,500. As explained, the only changes to be made to the current system would be setup and replacement of 12 speakers with a "directional horn type," plus addition of an equalizer and a new microphone."

Howe expressed faith in the judgemnt of Northwest Sound representative Dewey White, since he had set up an effective sound system in the arena for Billy Graham, and was familiar with the building. Council approved designation of federal revenue sharing funds for the project.

On the recommendation of the public safety committee, council selected Steve Josephson to serve as fixed base operator at Thief River Falls regional airport. Josephson will rent the 60 by 60 foot hangar at the airport for the purpose of providing aircraft maintenance and repairs and fuel. He replaces Dave Fimrite and Outer Limits Airways, which went bankrupt, owning the city approximately $4,000 in back rent.

Request for a zoning change which would allow Julian Gunderson to build two 12 unit condominiums in an R-2 residential zone east of the Holiday station along the Red Lake River was made. City planner Jack Quinlivan noted that the request had been denied unanimously by the planning commission because it was in conflict with the existing neighborhood the city's comprehensive plan.

Council members expressed general agreement that the economic benefits presented by the project and the need which it filled for housing were more important than holding to the plan. Gunderson explained that the housing units were intended to appeal to retired people who had too much money to qualify for subsidized housing. Units will sell for about $50,000 each.

Council approved Gunderson's site plan as presented with seven votes in favor, and Alderman Don Goodrich abstaining, on grounds that he felt people in the neighborhood who opposed the project might have been misled by the denial of the planning commission. However, Quinlivan noted that those people had been informed that the planning commission only made recommendations to the council, and were aware of the fact that it was on the agenda.

In other business the council:

— Approved rental of 24 acres of land near the old Toreq building to Joe Kezar at a cost of $22 per acre for 1984 and $32 an acre for 1985;

— Approved the low bid of Tunberg Motors for a 1984 Ford LTD Crown Victoria S, at a cost of $10,795, for use as a patrol car by the police department;

— Approved $2,700 in revenue sharing funds to be used as a buffer for emergencies encountered by the meals program of the Tri-Valley Opportunity Council;

— Authorized preparation of plans and specifications for water and sewer replacement under traffic lanes on Third Street between Pine and Atlantic;

— Approved taking of bids on $240,617 worth of budgeted equipment for the utilities department;

— Recommended not allowing cutting of dead and down wood on the New Solum dumpsite, since the city can use the wood for heating the utilities department building;

— Approved enterprise zone guidelines and authorized applications to be submitted for employment property;

— Passed a resolution opposing the closing of the customs port at Noyes from 12 p.m. to 8 a.m.;

— Authorized reduced rent of the sports arena for the car show to be held by the Prairie Schooner car club on May 11, 12 and 13;

— Authorized free use of the auditorium for the 4-H carnival on March 16;

— And heard reports on the inflow survey conducted by the wastewater department and on the effect of ripple control on electric rates.

Bill To Aid Area Schools Being Planned

State Representatives Jim Tunheim, District 1A, and Wally Sparby, District 1B, have announced they will coauthor legislation to repeal the revenue equity or aid recapture provision which reduces state school aids to high-property-value districts.

Area school districts that would benefit from a repeal of aid recapture are Humbolt-St. Vincent, Kennedy, Argyle, Alvarado and Stephen.

Aid recapture was passed by the legislature in 1983 to help balance the budget, despite attempts by Sparby, Tunheim and several other Minnesota lawmakers to stop it.

"Many of our colleagues felt aid recapture was justified because of the critical economy a year ago, but those of us living in the affected school districts felt it was unfair that we carry a greater burden in turning the state's economy around — especially at the expense of our schools," Sparby said.

Under the revenue equity concept, all school districts are required to levy 24 mills. However, the legislature also sets a spending limit of $1,475 per pupil unit and in high property value districts, 24 mills can raise more than the $1,475.

Tunheim explained that the additional revenue, following passage of aid recapture, was used to reduce state-paid aids for such areas like transportation, special education, vocational education and state contributions for teacher retirement and social security.

"As a result, our local districts, which already were receiving a minimal amount of state assistance, received even less," he said.

The bill Tunheim and Sparby are introducing in the House would repeal aid recapture and return more state income tax and sales tax revenue to local school districts.

"The state is projected to have in excess of $650 million in surplus right now, so we believe our legislation is, at the very least, fair," Sparby said. "And it will give area residents much needed property tax relief."

EMERY LEE was welcomed to the Thief River Falls business community recently as the new owner of Service Master cleaning service, which he purchased from Doug Rud. With two full-time and one part-time employees, Lee offers both residential and commercial cleaning services out of his home at 510 North LaBree. Presentings him with his first dollar of clear profit were Chamber Ambassadors Roger Shaffer, left, and Rocky Ammerman.

NFO President Distrusts US Crop Reports

America's farmers are consistent losers through inaccurate crop production reports such as hit the headlines last week, says DeVon Woodland, president of the National Farmers organization (NFO).

"We have legitimate concern about the accuracy of these reports and the damage they do to producers," Woodland said. "Year after year the reports depress the market. We seldom see a forecast that puts strength in the market.

"The psychological impact the reports have on the market are immeasurable and they alter the natural trends we should see in those markets," he said. "In a year when harvests were less than normal and our carryover stocks are drastically reduced the prices received by farmers continue to drop. Even those who believe in the supply and demand theory have to agree there is no logical reason for the price drop."

Woodland noted this is the second time in six years there has been a call for a Senate investigation of the procedures of crop production reports. The previous one was in late 1977 and early 1978.

Rodger Schlottach, director of the NFO grain department, says he is convinced the carryover is considerably less than is being reported.

"I don't have the figures to prove my theory," Schlottach said, "but as we go through the country talking to producers about blocking their grain, every indication we have is that the supply is less than USDA is listing. Many places we see empty bins where there is supposed to be grain."

Schlottach also pointed out that, even with short supplies, exports of corn and crushing of soybeans for oil are running ahead of projections. At the current rate, corn exports will run five per cent ahead of projections at the end of the marketing year on October 1. The crushing of soybeans is projected to be far below last year but, again at the current rate, that total will be only slightly down by the end of the marketing year on September 1.

Woodland concluded by saying, "If the Reagan administration wants to cut the budget it should consider discontinuing the crop reporting service. the original purpose of the USDA was to promote agriculture but the crop reports serve only the grain traders.

"You can also see," he said, "that the 'shakeup' in the USDA was political. No one was thrown out or even demoted. They were simply transferred horizontally between departments to 'take the heat off'" the department.

Pack 59 Cubs Held January Meet At Zion

Cub Scout Pack 59, sponsored by Zion Lutheran church, held their January pack meeting recently with Cubmaster Lowell Hoffard. Colors were presented and retired by Den 2.

Special guests for the evening were Jim VanSchaick and Bill Carlson, members of Boy Scout Troop 59. They discussed survival techniques and presented Bobcat and Bear awards. VanSchaick also spoke about his experience of receiving the Eagle award from Lord Robert Baden Powell III, the grandson of scouting's founder, at the World Jamboree.

(Webelos — leader Orris "Slim" Stengrim and assistant Steve Steinert) Mike Sampson, craftsman and geologist badges; Derrick Anderson, athlete, craftsman and geologist badges; Shawn Crowser, craftsman and sportsman badges; Brian Bugge and Brian Lehrer, craftsman badges; Kyle Evenson, athlete, craftsman and showman badges; Tim Stengrim and Dan Hoffard, craftsman and outdoorsman badges; and Chad Lavalier, craftsman and showman badges.

Upcoming events for the pack include a committee meeting at 8:30 p.m. tonight, February 20, and the special Blue and Gold Banquet, set for 6:30 p.m. Monday, February 27. This will be open to attendance by grandparents and other family members.

County To Get $3,529 In Twp. Bridge Funds

Pennington county will receive $3,529 as its share of the $1,977,881 in 1984 township bridge funds allocated to qualifying counties, according to Gordon Fay, director, office of state aid, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

The yearly township bridge allotments to the counties are made from a special five per cent set-aside from the highway user tax distribution fund according to a formula established by the state legislature in 1983. The highway user tax distribution fund is composed of monies from the state motor fuel tax and motor vehicle registration fees.

The remaining 95 per cent of the highway user tax distribution fund is distributed as follows: 62 per cent to the trunk highway fund, 29 per cent to the county state-aid highway fund and nine per cent to the municipal state-aid street fund for municipalities having populations of 5,000 or more.

The town bridge account assists those counties with two or more organized townships to replace deficient township bridges 10 feet or more in length. This account can be used to fund up to 90 per cent of the cost to replace a deficient bridge. Pennington county has five deficient bridges.

Marshall county allocation is $71,732 (72 deficient bridges) while Red Lake county is allotted $11,206 (16 deficient bridges) and Roseau county is allocated $11,206 (16 deficient bridges).

To date, Fay said the counties have been allocated $14,840,453 and have authorized replacement of 612 deficient township bridges with $12,275,076 from the town bridge account. As of January 1 there were 1,870 township bridges deficient.

County engineers hold public meetings to discuss priorities for replacing deficient bridges within their area. After the public meetings are held, the county boards pass resolutions to set bridge replacement priorities. The engineers then apply to Mn-DOT for these funds.

Replacement funds are granted only after Mn-DOT approval of the bridge plans and only for construction of the structure. The local units of government must pay for removal of the old structure, engineering costs and approach grading.

Deficient bridges are those structures which do not meet minimum standards in one or more of the categories of load, condition, width or clearance.

not guilty to aggravated driving while under the influence and gross driving while under the influence and entered a plea of not guilty. Dennis Murphy, public defender, was appointed to represent him at the spring term of district court.

Wayne Edgar Peterson of Viking, who was also scheduled for a first appearance, did not appear in court and a bench warrant was issued by Judge Saetre for his arrest. Assistant county attorney Kevin Duffy represented the prosecution in each of the Pennington county district court cases.

Homemakers Of E. Marshall Hold Banquet

East Marshall Homemakers held their third annual winter banquet on February 13, in the Newfolden community center, with approximately 115 women attending. Decorations had a Valentine's Day theme.

Emcee for the evening was Betty Pietruszewski, president of the East Marshall Home Council and member of the Northern Lites study group. Other officers include Mary Amundson, North Star; Beverly Folden, Newfolden Nifties; and Paulette Nelson, Lull-a-While.

Door prizes were awarded throughout the evening with Ellen Lian from North Star receiving the prize for the longest marriage — 56 years.

Program consisted of a spring fashion show of clothes from Mr. Duane's, Elaine's and J.C. Penney of Thief River Falls. Many new colors and styles were shown by the models who were members of various study groups. Models included Glenyce Lusignan, Viola Wikstrom and Delores Saul, from Lull-a-While; Dee Kleinwachter and Denise Nelson, Northern Lites; Julie Waterworth, Crafty Critters; and June Troskey, Julie Erickson and Yvonne Green, Ringbo.

Planning for the banquet was spearheaded by the East Marshall Home Council which is reprented by every club. The ten clubs participating include: Newfolden Nifties, Better Halves and Crafty Critters, Newfolden; East Steiner and West Steiner, Steiner township; Happy Holt, Holt; Lull-a-While, Grygla; North Star, Middle River; Northern Lites, Strandquist; and Ringbo, Middle River. Membership in groups is open to all who are interested. Those wishing more information on existing clubs or creating a new club should contact an officer of the council or the Marshall county extension service in Warren.

Great Careers start at Bemidji State University
BSU GRADUATE PROFILE: Warren Wick
POSITION: Product Specialist, MSA Support, Sperry-Computer Systems
RESPONSIBILITIES: Sperry manufactures, designs and develops large scale computers. I fit into this structure by supporting our systems through marketing human resource software for personnel and payroll departments. I go out and help these people use the software and hardware. It's a mixture of public relations and technical work.
COMMENTS ON BEMIDJI STATE: It is big enough to offer a variety of programs, but not that big that you get lost. There was more instructor to student interaction and relationship. That helped make the university friendly. I attended BSU because it was small, personal, and you received a quality education. It's still that way.

State Farmers Plan Record In Crop Plantings

First reading of Minnesota farmers' planting intentions for 1984 shows acreage boosts ahead for corn, durum, spring wheat, winter wheat, soybeans, non-oil sunflowers and dry edible beans. Acreage for oats will drop, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

The acreages that farmers actually plant could change from those published in this report due to several factors, including participation in farm programs, commodity prices, weather conditions during planting and the effects of the report itself on farmers' plans.

As of February 1, growers are planning a hefty 55 per cent boost in corn acreage from last year to 7.90 million acres. This would be a record for Minnesota corn growers.

Soybean plantings are expected to increase by 12 per cent to 5.20 million acres, which would also be a record for Minnesota farmers.

Prospective all wheat acreage is estimated at 3.12 million, up 33 per cent from last year. By types, spring wheat will be 2.6 million, up 18 per cent; durum is pegged at 115,000 acres, up 188 per cent; and winter wheat at 400,000 would be up 300 per cent.

Oats plantings are forecast at 1.40 million acres, half of last year's level.

Non-oil sunflower growers intend to drill in 25,000 acres, up 150 per cent from 1983.

On a national basis, corn growers intend to plant 81.8 million acres in 1984, up 36 per cent from last year, but virtually the same as 1982. Soybean prospective plantings, at 65.2 million acres, are up three per cent from 1983 but down nine per cent from 1982. Barley intended acreage for 1984 is 10.6 million acres, down less than one-half of one per cent from 1983 but up 10 per cent from 1982. Durum wheat acreage is expected to total 3.85 million acres, up 50 per cent from 1983, but down 11 per cent from 1982. Other spring wheat intentions, at 13.8 million acres, are 18 per cent above 1983 but 17 per cent less than 1982.

REFLECTI NS

When life deals harshly with us, concentrate on some of the happy times we've had, nudge some memories that can bring back a smile or two. Life is a ledger, with entries on both sides, some happiness, some sorrow and it has a way of balancing itself out. The bad times must be erased, the good times savored. Today's sadness will pass as surely as the clouds dissipate and the sun shines again. Take comfort in that . . . for it is fact.

Task Force From FmHA To Study Area

Boschwitz said.

That formula averages the highest four years of the last five to determine average yield. To qualify for a disaster loan a farmer's yield in 1983 must have been 30 per cent or more below the so-called normal yield.

"In ordinary circumstances, this would work OK," Boschwitz said. "But since these counties have had repeated disasters over much of the last six years, the 'normal yield' is unreasonably low. Thus, even if a farmer had a very poor yield in 1983, it may still not have been 30 per cent lower than the 'normal yield'."

Otherwise, the task force will review office procedures and operations in the affected areas to assure that the processing of applications is proceeding quickly and efficiently. Further, it will investigate whether attitudes and personality differences between farmers and FmHA officials are interfering with the successful operation of the disaster emergency program.

"This is a necessary and useful first step toward resolving the ongoing issues surrounding the FmHA disaster emergency program in northwestern Minnesota," Boschwitz said. "The governor and I made it clear that we expect some answers to be forthcoming. It is getting close to planting season and farmers have to know where they stand. Additional delays would be devastating."

Boschwitz said he will continue to combat the decision to allow only $50 million of direct FmHA loans in the economic emergency (EE) loan program with the other $550 million be handled as guaranteed loans. Since the direct loans have a substantially lower interest rate (10.25 per cent) than can be obtained through a bank loan guaranteed by FmHA (13 to 15 per cent), the decision not to allow the full $600 million to be direct loans has had major repercussions for farmers.

"It isn't fair to farmers to turn on the EE spigot for a few days and then effectively turn it off by changing the program rules."

Funeral services for Mrs. Minnie Hellquist will be held Tuesday at 2:00 p.m., at the Viking Covenant church with Rev. Dale Van Deusen officiating. Interment will be in the Wildwood cemetery at Rosewood.

The body will repose at the Green Funeral home until 9:00 p.m., today (Monday) and at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

A complete obituary will be published in Wednesday's Times.

Services Set For Aldred Rasmussen, 92

Alfred Rasmussen, 92, of St. Hilaire, died Saturday afternoon at his home in River Falls township, Pennington county.

Funeral services for Alfred Rasmussen will be held Thursday at 2:00 p.m., at the Calvary Lutheran church, St. Hilaire, with Revs. Gary Moore and Steven Tangen officiating. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

The body will repose at the Green Funeral home from Wednesday noon until 11:00 a.m., Thursday, and at the church for one hour prior to the time of services. A prayer service will be held Wednesday evening at the Green Funeral home.

A complete obituary will be published in the Times on Wednesday.

Wm. Huebner Services Held In Kansas City

William L. Huebner, 1200 Stratford Road, Kansas City, Mo., 64113, died Saturday, February 4, at his home.

Funeral services for William L. Huebner were held Wednesday, February 8, at 10:00 a.m., at the Newcomer Overland Park chapel in Kansas City. Burial was in Mount Moriah cemetery.

Pallbearers were Norma Morevitska, Glen Gibeson, Richard Cronley, Gene Hart, Jerry Runyan and Dennis Runyan.

William L. Huebner was born in Grinnell, Iowa and lived in the Kansas City area most of his life. He was owner of the K.C. Molded Plastics company in Kansas City and was a member of the Leawood Country club and the Aero Flying club of Kansas City.

He is survived by his wife, the former Inez Morevitska, formerly of Plummer; a daughter, Heidi Marie, at home; a son, L.J. Morevitska, Overland Park, Kans., two grandchildren; Lynn and Joe; a sister, Mrs. Lula Grove, North Kansas, City, and a brother-in-law, N.L. Morevitska, Thief River Falls.

M. Morrissey Services Held At Gatzke Sat.

Funeral services for Maynard Morrissey were held Saturday at 10:00 a.m., at the United Lutheran church in Gatzke. Rev. Robert Amundson officiated. Vocal selections were by Mrs. Mary Ann Lunsetter with Melanie Lunsetter serving as organist. Interment will be in the Landstad cemetery, near Gatzke, with the Collins Funeral home, Middle River, in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Bruce, Tom and Jim Morrissey, Randal Gackstetter, Bill Krause and Kent Spears.

Maynard Franklin Morrissey, a son of the late Frank and Susie Morrissey, was born Jan. 30, 1895 in Buffalo county, Wisconsin. He attended school and grew to manhood in Wisconsin. In 1912, he moved to Des Moines, Iowa and in 1920, he came to Marshall county to homestead in Veldt township.

He was married June 28, 1928 at Warren to Marville Thompson. The couple farmed near Warren until 1936, when they moved to the Gatzke community. There they farmed for many years.

In addition to farming, Morrissey was employed by the Peterson-Biddick Produce company in Middle River, the Standard Oil station and was a school bus driver for several years. He was also employed by the Gatzke creamery. After the death of his wife in January of 1966, Morrissey continued to make his home in Gatzke until 1975, when he became a resident of Oakland Park Nursing home in Thief River Falls. Later, he moved to Valley Home, and since December of 1983, he had been a resident of the Pioneer Memorial Care Center at Erskine.

He was a longtime member of the United Lutheran church of Gatzke.

Surviving are a son, Ray Morrissey, Gatzke; one daughter, Mrs. Winton (Ruth) Gackstetter, Red Lake Falls; nine grandchildren, six great-grandchildren, and a sister, Mrs. Carl (Celia) Lindgren, Hibbing.

Two brothers and one sister preceded him in death.

Marshall-Beltrami SWCD Meet Held

Annual meeting of the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district was held last Thursday in Grygla. A slide presentation on the volcanic eruption of Mt. St. Helens was presented by Ralph Rundell, soil conservation technician with the SCS at Grygla.

Chairman Grant Satre welcomed the group, introduced the board members and special guests who included county commissioners, supervisors and staff from neighboring districts.

Oliver Howland, secretary of the district, gave a brief talk on the hazardous waste siting process and the federal budget. It was noted that Howland and Lyndon Magnuson recently received 30-year pins and Grant Satre and Peter Aune recently received 20-year pins in recognition of years of service as district supervisors.

Marshall county commissioner DelRay Larson spoke on a petition circulating in opposition to the closing of a road in Whiteford township by the Agassiz national wildlife refuge. Conservation farmer of the year award was presented to Ronald Engelstad of Grygla.

Cheryl Sistad, district clerk, gave a slide talk on the state cost-share program that is administered by the district. The slides showed some of the projects that have been installed and other areas of concern. The tree planting program of the district was also included in the slide presentation. Chairman Satre gave the highlights of the district's activities for the past year.

Guest speaker was Carroll Rock of Stillwater, who spoke on his work with the Minnesota agricultural statistics service and his recent trip to Pakistan to help set up a system to more accurately estimate the wheat crop there.

Rock stated that although Pakistan is roughly the size of California, Nevada and Utah combined, it is a bleak country with mountains and deserts. The main rivers provide water for irrigation and 90 per cent of the 85 million people live in area one-third the size of Minnesota.

The country is very undeveloped and the average size field would be about the size of the Grygla community center, therefore they use no modern machinery. A farming village would be about the size of two or three of our city blocks and would house about 5,000 people living in mud huts.

Rock stated the farming people in Pakistan have two things in common with us — a love for the land and difficulty in meeting the costs of production. Although Pakistan can now manage to raise enough crops to feed its people, it can not feed the four million refugees from Afghanistan who now live in the country, without the aid they receive from the United States. They are also importing soybeans now to use as feed for their poultry industry.

Rock also stated that Minnesota ranks fifth in the nation in the number of farms and sixth in total cash income from agricultural exports. Minnesota ranks first in raising turkeys; second in total cheese production and third in hogs, butter and milk production. As far as crops go, we rank first in oats, wild rice, timothy seed and sweet corn; second in spring wheat, sunflowers and sugar beets; and third in corn, green peas, red clover, rye and flax. This and other information is available through the statistical service.

Honor Banquet Of RRVWS Set For Tues. Noon

Sixteen farm couples will be honored at the 46th annual honors banquet for Valley Farmers and Homemakers at noon Tuesday in the Trinity Lutheran church dining parlors, Crookston.

Honored couples have been selected by their peers in each county. They are being honored not only for singular success in farming but because they have rendered unusual service to their community, church and government and been better than average stewards of land and water. Engraved plaques will be awarded to all of the couples.

Melvin and Celia Ouse, Rothsay, will also be honored as "Builders of the Valley", for top-level leadership and stewardship in the Red River basin. Honored as Pennington county farmer and homemaker are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hanson of Trail.

Otto Lee, extension director for Lake of the Woods county, will be master of ceremonies. Youthful violinists will provide music during the dinner hour.

Grain Producer Meet Thurs. At Detroit Lakes

A nationwide meeting of grain producers will be held February 23 to allow farmers in the country's major grain producing areas to work together to improve prices they receive for their grain. Meeting for this area will be conducted at the Holiday Inn in Detroit Lakes.

Sponsored by National Farmers organization (NFO), the meetings will be held simultaneously in 40 locations. A telecommunication system set up by NFO will provide interconnection of all the meetings and the NFO national office in Corning, Iowa, to allow the producers to monitor activity at each of the other meeting sites.

Traditionally farmers have depended on the grain trade for information on activity in the industry. For the first time in history, NFO will provide the average farmer an opportunity to learn local situations across the country directly from his peers in those areas. They will be able to talk to each other to exchange information without the expense of taking time off and traveling to a national meeting or convention.

"The grain trade is challenging the American grain producer in saying they aren't going to do anything about the low prices being paid for grain today even though we have a shortage of corn and soybeans," says DeVon Woodland, NFO national president, "but the grain producers are saying they aren't going to take it.

"That is why we have initiated the 40 meetings from Washington to Ohio and from the Canadian border to Kansas and Missouri. We will help them coordinate their fight to raise prices," Woodland said.

Heading the project is Robert Arndt, director of the NFO growth and maintenance department. Arndt said NFO representatives at each of the meeting sites will explain the volume sales grain blocks NFO is currently organizing with prices of $4.50 per bushel for corn and $10 per bushel for soybeans, basis Gulf. On wheat the prices are $5.25 for hard red winter, basis Gulf, and $5 for dark northern spring, basis Minneapolis.

Two sessions will be held at each of the meeting sites on February 23, 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. (central time), to give as many producers as possible a chance to attend.

STRIKES AND SPARES were rare for TMH students from the Thief River Falls center school, who participated in a bowl-a-thon for Special Olympics sponsored by the Office Education Association from Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute on Thursday. Enjoyment of the activity was evident throughout the event, with participants getting excited over even one pin, but getting all 10 was cause for a real celebration. Although all the pledges weren't in yet, early totals indicated over $1,000 was raised to send local handicapped students to regional and state Special Olympics events. One of the TMH students brought in the largest total of pledges, at $185.

EXCITEMENT was evident on the face of Matthew Pittman as he told one of his friends about his last frame during a bowl-a-thon sponsored by the Office Education Association of Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute on Thursday. Participating in the event was a big thrill for these special education students from Thief River Falls elementary schools, but their teachers Patti Malberg and Eleanore Erickson really had their hands full keeping track of who was supposed to be up. Some of the kids would have thrown 20 balls in a row if they were allowed to.

Prairie Public TV Officials Are Named

Prairie Public Broadcasting's 19-person board of directors is under the leadership of new officers who were elected at the January 25 meeting held in Fargo.

Serving as Chairman of the Board is Dr. Robert H. Boyd, Dean of Outreach Programs at the University of North Dakota. Boyd, a Grand Forks resident has served on the PPB board for three years. He will serve as chairman for one year.

Dr. Myron Johnsrud, Fargo, was elected vice-chairman; Marvin Hanson, Hallock, will serve as treasurer; Williston's Peggy Anderson is now secretary; and Sid Boyling, Winnipeg, will serve as lay representative to the Board.

Appointed to fill existing vacancies on the Prairie Public Broadcasting Board were Maurice Cook, Bismarck, and Sharon Geyer, Dickinson.

Prairie Public Broadcasting operates six non-commercial television stations that reach approximately two million viewers in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Montana, Manitoba and Saskatchewan as well as two commercial-free radio stations that serve listeners in central and western North Dakota. Dennis Falk is President and General Manager for the non-profit corporation.

Urges Sign-Up In Federal Farm Programs

Although he hasn't changed his opinion that the 1984 federal farm program is inadequate to restore economic stability to agriculture, Commissioner Jim Nichols strongly urges Minnesota farmers to sign up at local county ASCS offices before the February 24 deadline.

He pointed out that U.S. agriculture secretary John Block this past week refused to consider extending the signup deadline, as requested by the wheat growers, so February 24 is the absolute deadline.

"Farmers who sign up for the wheat and feed grain acreage reduction programs this year will have guaranteed loan and target prices on their 1984 crops. Those who do not sign up or participate in the required acreage reduction will be entirely at the risk of the markets.

"Next fall the roughly $3 target price on a bushel of corn and a $4.40 per bushel target price on wheat may look awfully good to farmers who take out the economic risk insurance policy that the federal loan and target prices represent," Commissioner Nichols pointed out.

He reminded farmers that just about every major farm commodity organization has predicted "fence row to fence row" crop production in 1984 because of general dissatisfaction with the federal farm program and continuing cash flow commitments.

American farmers get their first view of the 1984 crop production potential next Thursday, February 16, when the annual planting intentions report is released.

In addition to signing up in the 1984 wheat and feed grains acreage reduction program, Commissioner Nichols suggests that Minnesota farmers also check into signing up for federal all risk crop insurance and the many new options now offered in that program intended to replace the old disaster assistance loans.

Belto To Speak For Senior Day

Gretchen Belto will be guest speaker for the senior citizens day program to be held at Northwest regional library meeting room from 3 to 4 p.m. Thursday, February 23.

Mrs. Belto will speak about her experiences as an active member and organizer of the Art Adventure program. Refreshments will be served.

Appeals Court In Bemidji On Tuesday

Chief Judge Peter Popovich of the Minnesota court of appeals recently announced that the court will travel to Bemidji on Tuesday, February 21, to hear appeals arising out of the Ninth Judicial district.

Counties comprising this district include: Aitkin, Beltrami, Cass, Clearwater, Crow Wing, Hubbard, Itasca, Kittson, Koochiching, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties.

The court of appeals is responsible for deciding appeals from the trial courts and most administrative agencies throughout the state.

The hearings will be conducted at the Beltrami county courthouse by a three-judge panel whose membership includes Judges Daniel Foley, D. D. Wozniak and Susanne Sedgwick. The court of appeals was created following favorable passage of a constitutional amendment in the 1982 final election. It began operation on Nov. 1, 1983, is chambered in St. Paul and travels to each judicial district on a periodic basis to hear appeals from that district. This will be the first time the court of appeals has conducted oral arguments in the Ninth Judicial district.

Minn. Counties Meet Attended By Officials

Six Pennington county officials joined more than 500 elected and appointed representatives of all 87 Minnesota counties for the 75th annual conference of the Association of Minnesota Counties in St. Paul on January 29, 30 and 31.

Local officials attending included county Auditor Ken Olson, Engineer Wayne Olson, and commissioners Albert Koop, Glenn Tasa, Otto Stenberg and Roger Hoffman. Delegates formally discussed and adopted the 1984 county platform and elected officers. Total attendance exceeded 900 individuals, including spouses, 125 faculty members and over 100 legislators.

Delegates were offered a series of 30 workshops and exchange sessions on major issues facing county government, including: state hospital closure, modernizing county government, waste innovations here and abroad, agricultural land preservation, staying out of court, labor relations, personnel, court unification, local government aids, community corrections, investments, tort liability, working with the media, and data privacy.

In addition, major presentations were made on the conference theme, "A New Era of Responsibility," by Governor Rudy Perpich, Senator David Durenberger, Senator Rudy Boschwitz, Representative James Oberstar, and Sandra Smoley, president of the national association of counties.

Mechanical Systems To Be Course Study

Thief River Falls AVTI adult community education department is co-sponsoring a workshop on "Service of Mechanical Systems" segment seven of the Unibody program designed by GM service research. Workshop will be held on Tuesday, February 28 from 7 to 10 p.m. at the AVTI, room 112 with John Egge as instructor. Fee is $35 made payable to IICACR (Inter-Industry conference on auto collision repair).

This segment will examine the interrelationship of mechanical and drive components with damaged unibody sections. These include mechanical component mounting points, disassembly, emission control systems and certification of repairs, front-wheel-drive systems, rear-wheel-drive systems, and heat and air conditioning systems.

Pre-registration is required by contacting adult education, Thief River Falls AVTI, Highway One East, Thief River Falls, MN 56701; 218-681-5424.

Need Families To Host High School Students

Host families are being sought for 25 high school students from Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland, Holland, Germany, France, Spain, Italy, Colombia, Brazil, Australia, Malaysia, Singapore, Korea, Hong Kong, and Japan for the school year 1984-85, in a program sponsored by American Intercultural Student Exchange (AISE).

The students, age 15 through 17, will arrive in the United States in August, attend the local high school, and return to their home country in late June next year. The students, all fluent in English, have been screened by their school representatives in their home countries and have spending money and medical insurance. Host families with small children are welcome to participate in both programs. Host families may deduct $50 per month for income tax purposes.

AISE is also seeking American high school students age 15 through 18 who would like to spend a high school year or a five week summer stay with a host family in many of the above mentioned countries.

Families interested in this program should contact Carol Hines, AISE North Central coordinator, 722 Drillane Rd., Hopkins, MN 55343.

Word Of Caution

If you plan to be away from home for any length of time during the winter months, it's a good idea to have a friend or neighbor check your house regularly and frequently.

A couple near Dawson arrived home just before Christmas to find their house a veritable oven. The Christmas tree was brown, candles had melted, heat register areas appeared scorched, potatoes left in the cupboard were nearly baked and even the water in the toilet was hot.

The thermostat had stuck and the heating unit kept right on producing the heat being called for. Temperature in the house was 140 degrees! Damage was less than it could have been had the people not arrived when they did. But having someone check your property could save a tragic loss.

Doing Something Right

Despite the many complaints and criticisms which Americans are prone to freely express, this nation must be dong somthing right in a number of areas. Robert F. Dee, chairman of the board of SmithKline corporation, takes issue with writer Tom Wolfe who opened an address to college students by stating, "America is a leaden, life-denying society."

Dee responds:

"I take the stand that America is no such thing, that it's in better condition today than it has ever been, politically, socially and economically. And especially when you compare the United States with other countires.

"Here are a few points to consider:

"Americans are healthier than ever; we're living longer and living healthier. Since 1970, the death rate from heart disease has dropped 25 per cent and deaths due to strokes have declined by 40 per cent.

"The crime rate is down in the first six months of 1983, continuing the previous year's trend. Decreases were reported in all major crimes in all parts of the country.

"Inflation has dropped dramatically. In 1983, wholesale prices rose only six tenths of one per cent, the smallest rise since 1964. Last year's rise in consumer prices was only 3.8 per cent, the smallest increase in more than a decade.

"Interest rates, while high, have declined substantially. The prime rate averaged less than 11 per cent in 1983, compared to 1981's average of 19 per cent.

"Unemployment has dropped faster than even the most optimistic expectations.

The productivity rate is moving upward after a long period of sluggishness.

We have the strongest stock market since the end of World War II.

For the first time in nearly 20 years, surveys show Americans expressing greatly increased confidence in the government.

"Obviously not everything is perfect. We're confronted with a major discrepancy between the income and outlays of the federal government of perhaps $200 billion a year and a cold war that has once again intensified. So I'm not an uncritical optimist. But looking toward the broad horizon, I believe that major progress has been made on many fronts in our country.

"Some of the cynics accuse Americans of a lack of "morality" in our economic system, quite apart from its successes.

"Yet the fact is that compared with two thirds of the planet — where bribery, political corruption and violations of human rights are taken for granted — American morality and respect for human rights are unexcelled.

"Racism? In only a very few countries of the world are there laws that prohibit racial discrimination and at the same time actively seek to redress past wrongs. Our country has made great progress in this respect, even though we still haven't reached the Promised Land and must redouble our efforts.

"Environmental hazards? We have better air quality than we ever had in our cities 50 years ago. Although pollution problems still persist, public reaction has made polluters keenly sensitive to the problems and substantial progress has been made.

"I usually end these messages with a plea to readers to write their elected representatives. I urge you to continue doing so when you see problems that need correction, whether in the private or public sectors.

"But my main message as we begin 1984 is that there's absolutely no reason for cynicism about America's present and future. ... from sea to shining sea."

Trash Dumping Fees

Following column by John Camp in the St. Paul Pioneer Press gives one viewpoint on proposed legislation to add a state tax (and probably a county and municipal tax as well) on trash dumping at landfills:

Your garbage man is in an uproar. No, no, it's not your trash can. This time it's politics.

The state Legislature, which goes into session March 6, will consider a bill to establish a $3-a-ton state tax on trash dumping at landfills.

The bill, or a close version of it, will probably pass. And that's what's got your garbage man's goat. He doesn't mind the wrinkled orange peels, the brown apple cores and the old coffee grounds — he just doesn't want to be a tax collector.

In addition to the $3 state tax, the bill would permit local municipalities to add $1 a ton to the tax, and counties to add an unspecified amount.

About one-third of the tax money would be set aside for environmental cleanup of old landfills, where the present owner can't afford to do the cleanup on his own. The rest would be used to provide grants to recycling projects and develop markets for recycled materials.

My friend Bernie Beerman, a self-appointed spokesman for the garbage community, has these objections (among others):

—The "user fee" cannot be absorbed by the garbage collectors and so will be passed on to customers. He says that makes him a tax collector, and he doesn't want to be a tax collector.

—The tax is too high. Current dumping fees, which Beerman considers excessive, amount to $9 a ton. They would increase a minimum of 33 per cent, and almost certainly more than that, when the municipalities and the counties add their taxes.

—The tax is inequitable. Beerman said there is no good way to account for individual garbage production, so most garbage men will simply divide up their dumping fee increase among their customers. So if you're a widow who lives alone in a small house, and you put out one grocery bag of garbage every week, you'll probably be taxed as much as the guy with a big yard and big family who puts out a mountain of garbage.

Beerman has other objections — the fact that the counties are not limited in their tax bothers him, because he sees it as a sneaky way to raise taxes and blame it on the garbage men — but the items listed above are the main ones.

Sue Robertson, at the state waste commission, counters all of those arguments by saying that the garbage disposal problem must be solved. There are no two ways about it.

Landfills are terribly dangerous to the environment, she says, and we must (1) make provision to clean up old landfills, (2) take precautions with current operations, and (3) find an alternative disposal method. All of that costs money.

She's also willing to argue that a dumping fee is a more equitable tax than other alternatives, like the property or income taxes.

This is one of those cases where I tend to sympathize with both sides. But to tell you the truth, I tend to sympathize a bit more with Beerman.

There's no question that a lot of money will be needed to solve the solid waste problem, and that we're going to need it soon. Robertson's case is clear and irrefutable.

My problem is with the funding method.

After talking to Beerman, I don't think a dumping fee is the most equitable way to raise money. And even if it were, I'm not sure I'd favor it, because it's another of those little invisible tax increases that Minnesota politicians seem to cherish.

The state expects to extract a lot of money from the garbage dumping tax — $15 million a year or so — but the average guy isn't going to blame the state for the increases. He'll blame the guy who delivers the bill, the garbage man.

What to do?

The honest way to raise money for landfill cleanup, and a method that would avoid any new collection bureaucracy, complicated accounting problems and all that, would be to stick it on the income tax. I also think that would be the most equitable way to collect the tax.

Minnesota's income tax is already too high, and every increase has to be accounted for, and explained, by the legislators.

If we desperately need more waste disposal money, all right, tax for it. Right out front. But don't sneak around with a camouflaged tax that we pay, but don't know about, and over which we seem to have no control or right of appeal.

KING AND QUEEN of the Valentine party conducted by the Goodridge Lioness club for members of the senior citizen center at Goodridge Thursday were Norman Anderson and Mabel Sigerud. Each was presented with a crown and box of candy, and they were given a place of honor from which to watch the "brown bag fashion show" presented by Lioness members.

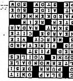
Solution



U.S. Senator
Rudy Boschwitz
reports to Minnesota

Whenever I talk about Medicare these days, I recall a conversation I had with a well known national columnist a couple years ago. That very day I had published an article in the Washington Post that unveiled my 21 ways to deal with the financial problems of Social Security.

"Why would you want to do that?" he asked. "The Democrats created the problem. Let them solve it." It would be political suicide, he said, to fine tune something as sacrosanct as Social Security.

He was not alone. Most of my colleagues had reached the same unfortunate conclusion, even though it was obvious that Social Security was plummeting toward a financial crisis.

So we awaited a deluge of nasty responses to my article. They never came. In fact, positive mail outnumbered negative mail by almost 6 to 1. The readers understood that the problem was real, and that something must be done to correct it. And later, with the help of Senators Bob Dole and Bill Armstrong, a Social Security package was passed (that included 7 of my proposals).

The same arguments will soon be made over coming problems in Medicare. That system, too, is faced with financial problems, but not until the late 1980s.

One would think that such lead time would give us a chance to work out a solution. But efforts to do something about it are facing the same "you're-nuts-to-talk-about-it" attitude here in Washington. So once again, pardon me for being incautious, but I believe that if we talk about it now, we can get a sound, realistic, and fair solution. And perhaps more important, we can avoid the crisis-like atmosphere that marred the Social Security debate.

For my part, I'm thinking about calling for the President to name a bipartisan commission to study the problem and prescribe possible solutions. This worked suprisingly well (although not perfectly) for Social Security in the commission headed by economist Alan Greenspan. The conclusions of this commission would provide a solid foundation for debate on which a solution could be constructed.

In Minnesota, I will hold many hearings on Medicare. These are not hearings in the formal "Senatorial" sense, but more like town meetings, where people can sit and listen to me, and I can listen to them. You probably recall that I did the same on Social Security, and those helped me immeasurably back here in Washington. Things never look quite the same from here in Washington as when you've gone out and talked to the people who actually will be affected.

If you would like to see one of these hearings in your town, please feel free to write or call. I'll do my best to get out your way.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

In the 1983 session of the legislature, Minnesota passed the agricultural commodity minimum pricing bill in the senate. In 1984 the bill will go before the House chamber. If it passes and is signed by Gov. Perpich, Minnesota will become one of the number of states necessary to enact minimum pricing on a national scale.

Minimum pricing on the buying or selling of ag products will take effect at a price at 80 per cent of parity when 60 per cent of a given commodity in the nation is enrolled. All 17 states with minimum pricing bills under consideration have coordinated the rules. So all standards are uniform nationally, each state will have a committee of farmers and each state will have a representative on a national board to administer the rules.

This bill will, if passed, help revitalize the entire economy but the effect will be most rapidly seen in the rural areas. Rural small business will see the results as fast as the farmers.

Because of this everyone, not only farmers, has a stake in this bill becoming law in 1984. Call or write your mesages of support to your representatives. See where they stand! It would also be useful to send letters to agriculture commissioner Jim Nicholas and Rep. Tom Shea, chairman of the house ag committee.

Thank you,
Steve Linder,

Seek To Improve U.S. Ag Exports

Senator Rudy Boschwitz has introduced a bill that seeks to improve agriculture exports. The value of agricultural exports has declined 21 per cent during the past two years, and the short-term prospects appear equally dismal, he said.

Boschwitz, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on foreign agriculture policy, says that "our export outlook has been undermined by factors over which we have little control. This bill would have us work more diligently in areas we can control."

He said agricultural exporters have been hampered by the worldwide recession, a relatively strong U.S. dollar, less creditworthy customers facing increased debt burdens, and the increased use of export subsidies by the European community and other competitors.

To overcome this, Boschwitz says the U.S. should expand some existing export programs, but work more diligently at seeking out other buyers.

"As many of these factors disappear, there are going to be more and better customers for our goods," Boschwitz said, "and we have to do everything we can to make sure they come to us."

What follows is a summary of the provisions of the food aid and export market promotion act:

Sec. 2. Mandate that $7 billion of GSM-102 credit guarantees be made available in fiscal year 1984. The administration has approved $4 billion in guarantees for FY84, compared to $5.15 billion in FY83.

Under the GSM-102 program, the Commodity Credit corporation guarantees commercial loans made to finance exports of U.S. agricultural products with repayment periods of six months to three years.

Sec. 3. Increase the authorization level for Title II of P.L. 480 from $1.0 to $1.5 billion. The increased Title II commodities are given as outright food grants to needy nations.

Sec. 4. The authority for overseas commodity donations under Section 416 of the agricultural act of 1949 would be expanded to allow donations of any CCC-owned commodities without counting them against P.L. 480 allocations. (Currently only dairy products can be given away under this authority.)

Sec. 5. The budget reconciliation act of 1982 mandated that between $175 and $190 million of CCC funds be used for export promotion in each of the fiscal years 1983-85. Approximately $70 million remains to be used in FY84.

The bill would direct the secretary to use at least $25 million in FY84 and $50 million in FY85 for the intermediate credit programs (GSM-201 and GSM-301). GSM-201 is a direct credit program which provides CCC financing for the exportation of breeding livestock with repayment terms of 3-10 years. GSM-301 is a direct credit program for infrastructure development with repayment of three to 10 years.

Section 5 also amends the existing intermediate credit programs to:

(a) Provide the secretary with the flexibility to set the repayment terms and the interest rate. Currently, the secretary is required to set repayment terms over a three-to-10 year period with interest rates that reflect those of short-term U.S. treasury notes.

(b) Provide the secretary with the authority to establish an intermediate credit guarantee program. Under this provision, the CCC would guarantee a commercial loan which calls for the repayment within three to 10 years. In addition, the secretary would be authorized to use CCC funds to buy-down the interest rate offered by the commercial lender.

Sec. 6. Mandate a GAO study to investigate our existing food aid programs. The study must be completed within 120 days of the enactment of this legislation. The purpose of this study would be to evaluate:

(a) The needs of recipient countries relative to global food aid needs;

(b) The use to which recipients put the food aid once it is received;

(c) The nutritional and economic success of the programs; and

(d) The extent to which the ultimate consumer knows that the aid is coming from the United States and how this information could be provided more effectively.

"There is really no way we can overstate the value of agricultural exports," Boschwitz said. "During the '70s the value of our ag exports increased from $7 billion to $44 billion (1970-1981). These exports have created more than 800,000 jobs in the U.S. in related industries, and have taken the production of two of every five acres of U.S. cropland."

He added that these exports generate about one-fourth of all farmers' cash receipts, and contributed nearly $30 billion to our balance of trade in the peak year of 1981.

SEITU JONES, a professional artist visiting the Thief River Falls schools under the COMPAS program this week, was welcomed to the community at a reception in the Northwest regional library on Monday evening, sponsored by the Zehlians. Jones gave a presentation on the COMPAS artists in the schools program, showed slides of some of his work, and gave a demonstration on the technique of photo painting, which is one of the things he is teaching Franklin middle school students.

Commissioner Of Education At BSU Friday

Dr. Ruth Randall, commissioner of education, will present the "State of Education in Minnesota" address February 24 at 12:15 p.m. in the Beaux Arts ballroom on the Bemidji state university campus.

The speech, which is one of the major presentations given by a member of Governor Perpich's administration each year, will be part of the conference on excellence in education which Bemidji state is hosting February 23-24.

Randall was appointed as the commissioner of education by Gov. Perpich in July of 1983 to provide leadership and management to a state public education system that spans 435 districts, affects a biennial budget of 2.2 billion dollars, and employs more than 42,000 professionals.

Prior to assuming the post, she was the superintendent of schools in Rosemount. She is experienced in all phases of education, from the classroom to the administrative office.

She received bachelor's, master's and specialist's degrees from the University of Nebraska at Omaha before obtaining a doctorate degree in educational administration from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Randall's remarks will be made during the second day of the conference at Bemidji state university. The first day focuses on national reports, such as "A Nation at Risk" prepared by the national commission on excellence in education and the Carnegie foundation's "High School."

More information on the conference is available by contacting Dr. Lowell Vaughn or Dr. Ray Nelson, Department of Professional Education, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601 (218-755-2774).

4-H Campaign Goal Set At $50 Million

A five-year $50 million campaign to double private support for 4-H has been announced by James L. Dutt, chairman of the national 4-H council board of trustees.

Campaign is a cooperative effort between state 4-H programs and national 4-H council, a not-for-profit organization. It will not only build upon traditional support from the corporate community but also will seek expanded support from foundations and individuals. The 4-H program is the nation's largest out-of-school youth education organization.

Youth program of the cooperative extension service of state land-grant universities and the U.S. department of agriculture, 4-H has nearly five million members in every state, plus the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa and Micronesia. These young people are led by more than 620,000 volunteer leaders, backed by professional extension staff.

Northmen Gain Tournament Berth

In a surprise announcement Saturday, Northland community college was named to participate in the 1984 Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) state basketball tournament, scheduled to start with Thursday's opening round quarterfinals at Normandale community college in Bloomington.

Northland will face Southern Division champion Worthington in the final game that night, a scheduled 9 p.m. start.

Fergus Falls won the MCCC Northwest Division title this winter with a perfect 11-0 record. Northland, Brainerd and the University of Minnesota-Crookston all shared second place at 6-4, and the Northmen won out in the tie-breaking system used to name the No. 2 team for the state meet from the Northwest Division.

It was an unlikely turn of events that produced the state tournament berth for the Northmen. Going into the last two playing dates of the 1983-84 regular season schedule, Brainerd appeared to have second place locked up with a 6-3 record, while UMC stood at 5-4 and Northland was 5-5. The Northmen needed to beat UMC Thursday; needed Fergus Falls to defeat Brainerd that same night; and needed UMC to knock off Brainerd in the season finale Saturday.

Only a Fergus Falls win over Brainerd seemed certain, especially in light of the fact that UMC had easily handled Northland earlier, and Brainerd did likewise to UMC. And to complicate matters, those required results would neccessitate wins on the road by the Northmen and then the Trojans.

Well, remarkably it all happened. Fergus Falls beat Brainerd 89-74, Northland defeated UMC 60-57; and UMC, in turn, upset Brainerd 73-71.

That set the stage for a secret vote among Northwest Division coaches to break the tie. It didn't. Apparently Northland, Brainerd and UMC voted for themselves and Fergus Falls must have abstained because the vote ended in a tie. The state tournament spot was then determined by lots — and Northland won.

Hockey Pairings Not Yet Set

Pairings for the 1984 Section 8 high school hockey tournament quarterfinals, scheduled to be played this weekend in the Thief River Falls sports arena will not be finalized until after the completion of second-round sub-section eliminations tonight (Monday).

Based upon the vote by the 19 Section 8 coaches last week, Roseau, Bemidji, Fergus Falls and Thief River Falls were awarded the top four seeds for the tournament, and there substantial differences in the number of votes each team received, with Roseau solidly the No. 1 pick; Bemidji No. 2; Fergus Falls No. 3; and Thief River Falls No. 4. The only other team to receive a top-four vote was Crookston, and the Pirates finished well behind the Prowlers for that final position.

Roseau will make its tournament debut Friday at 6:30 p.m., with Thief River Falls taking the ice at 9 that night. Bemidji plays at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, with Fergus Falls on the ice at 9.

Who they will play is uncertain even at this late date. After the top four were seeded, the rest of the tournament match-ups were based upon the final regular season Section 8 standings, divided on a north-south basis. First round sub-section games were played Saturday, with the final four Section 8 qualifiers being named tonight when Lake of the Woods plays Warroad; Hallock meets Crookston; Brainerd faces Moorhead; and Detroit Lakes takes on Alexandria.

Winners will be matched up against the four already-seeded teams in the Section 8 quarterfinals based upon their regular season winning percentage in the sectional standings, with the highest-finishing sub-section survivor facing the No. 4-seeded Prowlers, while the lowest-finishing sub-section winner matched up against the No. 1-seeded Rams.

Thief River Falls could be matched up against almost anybody Friday. Two most simple solutions would have the Prowlers playing Lake of the Woods, if the Bears beat Warroad tonight; or the Prowlers could be playing Crookston if the Pirates beat Hallock tonight while at the same time Warroad knocks off Lake of the Woods.

After that it gets kind of complicated. For instance: if Warroad beats Lake of the Woods and Hallock beat Crookston and Brainerd beats Moorhead, Thief River Falls would be facing Brainerd Friday night. On the other hand, the Prowlers could end up with Alexandria or Warroad, too.

Freshmen Lose Close Games

Thief River Falls fell to 4-13 with the losses, but with a little luck the team could very well be 11-6. The team has now collected three consecutive one-point losses, and has lost four one-point games in the past five starts, with five one-point losses charged against them for the season.

Two other losses came by just three points, and one of those went into overtime, as did the Friday defeat at Bemidji.

Two Northmen Are Announced As All-Division

Two Northland players have been named to the 1983-84 Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) All-Northwest Division basketball team.

Rounding out the team was George Boulware, a 6-4 freshman forward from Brainerd, and Paul Ostby, a 6-2 sophomore guard from University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Hockey Ticket Sales To Start On Thursday

Section 8 high school hockey tournament will begin this weekend at the Thief River Falls sports arena, and tickets for each tournament session will be on sale to the general public here beginning Thursday.

Quarterfinal tournament doubleheaders will be played Friday and Saturday, with single semifinal games scheduled Mon., Feb. 27, and Tues., Feb. 28. Championship game will be played Fri., March 2.

General admission tickets, priced at $3 for adults and $1 for students, will be sold locally at the Lincoln high school gymnasium ticket window and at the main entrance at Franklin middle school. There are no reserved seat ticket sales for the tournament.

Ticket sales this week at Lincoln will be held Thursday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Friday from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.; and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 12-noon.

Franklin ticket sales will take place this week on Thursday from 7:45 to 8:15 a.m. and from 3 to 4 p.m.; and on Friday from 7:45 to 8:15 a.m. and from 3 to 3:30 p.m.

Ticket sales will resume Monday and Tuesday next week, and if Thief River Falls reaches the Section 8 championship game, ticket sales will reopen on Thursday and Friday, March 1-2.

There are 300 tickets available locally for the Section 8 championship game. They will be sold at the Lincoln ticket window, only, on a first-come, first-served basis, with a limit of four per customer. If the Prowlers reach the Section 8 finals, an additional 1,100 pre-sale tickets would be available here March 1 and 2 at both Lincoln and Franklin.

EAST GRAND FORKS defender Debbie Hawthorne (40) blocked this shot by Thief River Falls' Connie Grovum during Thursday's girls high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym. The once-beaten Green Wave defeated the Prowlers 61-49 in Thief River Falls' final home appearance of the 1983-84 season.

Prowlers Rally, But Lose To Strong EGF Girls Team

Final home appearance of the 1983-84 season for the Lincoln high school girls basketball team didn't produce a win, but it did feature a gutsy performance by the underdog Prowlers, who challenged a strong East Grand Forks team before succumbing 61-49 down the stretch.

Trailing 53-37 — matching the Prowlers' largest deficit of the game — with exactly six minutes left, Thief River Falls staged a rally that rattled off eight straight points to pull within 51-45 with 3:39 still to play. And it could have gotten even tighter as the Prowlers regained possession but missed two shots at a chance to make it a four-point game.

Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer admitted he had thoughts of pulling off an upset at that point, but those dreams quickly vanished when the once-beaten Green Wave responded with their own run of eight points to re-open a 59-45 lead with 1:23 left.

"I'm not real disappointed in the loss," explained Schafer. "We worked hard. We could have given up very easily, but we came back and had a chance at the end. But it seemed like whenever they needed a bucket, someone was there to get it for them."

Results left Thief River Falls at 9-9 for the year. The Prowlers finish their regular season schedule at Fergus Falls Tuesday. East Grand Forks, meanwhile, improved its record to 17-1. Final score was similar to a 61-43 Green Wave win over the Prowlers earlier this year.

"I can see why they're 17-1," said Schafer. "They've got an excellent ball club. I don't know who's going to stop them from going to state."

It certainly won't be the Prowlers, who will compete in North Sub-Region 8AA tournament play starting next Monday, because the Green Wave defected from Class AA this year to move into District 31A competition.

East Grand Forks led 9-5 at the end of the first quarter. Thief River Falls enjoyed a pair of brief second quarter leads, including a 16-14 edge on a steal and a fast break lay-up by guard Stacie Kruta with 4:27 remaining. But the Green Wave scored 10 straight points over the next two minutes en route to a 28-19 halftime advantage. East Grand Forks then weathered a couple of Thief River Falls third quarter surges to take a 46-33 cushion into the final eight minutes.

"We could never seem to get past that seven-or-eight-point barrier," noted Schafer.

Depth was not a problem for the Green Wave, who put 11 players into the scoring column, led by 5-11 sophomore Diane Vonesh with 14 points and 6-0 junior Amy Roche with 10. Connie Grovum, a 5-7 sophomore, played a strong game for the Prowlers in scoring 13 points. Season-long scoring leaders Michelle Puetz and Michelle Olson finished with 12 and 10 points, respectively, but 18 of those 22 points came in the second half. Olson was scoreless in the first half and Puetz had just four points.

Thief River Falls shot 33 per cent from the field (20-for-60) and was only 9-for-19 at the free throw line (47 per cent), a fact that cost the Prowlers, according to Schafer. East Grand Forks shot 42 per cent from the field (26-for-62) and also had some trouble at the line, going 9-for-17 (53 per cent), including a 4-for-14 first half when the Green Wave missed the front end of four bonus opportunities.

East Grand Forks won a very physical battle on the boards 38-33 and the Prowlers topped the turnover charts 23-22 in the sometimes erratic display of ball handling on both sides.

Otters Handle Prowlers 8-2

A week away from the opening round of the 1984 Section 8 high school hockey tournament that will be played in the same building, Fergus Falls won votes as a legitimate state tournament candidate from the fans in the Thief River Falls sports arena who witnessed the Otters' 8-2 Friday night rout of a Lincoln high school team that had lost just once in its last 12 games.

After spotting the Prowlers an early 1-0 lead, the Otters dominated play. They out-skated, out-worked and out-shot Thief River Falls to the tune of 32-17.

Fergus Falls had won the first meeting between the two by a narrow 3-2 margin back on Dec. 10, and another close contest was expected from the teams who finished 3-4 in the final Section 8-counting standings with nearly identical records. Adding to the anticipation of a good match-up was the fact that the Otters (10-5-0 in Section 8 play) and the Prowlers (10-5-1) were both on a late-season roll.

Fortunately for the Prowlers, the Section 8 standings and tournament positions were finalized earlier in the week. The loss dropped Thief River Falls to 12-7-1 overall and put Fergus Falls at 14-5-0. They're in opposite brackets of the Section 8 tournament quarterfinals, meaning they won't meet again unless it's in the March 2 finals.

It started out promisingly enough for the Prowlers when Rick Spong and Tim Bottem, both back in the line-up on a limited basis (power plays and penalty killing) after missing several weeks with shoulder injuries, teammed up on a power play goal at 4:20 of the first period. Spong scored the goal as he came around from behind the net and stuffed the puck past Fergus Falls goalie Jeff Hanson.

Fergus Falls tied it on a power play of its own when Derek Trosvig's straightaway slap shot from the point sailed waist-high past partially-screened Thief River Falls goalie Steve Solheim at 8:22.

At 10:42 it became 2-1 Fergus Falls when Solheim was unable to get a glove on a loose puck in the goal crease and the Otters' Paul Quam put it in the net.

Getting off three quick shots from various angles, Fergus Falls finally beat the beleaguered Solheim on a power play opportunity at 1:40 of the second period, with Mike Donley scoring on a rebound to the right of the net.

Thief River Falls, after facing an enormous amount of pressure, finally broke out and cut the score to 4-2 when Ryan Bakke lifted the puck past Hanson, who was on his knees, at 4:01.

But the Prowlers' third penalty of the night resulted in the Otters' third power play goal of the game at 5:59 when Myron Russell's slap shot from the right side clanged off the left goal post and bounced behind Solheim, crossing the goal line before the netminder could get his glove on it just 17 seconds into the power play.

Russell scored again at 12:36 to make it 6-2, skating across the front of the goal mouth and putting a point-blank backhand into the net.

It stayed that way until the final stages of the third period when Donley got his second goal of the night on a rebound at 9:53 and Jeff Mehl scored on a scramble in front of Solheim at 13:01.

There were 11 penalties in the game — six on the Prowlers and five on the Otters.

Scales, Northmen End With 60-57 Win At UMC

Value of Rod Scales to the success of the Northland community college basketball team this winter was underlined Thursday in a regular season-ending 60-57 Northwest Division win over rival University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Scales, a 6-7 sophomore from Inkster, Mich., made only a hurried appearance near the end of a Feb. 7 UMC appearance in Thief River Falls. A delay in flight plans after an out-of-town trip for personal reasons found Scales rushing into the gym midway through the second half of that earlier meeting, and although he gave it a shot, a hero-like, game-winning, storybook ending never materialized as UMC pulled off a rare win in the spirited rivalry, 78-71.

Thursday, though, Scales was there at the start and played a key role in the victory, said Northland coach Chet Engelman, that kept the Northmen in the race for a Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) state tournament berth. A first-year member of the Northland squad, Scales scored 15 points and grabbed 16 rebounds while dominating play underneath the boards in the very physically-played contest.

"It makes a lot of difference to have Scales in there," confirmed Engelman. "He did a nice job. He had himself a really nice ball game."

As the final score might indicate, things were close the full 40 minutes. Visiting Northland had a 29-25 edge at halftime, but the lead changed hands several times in the early portion of the second half before back-to-back baskets by Kyle Ramsey and Pat Burke gave Northland a 47-43 lead at the 10-minute mark.

Northland never relinquished the lead after that, but the margin fluctuated only between two and four points the rest of the way.

Scoring off the delay game with 57 seconds left, sophomore Jon Neumann of Middle River gave Northland a 59-55 advantage. The Trojans' Paul Ostby, the game's high scorer with 21 points, connected from the field with 39 seconds remaining to pull UMC back within 59-57, but a single free throw by Scales on a two-shot situation with 23 seconds to play closed out the scoring.

"It was a pleasant way to finish off the season," said Engelman. "We got pretty solid performances out of everybody. The kids wanted to win; we played with some intensity."

Joining Scales in double figures for the Northmen were Ramsey with 12 points and Neumann with 10. Dale Pederson had 12 for UMC.

Shooting figures for the two teams paralleled each other. Both teams shot horribly in the first half when Northland was 11-for-44 and UMC was 10-for-39, but both suddenly began connecting in the second half when the Northmen were 15-for-30 and the Trojans were 16-for-33. That left Northland 26-for-74 for the game (35 per cent) and UMC 26-for-72 (36 per cent). The Northmen were 8-for-13 at the free throw line and the Trojans were 5-for-7.

Northland built a sizeable 60-42 rebound advantage. Complementing Scales' 16 rebounds were Shorty Johnson with 15, Neumann with 11 and Ramsey with 10, along with five assists to round out a strong all-round game. Northland topped the turnover figures 16-11.

With the victory, Northland finished its regular season schedule at 12-8 overall, 6-5 in the Northwest Division. The Northmen would finish that way unless UMC closed with a Saturday win at Brainerd. The Red Raiders lost an 89-74 decision to unbeaten division-leading Fergus Falls Thursday and needed a win over the Trojans to take second place and a state tournament berth behind the Spartans. A UMC win meant a three-way second place tie involving Northland, Brainerd and UMC that called for a coaches' vote to break the deadlock.

Middle River Is 20-Point Winner Over Rival MCC

Unbeaten Middle River repeated a 20-point victory over rival Marshall County Central Thursday in North Border Conference girls high school basketball action as the 18-0 Skippers handled the host Nordics 57-37.

That was nearly identical to an earlier 56-36 Middle River win over Marshall County Central at mid-season. Margin of victory was a little surprising this time, however, because the Skippers, who lack depth, were playing without starting guard Jody Christofferson, sidelined with an ankle injury.

"It was our best game of the year," reported Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "I didn't think we'd do it without Jody, but the other kids picked up the slack."

Middle River led at the quarter stops 15,8, 33-19 and 48-26.

A balanced Middle River attack included Paula Rantanen with 14 points, Tammy Sorter 13, Diane Black 12 and Vonda Peterson 11. Only one Marshall County Central scorer was in double figures as Jody Foss scored 11 points.

Afraid to get into foul trouble because of the lack of depth, Neibauer said the Skippers switched from their normal man-to-man defense to a zone for the first time since December. They used the zone for 13 minutes, he explained, and were burned on occasion by the Nordics' outside shooting. They finished with the man-to-man.

"We did all right in the zone, I guess," noted Neibauer, "but our man-to-man is a lot better than our zone."

Middle River shot 39 per cent from the field (22-for-56) and 52 per cent at the free throw line (13-for-25) as the Skippers got by a barrier that prevented them from enjoying an undefeated 1982-83 campaign. They were in a similar situation a year ago — 17-0 and facing Marshall County Central — when they suffered their only setback of the regular season.

Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde was impressed with the Middle River performance. "They played really well," he said. "I don't think any team could have beat them the way they were playing. We just got beat by a real good ball club. They look like the best team in the district right now."

The Nordics came up with shooting figures similar to the Skippers, but they just didn't get as many shots. Marshall County Central shot 38 per cent from the field (15-for-39) and 54 per cent at the line (7-for-12). The Nordics had a 25-18 rebound edge, but also led in turnovers, 21-10.

One final regular season test remains for the Skippers, who visit Plummer Tuesday.

Marshall County Central, 10-8, finishes at Greenbush tonight (Monday).

Plummer rallied in the final two minutes to gain a tie, but lost a 66-64 Polar Conference decision to East Grand Forks Sacred Heart when the Eagles' Katie Rasmussen sank two free throws with 17 seconds remaining.

It was close most of the way. Sacred Heart started with a 19-14 first quarter lead, but it was deadlocked 30-30 at halftime, with the Eagles regaining a slim 47-46 lead as the third quarter ended.

Plummer trailed by six points with less than two minutes to play before staging a rally that tied things 64-64 with 24 seconds left.

Rasmussen broke the tie with her free throws, and Plummer promptly sealed its fate with a turnover.

"We're pleased with our effort, but we made a few mental mistakes that led to the final score," reported Plummer coach Rick Koivisto.

Jody Pahlen of Plummer took game-high scoring honors with 25 points. Teammate Sheila Jaeger had 10. Rasmussen finished with 23 for the visitors, while Jeannie Ripp contributed 18.

Plummer shot 43 per cent from the field (26-for-60) and 57 per cent at the free throw line (12-for-21). Sacred Heart shot an impressive 59 per cent from the field (29-for-49) and 62 per cent at the line (8-for-13). The Cardinals had a 29-20 rebound advantage and the Eagles had one more turnover, 18-17.

Goodridge, beaten 61-41 by Warren in Polar Conference play Thursday, will close out its regular season schedule Tuesday at home against Oklee.

Despite missing two starters, Warren was an easy winner at Goodridge, building quarter leads of 13-6, 29-14 and 57-26.

Kim Vesey scored 24 points to lead the Ponies. Diana Troska and Jennie Boutain each had 10 for the Huskies, who fell to 5-12 with the loss.

Goodridge shot just 28 per cent from the field for the game (19-for-68) — some 20 percentage points lower than Warren. The Ponies shot 48 per cent on a 28-for-58 night.

"Their height forced us to shoot from the outside, and we forced a few shots," admitted Goodridge coach Patti Johnson.

Goodridge also fared poorly at the free throw line where the Huskies were just 3-for-15. The Ponies were 5-for-6 at the line. Warren dominated the boards, out-rebounding Goodridge 48-32, but also topped the turnover figures 29-14.

Senior Kathy Foss closed out her home court career with a 23-point game to lead Grygla past Badger 63-35 Thursday.

It was the final game of the 1983-84 regular season for the Eagles, who snapped a four-game losing streak to finish 4-15.

"They really played a good game," pointed out Grygla coach Mike Gast. "They started a little slow, but after the first quarter they really played well."

Grygla led only 10-8 at the end of the first quarter, but opened up a 24-19 halftime edge and stretched it to 39-27 after three quarters.

Foss, who scored 19 of her points in the second half, was one of four Grygla scorers in double figures as Kari Klamar finished with 12 points, Penny Wikert 12 and Debbie Klein 10. Christina Johnson led Badger with 17 points.

"Kathy really had a good night," praised Gast, whose team has had troubles offensively throughout much of the season.

Grygla shot 38 per cent from the field (24-for-63) and 63 per cent at the free throw line (15-for-24). Badger shot 29 per cent from the field (17-for-57) and just 17 per cent at the line (1-for-6).

UMC Women Beat Northland 73-45

Lisa Rongen scored 32 points Thursday to lead the University of Minnesota-Crookston past Northland community college in a season-ending Northwest Division women's basketball game played at Crookston.

Northland finished the year 7-12 overall, 2-9 in the Northwest Division, including a five-game season-ending losing streak.

Trailing just 30-21 at halftime, Northland lost ground quickly in the second half when Rongen used her strength inside to score 21 of her 32 points. The Northwomen couldn't handle Rongen, who benefited from the officials' calls — or lack of them, according to Northland coach Deb Jacobson, who said the game was too physical to suit her.

Janice Gubbels added 18 points to the UMC total, giving her and Rongen 50 of the 73 points. Brenda Dahl scored 12 to lead Northland, with Jenyne Beehler getting 11, Karen Sovde 10 and Kathy Pietruszewski 10.

Northland hurt its cause with poor shooting. The Northwomen were just 20-for-69 from the field, a not-very-good 29 per cent. UMC was 33-for-82, a 40 per cent figure. Northland was 5-for-10 at the free throw line, where UMC was 7-for-17. The Trojans had a big 66-43 rebound edge and the Northwomen had more turnovers, 23-19.

"We played a real good first half," said Jacobson, but just one half of good basketball for the shorthanded Northwomen was a season-long trait, she admitted.

Swimmers Finish With 101-64 Win at Moorhead

Lincoln high school swimming team closed out its 1983-84 regular season schedule Friday with a 101-64 dual meet victory at Moorhead.

Sophomore Eric Ose and junior Todd Wing were double-event winners for the Prowlers, who finished with a 6-3 dual meet record. They will be idle until the 1984 Section 8 meet March 2-3 at Bemidji State University.

Wing set a new team and Moorhead pool record with a 270.25-point diving performance. He also won the 100-yard backstroke in 1:05.7.

Ose, meanwhile, won the 100-yard freestyle in 55.0 and took the 200-yard freestyle in a region-qualifying 2:00.7.

Senior Dave Ose also matched the region-qualifying standard with a first-place 1:00.3 in the 100-yard butterfly.

Thief River Falls' 200-yard medley relay unit of Wing, Paul Wefald, Rick Rosetta and Jeff Michalicek opened the meet with a first place 2:02.2.

Semifinals and finals will be played next week at the University of Minnesota-Crookston. Semifinals will be played Mon., Feb. 27, and the finals will be played Fri., March 2.

WITH TWO Thief River Falls players sprawled on the ice behind him, East Grand Forks' Scott Stauss had a clear shot at Thief River Falls goalie Chris Lawrence in the third period of Saturday's Pee-Wee A District 15-16 hockey tournament played at the sports arena. Lawrence made the stop on the play, but East Grand Forks scored on the rebound en route to a 9-7 victory. All four Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA) traveling teams were involved in district tournament play Saturday and Sunday, trying to land regional tournament berths. District Bantam A tournament was played in Bemidji; Bantam B at East Grand Forks; and Pee-Wee B at Hallock.

TRF Teams Earn Region Berth

Two Thief River Falls Pee-Wee teams earned berths in regional play, but both Bantam teams were sidelined during the District 15-16 youth hockey tournaments played throughout the area Saturday and Sunday.

Playing in the District 15-16 Pee-Wee B tournament at Hallock, Thief River Falls emerged as champion with wins over Fergus Falls 8-1, East Grand Forks 8-6 and Roseau 3-2 in the finals to earn the only available berth in regional play at Moorhead.

Pee-Wee A tournament was played at the Thief River Falls sports arena, with Roseau beating East Grand Forks 7-2 for the title, but with four teams advancing to regional play in Duluth, first-round winners Fergus Falls and Thief River Falls joined Roseau and East Grand Forks for advancement. Thief River Falls Eagles, after a 4-2 first round win over Alexandria, lost to East Grand Forks 9-7 in the semifinals and fell to Fergus Falls 7-6 in double overtime in the third place game.

Thief River Falls VFW Bantam A team, playing in the District 15-16 tournament at Bemidji, lost twice, dropping a 2-1 first round game to Crookston and losing an 8-1 consolation semifinal decision to Roseau. Two finalists were to advance into regional play at Coleraine.

Bantam B District 15-16 tournament was played at East Grand Forks where Thief River Falls beat Fergus Falls 4-2, but lost to Roseau 8-2 in the semifinals before bouncing back to edge Crookston 6-5 in the third place game. Two finalists were to move into regional play at Hoyt Lakes.

Additional tournament details will be listed in Wednesday's weekly Youth Hockey column in The Times.

Bemidji JV Is Winner Over TRF Friday

Bemidji defeated Thief River Falls 54-47 in junior varsity high school basketball Friday.

Thief River Falls owned a 15-13 first quarter lead, but Bemidji went ahead 30-25 at halftime and opened up a 42-29 third quarter lead.

Darrel Miller scored 12 points and Kevin Nelson had 10 for Thief River Falls, 4-10 for the year.

Kennel Club To Meet Tues.

Agassiz Kennel Club will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday, February 21, in the Northwest regional library meeting room. Dog owners interested in membership are welcome to attend.

Bemidji Beats Prowlers 70-54

Bemidji out-scored Thief River Falls by 16 points in the first half and went on to claim a 16-point victory over the visiting Prowlers Friday, 70-54, in high school basketball action.

"We didn't play very well in the first half," admitted Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "Second half we played with a lot more intensity, but it was way to late."

Bemidji opened with a 17-10 first quarter lead and owned a 35-17 cushion at halftime. The Lumberjacks were out-scored 37-35 in the second half, but were never threatened, owning a 55-28 third quarter edge.

Thief River Falls guard John Brandt scored a game-high 23 points, with teammate Jeff Langan adding 12. Jeff Leyendecker led a balanced Bemidji attack with 13 points.

It was the Prowlers' second loss of the year to the Lumberjacks, who won the first meeting by a one-sided 84-39 margin back on Jan. 6.

Thief River Falls, 6-11 for the year, will close out its 1983-84 home schedule Tuesday when Park Rapids visits the Lincoln gym.

Sub-Section Games To Resume Tonight

First round Sub-Section 8 high school hockey games were played Saturday, with winners in tonight's (Monday) second round of eliminations advancing into the 1984 Section 8 tournament quarterfinals this weekend in Thief River Falls.

In North Half action Saturday, Lake of the Woods routed East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 16-1; Warroad handled Indus 10-2; Hallock doubled Red Lake Falls 6-3; and Crookston eliminated East Grand Forks 6-2.

Three games were played in the South Half where Brainerd had a first round bye, as Moorhead blanked Little Falls 10-0; Detroit Lakes stopped Bagley 11-3; and Alexandria shut out Crosby-Ironton 15-0.

In tonight's match-ups, Warroad plays Lake of the Woods at Baudette; Hallock will be at Crookston; Moorhead drives to Brainerd; and Detroit Lakes goes to Alexandria.

Those winners will join already-seeded Roseau, Bemidji, Fergus Falls and Thief River Falls in the Section 8 tournament field.

Stephen Girls Beat Plummer 59-47 Friday

Playing for the third time in five days, Plummer lost a 59-47 game at Stephen Friday, and coach Rick Kolvisto said the schedule maybe took its toll on the Cardinals, who split a pair of closely-fought games earlier in the week.

"They're a good outfit, and I think we got tired," said Kolvisto, whose 10-7 team will close out its regular season schedule Tuesday at home against unbeaten Middle River.

Stephen had quarter leads of 14-12, 32-23 and 45-38 before pulling away in the final eight minutes.

Jody Pahlen and Janelle Konickson scored 16 and 10 points, respectively, for the Cardinals, while the Tigers were paced by Brenda Ignaszewski's 18 points.

Plummer shot just 26 per cent from the field (18-for-69), while Stephen shot 38 per cent (23-for-6;). The Cardinals were 11-for-17 at the free throw line (65 per cent), where the Tigers were 13-for-18 (72 per cent). Plummer had a slight 38-37 rebound edge and also had one more turnover, 20-19.

Marshall County Central Big 73-51 Winner Over Tri-County

Marshall County Central was a surprisingly easy 73-51 winner over a highly-regarded Tri-County squad Friday in a high school basketball game that winning coach Ron Ueland described as a "real confidence-builder" for the Nordics.

Playing without starting guard Chad Swan, the team's leading scorer who is sidelined with an ankle injury, Marshall County Central nevertheless came up with an outstanding performance, said Ueland, in building quarter leads of 18-8, 34-23 and 50-31 before getting into a fourth quarter shoot-out.

Kevin Boe and Scott Gustafson combined for 42 points for the winners, with Boe getting 22 and Gustafson 20. Ken Krohn also broke into double figures with 12 points. Robert Kalinowski scored 12 points for the host Rabbits, but he was their only double figure scorer as the Nordics complemented their offensive production with a strong defensive game.

"It was our best game, overall, of the year," pointed out Ueland. "We've had some good offensive games before, but this was our best game on both offense and defense. We did a really good job defensively."

Marshall County Central improved its record to 12-6 with the win, but more importantly, said Ueland, the Nordics finally beat a District 32 contender. Most of the Marshall County Central wins were one-sided affairs against the weaker teams, with the Nordics unable to beat the likes of Lake of the Woods, Argyle and Kennedy.

"We've been disappointed that we hadn't been able to play well against the really good teams," acknowledged Ueland. "I was really getting concerned about our confidence. This is the first time we've played 32 minutes of good basketball against a team we weren't supposed to beat."

Both teams shot well, but Marshall County Central was 33-for-63 from the field (52 per cent), while Tri-County was limited to fewer shots, going 25-for-49 (51 per cent). The Nordics were 7-for-11 at the free throw line and the Rabbits were 3-for-7. Tri-County owned a 31-21 rebound edge, but the Rabbits also topped the turnover department by a considerable margin, 27-11.

Marshall County Central finishes its regular season schedule this week, hosting Warren Tuesday and visiting Hallock Friday.

Goodridge 70
Alvarado 67

Goodridge built an 18-point third quarter lead, but needed a clutch three-point play by Mike Scheef with just two seconds remaining to emerge with a 70-67 home court Polar Conference win over Alvarado Friday.

Despite the near-collapse, Goodridge coach Dan Brinkman was elated with the victory, improving the Huskies' record to 8-11 heading into a final regular season start at Argyle Friday.

"We had excellent play from a lot of people," he explained. "We had some balanced scoring, which is something we haven't been getting a lot of lately, and some people who don't normally score for us contributed offensively."

Goodridge had quarter leads of 17-13, 32-24 and 51-41 before being caught 67-67 with 17 seconds left in the game. The Indians tied it on a free throw, but missed the second attempt on the bonus situation and the Huskies controlled the rebound, leading to the game-winning play by Scheef at the end.

"We made some mistakes that cost us in the fourth quarter," noted Brinkman. "We probably became too conservative."

Scott Groven led the Huskies with 19 points, while Scheef got 14, Ross Parnow 12 and Jeff Kriel 11. Troy Boman scored a game-high 22 points for the Indians, with Nathan Wilke contributing 19.

Goodridge finished with some impressive statistics. The Huskies were 24-for-47 from the field (51 per cent) and 22-for-28 from the free throw line (79 per cent), while out-rebounding Alvarado 45-24. Groven grabbed 13 rebounds, with Scheef and Parnow getting nine each. The Indians, meanwhile, were 23-for-48 from the field (48 per cent) and 21-for-36 at the line (58 per cent).

Scheef and Kriel were two Goodridge players cited for their strong efforts by Brinkman.

Middle River 48
Warroad 45

Middle River shook off the effects of a poor first half showing Friday to beat Warroad 48-45 in North Border Conference action.

Visiting Warroad jumped out to a 16-9 first quarter lead and had a 23-14 advantage at halftime. Middle River, though, tied the game 28-28 on a last second shot to end the third quarter and then led throughout the final eight minutes.

It wasn't a good showing, explained Middle River coach Eldon Sparby, especially in the first half, but it was a win, and it boosted the Skippers' record to 8-10.

Tom Neumann scored 14 points and Kevin McKeever 11 for the winners. Chris Runnels had a game-high 16 for the Warriors.

Warroad out-scored Middle River from the field by 10 points, but the Skippers had a busy 18-for-32 night at the free throw line while the Warriors were 5-for-11.

Middle River will be at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Friday.

Program Wins Award

Minnesota's firearms safety training program for youth has received an Award of Merit from the International Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies.

Minnesota program was one of 56 in the United States and Canada evaluated by the Association during 1983.

In a letter that accompanied the award sent to Minnesota DNR Commissioner Joseph Alexander, Association Hunter Education Chairman Jack Merwin said, "You and your Hunter Education Coordinator, Conservation Officer Wayne Eller, are to be congratulated for the quality of your program and your continuing interest in improving it."

Firearms safety program in Minnesota is administered by the Department of Natural Resources, Division of Enforcement.

Sale Of Peat Leases

A sale of leases to remove peat from 2,632 acres of public land in southwestern St. Louis county will be held before the State Executive Council at 9 a.m. on March 7, the Department of Natural Resources announced.

Council is scheduled to meet at 500 Rice Street, St. Paul.

DNR officials said the peat lands are located in what is known as the Arlberg Bog, approximately eight miles north of Brookston.

Commissioner of Natural Resources, Box 45, Centennial Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155, will receive sealed bids and applications for a lease to remove peat (under the authority of Minnesota Statutes 1982, Section 92.50) up to the time of the Executive Council meeting.

Application and bid forms, bid envelopes, instructions on how bids are to be submitted, and copies of the prospectus may be obtained from the Department of Natural Resources, Division of Minerals Office at Box 45, Centennial Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155, or Box 567, Hibbing, MN 55746.

Each application and bid must be submitted in a bid envelope obtained from the Division of Minerals and each sealed bid envelope must be enclosed in another envelope and delivered to the Commissioner of Natural Resources, Attention: Division of Minerals, Box 45, Centennial Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155. Bids must be received by 9 a.m. on March 7, 1984 and no bids received after that time will be considered.

At the time specified for the lease sale, the Commissioner, together with the State Executive Council, will publicly open the bids and announce the amount of each bid separately. A lease will be awarded by the Commissioner, with approval of the State Executive Council, to the highest responsible bidder; but no bids will be accepted that do not equal or exceed the base royalty rates set forth in the prospectus.

Right is reserved to the state, through the Executive Council, to reject any or all bids. All bids not accepted will become void.

In the absence of satisfactorily demonstrated past technical and financial competence to perform under similar circumstances, the Commissioner may require bidders to submit information relating to their technical and financial competence to perform under the state's lease to remove peat. If the Commissioner makes such a request of a bidder, the information shall be submitted within 30 days after the date of the Commissioner's request.

Recreation Projects

State of Minnesota is receiving $1,300,403 in federal aid during fiscal year 1984 to assist in the acquisition and development of outdoor recreation projects, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

Source of the money is the Land and Water Conservation Fund (LAWCON) which derives the bulk of its revenue from a share of the fees received by the federal government from leasing tideland oil rights.

Projects are selected for funding based on priorities established under a state comprehensive outdoor recreation plan (SCORP) which is updated every five years by the Department of Natural Resources.

States are required to put up 50 per cent of the costs for outdoor recreation projects with LAWCON providing the remaining half.

One half of the LAWCON money received is used to assist municipalities and other local units of government with recreation projects. The other half is reserved for projects such as state parks, state forest campgrounds, recreational trails and other sites likely to attract users from throughout the state.

Timber Sales

Department of Natural Resources Division of Forestry supervised the sale of 450,000 cords of timber from state owned lands during 1983, producing $2,820,000 for the state treasury.

Evidence that Minnesota home owners are continuing to make significant use of fuel wood is shown by the 60,000 cords of fire wood cut from state lands last year. Fuel wood sales accounted for $180,000 in revenue to the treasury in 1983.

Harvest of trees for pulpwood accounted for approximately 340,000 cords. The balance of some 50,000 cords was cut for sawtimber, used in construction.

Pulpwood is largely comprised of popple (aspen) and most such wood is used in the manufacture of paper products. However, in recent years, a significant volume of aspen, formerly in little demand, is being used to produce waferboard (used frequently in the place of plywood) and hardboard.

There are currently four waferboard plants and three hardboard plants in operation in the state. Together they account for some 750,000 cords of aspen harvested annually from Minnesota public and privately owned forest lands. Forestry officials noted that the waferboard and hardboard industry is becoming increasingly important in Minnesota, and that demand for timber in 1983 would have been considerably less without the presence of such plants in the state.

Some 50,000 Minnesotans are employed in logging and in wood product industries, and approximately one fourth of the pulpwood used in Minnesota mills comes from state owned forest lands.

DNR forestry officials said that access to abundant quantities of timber on public lands, including state land, is important to wood product firms when considering expansion or locating new plants in Minnesota.

Hunter Education

Some 12,000 members of the Minnesota Waterfowl Association and the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association are being urged to enroll in the adult hunter education courses offered by the Department of Natural Resources, it was reported.

The two groups are among the largest sportsmen-conservation organizations in Minnesota and have played leading roles in assisting the DNR on waterfowl and deer management programs.

Adult hunter education courses are designed to inform sportsmen concerning the habits and needs of wildlife and to encourage compliance with laws and regulations. A primary goal is improved hunter-landowner relations.

LHS JV Girls Beat EGF 40-34 For 11-5 Mark

Lincoln high school girls junior varsity basketball team improved its season record to 11-5 Thursday with a 40-34 win over East Grand Forks.

It was 9-9 at the end of the first quarter. East Grand Forks went ahead 22-19 at halftime, but Thief River Falls went in front 32-28 at the end of the third quarter.

Brenda Russell scored 13 points for the winners.

LHS Freshmen Lose By 35-34 To Schroeder

Ahead 35-34, Thief River Falls missed the front end of two bonus free throw opportunities in the final minute of play Thursday and wound up a 36-35 loser to Schroeder junior high of Grand Forks in freshman basketball action.

Schroeder led 8-5 at the end of the first quarter, fell behind 17-16 at halftime, but went back on top 30-23 in the third quarter.

Brian Stark was the leading scorer for Thief River Falls with 9 points. Dean Ramsett scored 14 for Schroeder, also a winner by one point in the first meeting between the two teams, 40-39 here on Jan. 12.

Thief River Falls took a 4-12 record to Bemidji Friday.

Goodridge School Board

February 20, 1984
Regular Board Meeting
Ind. School Dist. No. 561
Goodridge, Minnesota
January 23, 1984.

Members present: Norma Hanson, Richard Parnow, Rodney Wayne, Don Langan, Supt., Paul Troska, Larry Vigen, Sharon Howard, Gordon Henrickson, Adm. Asst.

The meeting was called to order in the Home Economics room, Goodridge School, by Norma Hanson, Chairperson.

Minutes of the regular meeting of December 19, 1983, and the special meeting of January 4, 1984, were approved as mailed.

Richard Parnow moved, Paul Troska seconded, to accept the computer checks numbered 3999-4068, handpayable checks numbered 24314-24318, and extra payroll. Carried. Dr. Langan presented information on the copy machine lease program. (See report No. 3.11, 3.12, 3.13 attached to official board minutes.)

Revenue and expenditure report for all funds was presented. (See report No. 3.2 as attached to official board minutes.) Paul Troska moved, Sharon Howard seconded, to transfer $3,121 from the General Fund to the Food Service Fund. Carried.

Dr. Langan presented the district's investment report which showed a cash investment of $115,409.82 with a February 23, 1984, maturity date. Investment will earn 10.3 per cent interest. (See report No. 3.3 attached to the official board minutes.) Larry Vigen moved, Rodney Wayne seconded, to accept the district investment report as presented by Dr. Langan. Carried.

Dr. Langan and Mr. Henrickson reported that there was no evidence at this time to warrant putting the two kindergarten sections back into one section. Mr. Henrickson discussed the swimming program for 1984.

It was reported that stage drapes and other possible improvements would hopefully be completed this school year.

Sharon Howard presented four suggestions for future negotiations: 1. That the negotiations team be made up of three board members or two board members, and an outside negotiation professional. 2. The board should send a representative to all negotiation training sessions, plus any other board member able to attend, a report should be brought back to the board. 3. The board should set goals, and limitations for the negotiation team to go by. 4. "Detailed" reports should be brought back to the board monthly or more often if necessary. Any major decision made by either negotiation team should be reported to the board members, such as the teachers filing for a strike.

Three planning concepts were reviewed for possible implementation next school year. (See report No. 72 attached to the official board minutes.) The board directed the administration to pursue these concepts and bring a final proposal to the board for their review.

The Chairperson discussed the long range planning committee, and the transportation committee. Sharon Howard and Rodney Wayne were appointed to chair the committees. The transportation committee was directed to have their report and recommendations to the administration by March 15, and to the board in April. The long range planning committee was directed to have their recommendation to the administration by April 15, and to the board in May.

Dr. Langan was directed to bring a recommendation to the Board for vehicle use that did not meet the intent of currant, board vehicle use policy.

Paul Troska moved, Richard Parnow seconded, to accept the 1983-1984-1984-1985 Master Contract with the Goodridge Education Association. Carried.

Staff evaluation procedures were discussed. Rick Nelson's request for a one year leave of absence was tabled until the regular February board meeting.

Carol Eidelbes presented her concerns regarding the kindergarten aide position.

Administrative reports dealt with current enrollment by grade level, C.P.R. classes, demonstration site technology grant, and spinal cord injury protection program. It was determined to attempt to offer a C.P.R. class after basketball season using a local instructor.

Rodney Wayne moved, Sharon Howard seconded, to change policy No. 463.1 to reflect current board travel policy of $.20-mile for use of personal car on district business. Carried.

The next regular board meeting was set for Thursday, February 23, 1984, at 7:30 p.m.

Meeting adjourned at 10:47 p.m.

Films Can Be Checked From NWRL System

Northwest regional library has a number of films which may be checked out free of charge between February 22 and April 3.

Written requests should specify the film title, date of showing, alternate date and whether films will be placed in the return mail on the day of the showing or the day after. Borrowers are responsible for paying return postage.

Films available are listed below, along with their duration and a brief description: "After The Whale," 30 minutes, shows this misunderstood animal as playful, shy, browsing, defenseless, and on the verge of extinction; "The Amish," 28 minutes, examines the religious beliefs, closeness to nature and strong sense of community of this group; "Bill Cosby On Prejudice," 25 minutes, gives voice to almost every racial and ethnic prejudice ever expressed in this country; "The Bakery," 23 minutes, shows a group of bakers preparing bread from old world recipes just as their father did in the early 1900's; and "Fox Went Out On A Chilly Night," 8 minutes, children's film based on an old folk tale;

Also, "Georgia O'Keefe," 60 minutes, portrays the unique life of this artist, dating back to 1915; "Get It Together," 20 minutes, inspiring story of a paraplegic's meaningful life; "Heroes and Cowards," 32 minutes, a captain flees his ship and must live with his conscience; "If I Had a Million," 10 minutes, W.C. Fields as an instant millionaire on a rampage; "It Must Be Love, 'Cause I Feel So Dumb," 29 minutes, humorous and touching story of adolescent first love; "It's A Wonderful Life," 130 minutes (four reels), a man wishes he had never been born, and is given a chance to see what would have happened without him; and "It's So Nice To Have A Wolf Around The House," 12 minutes, a wolf with a sordid past tries to endear himself to an old man and his pets;

Also, "Legend Of John Henry," 11 minutes, American folktale with singing-narration by Roberta Flack; "Magic Rolling Board," 15 minutes, celebrates the joys and skills of skateboarding; "Mickey Mantle," 20 minutes, great moments in a baseball career reviewed: "Mickey Mouse: Early Years," 26 minutes three early cartoon classics from Walt Disney, (includes "The Band Concert," "Through The Mirror," and "Steamboat Willie"); "The Music Box," 30 minutes, one of Laurel and Hardy's best film comedies; "Paul Bunyan," 17 minutes, Disney presents a larger-than-life legend; "Peter And The Wolf," 15 minutes, Classic Disney animation with Prokofiev's music; "Puppets," 15 minutes, demonstrates the art of puppet making; "Shopping Bag Lady," 21 minutes, story of a teenage girl's encounter with a homeless old woman; and "Sounds of Silence" 25 minutes, Canadian travel film about skiing the high terrain in Manning provincial park;

Also, "Spartree," 15 minutes, depicts the life of a master lumberjack who risks his life climbing towering fir trees to top them; "Story of Solo," 20 minutes, studying the wild dogs of the Serengeti Plains, Jane Goodall finds an outcast pup which she nurses back to health and then watches him search for a new family; "Tires," 11 minutes, an innovative playground is constructed entirely from tires; "To Speak Or Not To Speak," 11 minutes, a grim cartoon about the concept of free speech and how it can be exploited and abused by government; "Toller," 26 minutes, captures the grace and genius of Canadian free-skating world champion Toller Cranston, both in skating and painting; "Up A Tree," 8 minutes, classic Disney cartoon with Chip and Dale and Donald Duck; and "Voices On The River," 22 minutes, evokes the eventful past and present of the Minnesota River;

Also, "Williamsburg Community Life," 13 minutes, shows the importance of the blacksmith in an eighteenth century colonial town; "After Dark," 15 minutes, deals with what fear is and how it can be handled; "Annie and The Old One," 14 minutes, story of a young Navaho girl and how she learns to accept death and understand the cycle of life; "Awful Tooth," 11 minutes, The Little Rascals decide that if they have all their teeth pulled, they'll get enough money from the tooth fairy to buy a new baseball glove; "Ballet With Edward Villella," 28 minutes, explains the theory of ballet; "Behind the Scenes at Peking Circus," 16 minutes, performers develop and polish their remarkable skills; and "Ben And Me," 21 minutes, Disney classic gives a mouse's view of American history;

OFFICE EDUCATION ASSOCIATION week was observed in Thief River Falls last week by the organization at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute. Mayor Bob Carlson spoke to the students and signed the proclamation declaring the special observance. The signing took place at a torch ceremony used to explain the organization's ideals of hope, faith, love, cooperation, knowledge, service, leadership, friendship and patriotism. Students pictured with Mayor Carlson are (left to right) Patti Pieper, Karol Altepeter, Kathy Thompson, Sherri Johnson, Stacy Kjellberg, Brenda Qualley, Paula Reese, Carol Nelson and Merrilee Lorenson.

Haagenson In 4-H Musical At Crookston

Loren Haagenson of the Silverton 4-H club is one of the participants in a "Northwest District Arts-In," which gathered 4-H teens from a 19-county area to rehearse and produce a show called "Broadway Bound," being presented at noon and 4 p.m. today during the Red River Valley winter shows in Crookston.

Northwest district arts-in provided 15 to 19 year olds with a chance to participate in three major areas: technical, publicity and performing. Technical people designed, painted and constructed sets with themes of New York City, a small town, and Oklahoma. Publicity people worked on designing programs and flyers, taping public service announcements for local radio stations, and taping a show for Crookston cable television. Performers learned songs and dances from Broadway musicals such as: "Oklahoma", "Fame", "New York, New York", and various others.

Show was written, choreographed and directed by Jim Meyer, Audubon; and Denise Hoff, Crookston. Production was made possible, in part, by a grant provided by the Northwest regional development commission through funding from the Minnesota state arts board and the state legislature, and the Minnesota state 4-H Foundation.

2 Crows Seen Southeast Of City Friday

Spring-like weather in this area for the past several weeks may have more than the natives fooled into believing that winter has run its course. Clayton Mathson, who farms southeast of Thief River Falls, reported seeing and hearing two crows on Friday.

"We see an occasional raven around during the winter," Mathson said, "but these were definitely crows." We hope the crows can identify spring as positively as Clayton identifies crows.

Hospice Sets Program Thur. On Relaxation

Training session on relaxation techniques and massage will be presented through the Northland community hospice program Thursday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the CNC chapel in Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls, according to Darla Twomey, director.

Chris Scaglione, student in the Ph D psychology program and the University of North Dakota, will be the instructor. Hospice volunteers are encouraged to attend.

ALCW Awards Being Offered For Students

Applications are now being taken for student achievement awards to be presented at the Thief River Falls conference convention of the American Lutheran Church Women (ALCW), to be held April 7, at Our Saviours Lutheran church in Warren.

Application may be made by any youth enrolling for the first time in an ALC college, junior college, Bible institute or school of nursing affiliated with an ALC college. Applicants will be judged on Christian character, financial need, church work, scholarship, and other special considerations if necessary. Awards (usually about $250) will be honored after the student has successfully completed the first semester of school and is enrolled for the second semester.

Application forms are available from any ALC pastor or from the education secretary of local ALCW organizations. All three parts of the application forms should be returned to: Mrs. Peter Aune, Gatzke, MN. 56724; and should be postmarked no later than March 30.

American Art Is Subject Of 6th In Series

Sixth session in the art series to be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday, February 23, in the Northwest regional library meeting room will feature a trio of films on American art.

Included in this trio is "The American Vision," "A Nation of Painters," and "Catlin". The art series is free, open to the public and refreshments will be served.

In "The American Vision," pictures from the National Gallery of Art give a broad view of American painting from pre-revolutionary days to the beginning of the twentieth century.

During the period of the revolution and the civil war, America's untrained artists expressed an optimism and exuberance that reflected national confidence in the future of the United States. "A Nation of Painters" presents a pictorial dairy of men and women who turned capable hands to all sorts of tasks.

"Catlin", of course, deals with the great George Catlin, one of the first American artists to document the customs and drama of Indian life. In addition to Indian portraits, Catlin's paintings include scenes of Indian camp life, buffalo hunts, war parties, feasts and ritual ceremonies, some of which had never before been witnessed by a white man.

Films total duration is approximately 50 minutes, after which Melvine Dagg will act as commentator and lead audience discussion.

These films were obtained through the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. The Art Series was made possible through co-sponsorship of Northwest regional library, the Thief River Falls community arts council, Zehlians, and the American association of university women.

Cosmetology Students Hold Competition

Students in the second trimester of study at the Thief River Falls AVTI cosmetology department competed in a contest involving summer trend styles and high style designs of hairstyling recently.

Carol Narlock of Warren placed first in the trend styles which reflect current styles in vogue and coordination with clothing fashions. Second place went to Julie Ingalls of Clearbrook and third to Darlene Ignaszewski of Stephen.

Darci Johnson of Roseau won the high style division with Robyn Juelson of Fertile in second place and Melinda Trudeau of Mentor in third. Judges for the contest were Mary Johnson, president of the cosmetology advisory board, and Reinette Leas, past president of the board.

Contests add interest and enthusiasm to the basic knowledge being gained and techniques learned in the cosmetology department, according to Maxine Mottram, instructor. They also serve as preparation for those interested in entering contests on a professional level.

Talent Night In Greenbush

Gospel talent night will be held at 8 p.m. Saturday, February 25, at the Greenbush community center, as a means of creating interest in a Christian family center.

Music, skit and reading performers are needed. Persons of all ages are welcome to attend. Refreshments will be served and a free-will offering taken. Further information may be obtained by calling 782-2165, 782-2584 or 782-2796.

Farm Program For '84 Offers Cost-Shares

Farm program for 1984 contains some different ways to handle diverted crop acres, according to Pennington SWCD conservationist Allan Gustafson.

A 90 per cent cost-share program is offered to farmers for either seeding these acres to grass or planting them to trees, he said. The hay must be left for a minimum five years after the year of seeding, and the trees for 10 years. Another restriction is that the soil type on the diverted acre field must be either capability class IIIe or IVs (which are very sandy textured).

Intent of the program is to take marginal land out of production and put it in long-term conservation use, Gustafson said.

Soils maps for every farm in Pennington county are available at the soil conservation service office at 1305 Dale Street, a block west of highway 59 south in Thief River Falls. Deadline for sign-up coincides with the '84 farm program sign-up.

Stop by the soil conservation service or ASCS office for more details.

Women With Problems Are Film Subject

Best-selling author Joyce Landorf will be featured in a new film series to be presented at 7:30 p.m. each Tuesday, for six weeks, starting February 28, in the Seventh-day Adventist school gymnasium in Thief River Falls.

Titled "His Stubborn Love," the series addresses problems common to many women who are trying to balance marriage, career, children and work, and suffering from conflicting demands on their time and identities. First four of the hour-long films are especially suited for women, while the last two are designed for married couples. Film titles are: "Change Points", "You Irregular Person", "Mourning Song", "God's Waiting Room", "His Stubborn Love", and "Tough and Tender."

I-R Committee Urges Caucus Attendance

Special committee to promote citizen involvement in the March 20 precinct caucuses of the Independent-Republican party has been formed with Charles Oakes as chairman and Maryel Anderson, Jean Heinrichs, Gladys Barron and Yvonne Bredeson as members.

"The precinct caucus offers an opportunity for renewed grassroots participation in the political process," Oakes said. "Our political process has given great things to our country, but it cannot function without strong input at the precinct level. Important decisions on candidates and issues begin at this level and I urge all citizens to attend."

4-H Speaking Contest Held In Pennington

Nine Pennington county 4-H'ers participated in three divisions for the 1984 4-H public speaking contest, held February 4 at the Pennington county courthouse.

Participants in the first division, ages 9 to 11, spoke on the topic, "How Can I Help My Community?" Chris Larson, City View 4-H; Mike Jorde, Steiner; Heather Olson, Kratka; and Jeny Stumpf, Happy Acres; gave presentations, with Stumpf as finalist in this division.

Melissa Rausch and Jenny Ose of the Steiner 4-H club entered the second division for ages 12-14, speaking on the topic "Why I Like Living in the USA." Ose won, earning the chance to enter district competition at the Red River Valley winter shows.

"Prejudice" was the topic of the third division for ages 15-19. Doretta Mosloff, Sanders 4-H; Coreen Larson, City View; and Kim Carlson, Satellite, presented their speeches, with Larson earning the chance to advance to district competition.

4-H public speaking program is part of the youth program of the University of Minnesota extension service.

January Milk Production In State Climbs

January milk production totaled 940 million pounds for Minnesota, up two per cent from the 296 million pounds for January of 1983. Production per cow averaged 1,040 pounds, unchanged from a year earlier. Total milk cows averaged 904,000 head, up 14,000 since last year.

Revised 1983 milk production was 10,913 million pounds, six per cent above 1982.

Milk production nationally during January of 1984 totaled 11.5 billion pounds, about the same as January 1983. January production per cow averaged 1,039 pounds, three pounds more than a year earlier. Total milk cows averaged 11.1 million head, only slightly lower than a year earlier. U.S. milk production during 1983 totaled a record high 140.0 billion pounds.

Wisconsin remained the leading milk producer in 1983 with 23.8 billion pounds, followed by California, 14.8 billion; New York, 11.7 billion; Minnesota, 10.9 billion; and Pennsylvania, 9.5 billion pounds. These five states produce over one-half of the U.S. output.

INFORMATION ABOUT OUR INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT ACCOUNTS

With an IRA, you can save up to $2,000 annually, with all taxes on principal and interest deferred until retirement. All this is possible even though you have a pension at the place where you are employed.

An IRA is a wonderful way to accumulate a reserve fast and something too good to pass up. And remember, all IRA's are insured up to $100,000 by an agency of the U.S. Government.

Lt. Gov. Speaks In TRF Monday

Minnesota Lt. Gov. Marlene Johnson discussed her plans for the Minnesota Alliance for Job Creation (MAJC) Monday evening at a dinner conducted in her honor by Project Heritage Design of Thief River Falls. The local company coordinates the design, sewing and sales of handmade quilts.

Lt. Gov. Johnson was hosted here because of her interest in the project and her chairmanship of the governor's council on rural development which funded the local company.

Project Heritage Design now has about 35 women employed in construction of quilts, wall hangings and pillows and a nationwide marketing system is being developed. Products presently are being sold through Gabbert's and Dayton's in Minneapolis. Lt. Gov. Johnson was presented with a quilted wall hanging by Nancy Troska of Goodridge, who had sewn the item under the program.

"Currently a wealth of people and programs are available to assist Minnesota's entrepreneurs," Johnson told the group Monday evening. "However, what is sometimes lacking is a ready link between the entrepreneur and the resources he or she needs.

"The Minnesota Alliance for Job Creation will be a network of communities committed to the development of new enterprises within their cities and towns. Communities will be encouraged to form their own 'cooperation offices', patterned after the Metropolitan Economic Development association, Minnesota Cooperation office and the St. Paul Homegrown Economy project."

Johnson said the first phase of the program will involve her traveling to communities throughout the state in February and March to discuss the project and identify communities interested in participating. She said she will lead an effort to deliver funds and technical expertise to support the community cooperation office efforts.

Horse Show Is Set Fri.-Sun. In Crookston

Red River Valley winter horse show will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday during the last three days of the annual winter shows in Crookston.

Activities will begin Friday morning with 4-H and FFA horse judging teams from Minnesota, North Dakota and Canada competing. Afternoon activities will include a popular horse pull competition, followed by an open horse show in the evening.

Saturday and Sunday events will include halter, speed and performance classes for quarter horses and appaloosas. About 1,200 entries are expected, with about 300 horses from Texas, Iowa, South Dakota, Manitoba, Ontario, Wisconsin, North Dakota and Minnesota. Other scheduled events include several performances by the Torgerson six-horse Percheron hitch team, honoring of the outstanding horseman and horsewoman of the Red River Valley on Saturday night, and announcement of the winners of a horse-drawing contest which drew over 1,077 entries from elementary schools in North Dakota and Minnesota.

Parade of stallions will be held on Saturday evening, with a select sire service auction scheduled for Sunday noon.

Weekend Race Planners Say Track Will Be Fast

With the CCC World Series snowmobile race scheduled for Thief River Falls this weekend, quite a number of people are wishing that the weather was not quite so nice.

However, race officials expressed confidence that the "Grand Finale" would indeed by grand, and fans would not be disappointed. "Everything indicates that is this is going to be a very fast, and very exciting race," said Chairman Don Grabanski. "Jerry (Erickson) has been working on the track down on the river, and he assures me it's going to be a good one."

Erickson worked on the track until late Monday night, and again on Tuesday, removing snow from the ice where the machines will run, and building banked curves and jumps, using a front-end loader donated by Hydra-Mac Inc. "I'm mostly concerned about the safety of the drivers and spectators," he said, "because this is going to be an exciting race no matter what the conditions are on the track." Jerry noted that because of the warm weather and rain during the last week, the snow on top of the river ice is extremely wet. "These banks are going to be really hard after they freeze," he said, "so I don't mind if we get some more warm weather to kind of smooth things out a little."

"I would like to get a good cold spell for about a day before the race though," he added. "A good hard track really allows the sleds to move!"

Erickson should have a good understanding of the sport. He has been a competitor in all nine of the preliminary races which led up to the Grand Finale in Thief River Falls. Drivers in the pro classes have been accumulating points for the opportunity to compete in this race. Races were held December 3 and 4 in Hill City; December 26 at Forest Lake; January 1 at Coon Rapids; January 7 in Cable, WI.; January 14 at Garrison; January 15 at Mille Lacs Lake; February 5 at Mankato; February 11 at Center City; and February 18

FIRST PRODUCTION for Independent Machine Service at its Thief River Falls plant began Tuesday. Co-owner Darrell Magner is shown adjusting one of the machines used in the business which prints and cuts self-adhesive labels for price-marking equipment. The company recently moved its production equipment to Thief River Falls from Colorado while maintaining a sales office in that state. The equipment is located in the former Puetz Cabinet Shop building in the industrial park along the airport road on the south edge of Thief River Falls. Independent Machine Service has purchased the building and Mr. and Mrs. Magner and their two daughters are moving here. Both are former residents of the Thief River Falls community.

Community Ed Advisory Group Hears Requests

Thief River Falls community education advisory committee Tuesday morning requested a specific proposal on Lincoln high school band materials and took under advisement a request for funding of a coordinator for gifted and talented students in local elementary schools.

Request for support of needed band items such as flags, identification labels and uniform repair was presented by Ms. Jean Heinrichs, president of the Thief River Falls band boosters organization. She was asked to prepare a request for specific needs with attendant costs for each and to present that request at the March meeting of the committee.

Diane Krepp presented a request for $20,000 to fund hiring of a coordinator for a gifted and talented program in the elementary schools. The committee asked questions following Mrs. Krepp's presentation, then took it under advisement and appointed a committee consisting of Madalyn Novellino, Marvin Lundin and Supt. Bob Block to review the request and the role of the community education advisory committee.

Membership sub-committee report recommended that the advisory committee consist of not less than 15 nor more than 20 members, that membership be on an annual basis and that specified areas of public interest be represented by committee members. In discussion it was decided that certain interest areas should be specifically represented on the committee.

Terry Lemer reported that the response to the community education advisory committee survey had been quite low and that telephone follow-up was being done to obtain as large a return as possible. He said a 60 per cent return that had been anticipated appeared to be totally unattainable and that the committee would likely have to make do with the lesser response.

Next meeting of the advisory committee was set for Tuesday, March 27, at 7 a.m. in the school district service center board room.

Joan Growe & Sen. Peterson Here Friday

Joan Growe, Minnesota secretary of state and announced candidate for the U.S. Sanate, will be in Thief River Falls Friday from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Accompanying her will be Sen. Collin Peterson of Detroit Lakes, announced candidate for U.S. Congress from the Seventh district.

Dinner at 6:30 at Lon's restaurant will be ordered from the menu at individual expense of those attending. Reservations should be made by calling 681-5888 or 681-7148 before 3 p.m. Friday. All interested persons are encouraged to attend the event which is scheduled to be completed by 9:30 p.m.

Attempted Murder Case Is On Spring Term Of Court

Twenty-two cases — 11 each on the civil and criminal calendar — are scheduled for trial at the spring session of Pennington county district court in Thief River Falls. Jurors are to report March 13 at 9:30 a.m. and Judge Russell A. Anderson of Crookston will be presiding.

Major interest in the court session will center on the case of Myles Arthur Koop, charged with one count of attempted first degree murder, one count of aggravated first degree assault, one count of aggravated second degree assault and one count of second degree assault. The case results from an alleged attack by Koop upon his former wife and others with a tire iron.

State of Minnesota vs. Wayne Edgar Peterson, charged with driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicants;

State of Minnesota vs. Rodney Nissen, charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle;

State of Minnesota vs. Tron Ervin Olson, charged with fleeing a police officer;

State of Minnesota vs. Patricia Marie Lashaway and Rodney A. Lashaway, separate cases involving charges of using fraud in obtaining credit;

State of Minnesota vs. Buddie Alan Holmgren, charged with fleeing a police officer, aggravated driving while under the influence of intoxicants and DWI as a gross misdemeanor;

State of Minnesota vs. Alfred Christopher Bellerud, charged with fourth degree criminal sexual conduct;

State of Minnesota vs. Finn Erik Jax, gross misdemeanor of operating a motor vehicle while having an alcohol concentration in excess of .10 per cent;

State of Minnesota vs. Bernard Orden Uglem, charged with aggravated DWI and gross misdemeanor DWI; and

Farmers Protest FmHA's Handling Of Loan Funds

Convinced that the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) offices in this area are not processing loans to the extent of their authority, a number of area farmers associated with the Northwestern Minnesota Emergency Action committee staged a protest at the FmHA office area in Thief River Falls today.

Willard Brunelle of Red Lake Falls, chairman of the committee, said the decision to stage the protest was made about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and the response was generated through a few hurried telephone calls. A number of farm tractors, trucks and pickups were driven to the FmHA office site on Dale street and tractors were used to form a ring around the entrance area with only one opening left to permit access.

No attempt was made by the farmers to prevent employees or others from entering or leaving the building which also houses offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service and Pennington Soil and Water Conservation district. Francis J. (Butch) Koehmstedt, manager of the FmHA office, said that all employees are going about their normal duties with the exception of one person absent due to illness.

Shortly before 10:30 a.m., Koehmstedt was asked by Roger Tunberg, president of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce, to appear with him outside the office for the reading of a prepared statement from the organization. Koehmstedt readily complied with the request and remained outside for a time following the reading to listen to comments from farmers.

The statement read by Tunberg is as follows: "We, the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce, representing the Thief River Falls business community, support our area farmers. Their disaster situation for the past five years has put our businesses in jeopardy also. We need to know that all available programs through FmHA are being distributed without discrimination. We need to know that our farmers' lengthy paperwork will be processed in an orderly and timely way. It is imperative that a 4-15-84 deadline be placed on processing and approval of our farmers' applications for spring operating capital."

Koehmstedt replied that some additional assistance is being received to assist in processing of loan applications and that he expected the April 15 deadline should be met on loans that qualify.

Speaking for the protesting farmers, Brunelle said there is deep concern that loans are not being processed as they should be in the four FmHA offices located in Thief River Falls, Warren, Crookston and McIntosh. He said a task force from the federal FmHA office investigating the local area situation found that there were 729 loan applications dating back to 1982 as yet unprocessed in the Thief River Falls and Warren offices. He did not know the amount of money the loan requests represented.

Brunelle also said the task force agreed with contentions by area farmers that there was no consistency in handling of loan applications among the four offices in question and among personnel within each of the offices. The task force made its report to the national director, Charles Schuman, in Washington, D.C.

"That's why today was set as the date for our protest," Brunelle said. "Schuman is making his decision in Washington today. We know that the task force report is in support of our position and we want the national director to take positive action to assist the farmers of this area."

Brunelle said that limited resource loans should be available to a large number of people in the area at 5½ per cent interest with a 40-year repayment period. To the best of his knowledge, he said, he has been the only person to obtain such a loan. It was received with the assistance of the state, he said, reportedly to demonstrate eligibility but he believes it was an effort to try to quiet one of the loudest voices of protest. If so, it didn't work.

In addition to low interest loans and consistency in administering the loan requests, Brunelle said his group is calling for the removal of Russ Bjorhus, state FmHA director; J. P. W. Friederichs, district director; and Paul Dornfeld, assistant district director.

No similar demonstrations were conducted at the Warren, Crookston or McIntosh offices of the FmHA, Brunelle said. He emphasized that the local protest was not directed

WILLARD BRUNELLE of Red Lake Falls, chairman of the Northwest Minnesota Emergency Action committee, was interviewed extensively today regarding the farmer protest at the local FmHA office. He complained of backlog of loan applications, failure of the FmHA to use its authority and funding to provide needed financial assistance to farmers, inconsistency in handling farm loan applications among four FmHA offices in the area. He also called for removal from office of the state FmHA director, district director and assistant district director.

Jane Fisher-Lee Furuseth Vows Spoken at Deer River

Jane Fisher and Lee Furuseth, both of International Falls, exchanged marriage vows at 4:00 p.m., on December 31, at Camp Hiawatha chapel at Deer River.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Fisher, rural Sebeka and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Furuseth, Thief River Falls.

Rev. William Beyer officiated at the double ring ceremony. His wife served as pianist. During the ceremony, Mary Heimdal sang "O Holy Night," Tracy Evenrud sang "Song of Ruth", and Bart Appleton sang "A Man Called Jesus." All are friends of the couple. Also singing during the ceremony were the groom's brother, David Furuseth, who sang "The Lord's Prayer," and the groom, who sang "I Love You with the Love of the Lord."

Pine bough wreath and candle-sconces bordered the aisle; and poinsettias surrounded the altar as did red and white banners made by the bride and groom.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a long-sleeved, floor-length gown of bridal sheer with triple-tiered lace ruffles edging the skirt and train. Detailed satin stitching complemented the high neckline and was repeated on the wide lace cuffs. The bodice and cuffs were secured by pearl buttons. Her headpiece was a wreath of Christmas greenery, holly with berries and babies' breath, accented in back by white satin ribbons cascading to the waist. She carried a white muff topped by a cascade of Christmas greenery, red roses and red and white asters and carnations.

Attending the bride as personal attendants were Michelle Holden of Backus and Penni Broekemeier of Thief River Falls.

Maid of honor was Deb Haider, Missoula, Mont., a friend of the bride. Bridesmaids were Tracy Evenrud, Moorhead, Ann Dietchman, Devils Lake, N.D., and Denise Fink, Backus, all friends of the bride. All wore red taffeta ankle-length gowns styled with long fitted sleeves, high collars and V-shaped ruffles on the bodice. In their hair, they wore a cluster of holly. Their bouquets of Christmas greenery were interspersed with red and white carnations, asters and babies' breath.

Flower girls were Carrie Kosobucki and Tammy King of Indus, friends of the couple. They wore red ankle-length gingham gowns topped with white pinafores. The rings were carried by Aaron Furuseth, Northome,, a nephew of the groom.

Best man was Clark Nelson, Thief River Falls, a friend of the groom. Bart Appleton, Deer River, a friend of the couple; David Fisher, Minneapolis, a brother of the bride, and Terry Maidment, Thief River Falls, a friend of the groom, were groomsmen. Serving as ushers were Tom King and Leon Ditsch of Indus, friends of the couple. All wore charcoal gray tuxedos.

A reception followed at the Holiday Inn in Grand Rapids. Michelle Holden and Marlys Furuseth cut and served the three tiered wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with poinsettias, doves and white ribbons. At the coffee service were Mary Furuseth and Arlene Furuseth. Kathy Furuseth served the punch. Aleta Furuseth was at the guest book, and groom's nieces and nephews were at the gift table.

Following a wedding trip to the Indianhead Ski resort in Michigan, the couple is at home in International Falls, Rt. 8, box 452. The bride is a graduate of Backus high school and North Dakota State university, Fargo. She is employed by the Indus school at Birchdale as home economics teacher. The groom is a graduate of Lincoln high school, Thief River Falls, and Moorhead State University. He is a Title I teacher in the Indus school at Birchdale. Photo, Enstrom Studio at Bovey.

Viking Town And Country Club Holds Meeting

Viking Town and Country garden club monthly meeting was held February 1 at the home of Joyce Erickson.

Members present were Joyce Kron, Nina Halvorson, Hazel Olson, Elizabeth Thompson, Clarice Rooker, Bernyce Grandstrand and Joyce Erickson.

Guests were Amy Hanson, Clarissa Malberg and Geneva Overum.

President Joyce Kron presided at the meeting. Members responded to roll call by naming the most attractive flower or shrub seen on trips or drives during the past year. Correspondence was read and reports were given by secretary Nina Halvorson, treasurer Hazel Olson, and good cheer chairman Elizabeth Thompson. Mrs. Kron also encouraged everyone to attend the Horticultural seminar at the Crookston Winter shows.

Country Store, a feature of the 13th district workshops, was discussed at length. Several ideas to renew or create interest were presented.

The year's program books were reviewed and the program book covers were discussed. Each member will be designing and making their own covers which will be judged at the next meeting by impartial judges, who are not members of the club.

The program was presented by Geneva Overum, who showed slides and told of her various travels. Slides featured landscapes, horticulture and culture.

Lunch was served by Joyce Erickson.

The next meeting of the club will be held March 7 at 1:00 p.m., at the Rex Cafe with Joyce Kron in charge. The event will mark the 25th anniversary of the club.

Two Happy Homemaker Events Noted

Members of the Happy Homemakers club participated in two activities during the month of February. The first event was the club's regular meeting held at the Eula Kvikstad home with seven members present.

Those attending were Signe Miller, Judy Kjensrud, Ethel Aase, Inga Hendrickson, Elvera Samuelson, Regina Gustafson and Mrs. Kvikstad. They read the Homemakers creed in unison and also answered roll call by naming their favorite flower.

Signe Miller presided at the meeting and Ethel Aase and Judy Kjensrud led the lesson, "Selection and identification of trees in Northwestern Minnesota." During the social hour, members displayed and worked on needle craft items. Lunch was served by Mrs. Kvikstad.

The second event in which the club members were envolved was the Achievement dinner on February 9 at 6:30 p.m., at the American Legion club.

Those attending were Eula Kvikstad, Tillie Hedeen, Leona Hanson, Ann Hanson, Ethel Aase, Signe Miller, Judy Kjensrud, Regina Gustafson and Elvera Samuelson, who was accompanied by her daughter Eileen Hoeffer, a member of the This and That club.

The next meeting of the Happy Homemakers club will be held March 6 at the Ethel Aase home.

Odd Fellow-Rebekah Lodges to Meet Thurs.

Regular meetings of the Odd Fellow and Rebekah lodges will be held Thursday at 8:00 p.m., at the Odd Fellows hall.

A joint lunch and social hour will follow the separate meetings.

Members of both lodges are encouraged to attend.

Grygla Jaycee Woman Receives State Key Award

Mrs. Susan Schuler of Grygla was the recipient of the Key Women Award given February 11, at the Jaycee Women's state convention held in conjunction with the 1984 TOYM Jaycee meeting at Radisson South in Bloomington.

The Key Women Award, begun in 1975, is the highest award given by the organization. It is parallel to the distinguished JCI Senatorship in the men's organization.

Mrs. Schuler has been active in the Grygla-Gatzke chapter for five years. She implemented the chapter's yearly senior tea, organized the first annual Easter egg hunt and continually organizes style shows for the Mother and Daughter banquets. She has certified yearly in leadership, time, personal and communications dynamics series. She received the Spokette and Sparkette in her first year as a Jaycee woman, and the Sparkette for the last four years.

In 1981-82, she was district director serving 12 towns in Northern Minnesota, the closest 40 miles away, and the furthest 100 miles. At the end of the year, she received the state first place gold key award, and was recognized by Region V, covering six states, and by the National organization.

From 1982-83, she was regional director assisting four districts and 28 towns. For her affiliations with six chapters, she was again named the Gold Key winner in the State and received national honors for services rendered. That year, she signed up nine members in her chapter and many others in the other chapters served. For her assistance to the northern chapters, she received the Presidential Award of Excellence.

In working with the American Brittle Bones Foundation, based out of Philadelphia, she was innovative in getting the society elected as a two-year priority project in the state of Minnesota. Currently, she is State Programming manager, has organized a statewide Olympiad money raiser for the foundation with over $6,000 raised, has designed a label and logo for the Sather Candy company for the Valentine's candy sales in which over $3,000 was raised for the foundation, has worked in assisting the foundation obtaining research for Osteogenesis Imperfecta and Osteoporis in United States, and originated the Theme "O. I. Have a Heart," now nationally used by the foundation.

Mrs. Schuler and her husband Kim, farm near Grygla. They have three daughters, six, five, and two years old.

Mrs. Schuler's name was submitted for the award by the Grygla-Gatzke Jaycee Women.

Trees Studied At Chat-Chew Club Meeting

"Selection and identification of Trees in Northwestern Minnesota," was the topic discussed at the Chat and Chew Homemakers club meeting held February 14 at the Hilda Wennberg home.

Presenting the topic was Carol Narverud. She emphasized the use of trees subitable in modifying home energy consumption, shade trees for Northwestern Minnesota, and methods of protecting trees and shrubs from winter and animal damage.

President Vi Sullivan opened the meeting with the reading of the new Homemakers creed. The secretary's report was given by Geneva Overum. Also read was the schedule of events at the Red River Winter shows, set for February 17-23 at Crookston. Pauline Aubol reported on the meeting she and Wanda Murphy attended at Fertile.

Report was also given on the County Homemakers dinner held at the American Legion club with 116 in attendance. The theme of the dinner and program was "Have a Heart for Valentine's day."

Eight members attended the meeting. Unable to be present were Camille DuChamp, Betty Feragen and Marian Williams. Lunch served by the hostess was in the Valentine theme.

The next meeting of the Chat and Chew homemakers club will be held March 13 at the home of Carol Narverud.

Book On Death Is Reviewed At Zehlian Meeting

"A Death in the Family," by James Agee, was the book discussed at the Zehlian Women's club meeting held February 15 at the Cookie Ault home.

Reporting on the book and leading the discussion which followed was Kathryn Steffens, a local mortician, who is serving her internship at a funeral home in Thief River Falls. Prior to receiving her degree in mortuary science at the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Miss Steffens received her BA degree in psychology at the University of Wisconsin and was employed as a social worker, dealing with death and dying.

President Margaret Saetre presided at the meeting and encouraged the members to attend the reception at the Best Western honoring Lt. Gov. Marlene Johnson. It was noted that the reception was sponsored by Heritage Design, Inc.

The Lincoln high school Wind Ensemble trip to Norway was discussed. Members voted to help support the trip by collecting dimes or any loose change at the next four meetings.

Growing Roses Is Deer Park Study Theme

"Growing Roses," the Deer Park Garden club's study theme for 1984, was the topic discussed at the recent meeting of the club held at the Senior Center in Goodridge. Lauretta Stucy led the study by giving the slide presentation, "Culture of Garden Roses."

To correspond with the topic, members will be selecting and growing a rose in their own gardens. Roll call was answered by giving tips on good management practices. The garden quiz, relating to roses, was led by president Helen Chervestad.

Correspondence included a letter from Polly Prunuske, extension agent instructor, and from the District executive board regarding the Country Store, a feature of the district workshops. Following a discussion, members voted in favor of a $10 assessment fee in place of the Country Store. Teddy Anderson was instructed to notify the board regarding the club's decision.

Lois Swanson suggested that the club prepare an agenda for the District Fall workshop to be held in September in Goodridge. The agenda is to be presented at the District Spring workshop set for March 31 at Roseau. Mrs. Swanson's suggestion was accepted by the members.

The merit award procedure was discussed and the members decided that the executive board should be in charge.

Congratulations were extended to club members Theodora Anderson, for her work with the Historical society, and Mrs. Harry Hanson, who was chosen as 1984 Valley Homemaker.

Grief Support Group To Hear Kathryn Steffens

Regular meeting of the Thief River Falls Grief Support group will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., at the Fireside Room at the United Methodist church.

Guest speaker will be Kathryn Steffens, a licensed mortician, who is serving her internship at a local funeral home. She received her BA degree in psychology from the University of Wisconsin at Madison, and her BS degree in mortuary science from the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis. Miss Steffens topic will be "Grief, its stages and resolutions."

The meeting is open to the public, regardless of sex, age, religion or race. There are no memberships or dues. Anyone in a grief situation, regardless of when the death occurred, may attend.

This is a self-help group, led by local laymen with grief experiences, who, in an effort to aid others, are willing to share their methods of coping.

League Of MN Cities Expects Challenges

Cities' response to increased centralization and direction of economic and fiscal policies at both the state and federal level presents a major challenge ahead for 1984. That observation was made by the League of Minnesota Cities, with a membership totaling nearly 750 of the state's 855 cities.

Overall, the toll taken by the removal or reduction of government urban programs and revenues from cities has been the emergence of greater competitiveness among cities themselves, the league reports.

The league notes this development in projecting trends ahead for cities in 1984. Greater competition among cities for state revenues, in particular, will emerge as basic fact of political life for the league and for cities themselves.

"There is no denying the reality that efforts by both the federal and state government to direct and control both fiscal and economic policies that impact on cities is having, and will continue to have, a major affect on the way cities work together to achieve their interests," said Donald Slater, executive director of the league.

Slater observed the following prospects for cities in the year ahead:

— More cities are looking to attract business and industry to their community with an awareness of the need to propose competitive advantages over other cities seeking similar development;

— Greater concern is developing over the unrestricted growth of urban townships and the resulting urbanization of areas just beyond city boundaries;

— The realization that cities need to do more for themselves will lead to more efforts to self-insure, with programs such as the league's insurance trust (LMCIT) becoming increasingly attractive as a pooled self-insurance option for cities;

— Cities will increase their use of alternative revenue sources, connection and availability charges, user fees and special taxing districts to supplement more traditional revenue sources such as property taxes and assessments;

— Cities will increasingly look into the possibility of permitting gambling in connection with the operation of municipal liquor stores.

"Another major challenge ahead for cities will be to work with the governor and the state legislature to define the appropriate roles of cities and townships and to address the need for improved annexation procedures to permit cities to expand to meet development needs," said Mayor Robert Anderson of International Falls. Anderson serves as president of the League of Minnesota Cities and is actively concerned about the growing confusion over the division of power and responsibility between the two levels of government.

"A re-examination of this entire area will be a major concern for the league and for many cities throughout the state," Anderson emphasized. "Concerns over planned development and the management of our resources will make this issue a priority in the next year."

Anderson explained that the roles of cities and townships have become blurred in recent years, and the problem of "scattered urbanization" is seen as an issue that will need to be addressed by the legislature.

On the federal level, recent and growing efforts to limit cities' use of financing tools for economic development, especially the issuing of industrial development bonds (IDBs), also will present serious challenges for cities in 1984, said Anderson.

Congress is expected to approve legislation that would limit the volume of IDBs that could be issued by cities and, further, would assign a portion of the total for future years to the state.

"There is certainly a trend toward centralization and direction of economic development affecting cities in this latest congressional proposal," Anderson said. "The depature from current practice in which local elected officials are responsible for such decisions (approval of industrial development bond issues) is of great concern, especially here in Minnesota, where cities have worked with the legislature to assure that cities retain authority over such fundamental decisions affecting their own development and the health of the local economy."

LMC has taken the lead in opposing many of the recent IDB restrictions posed in the recent federal tax proposal negotiations and is urging the Minnesota congressional delegation to assist cities in their efforts to maintain control over these development tools.

Grade-Crossing Safety Reduces Accident Toll

Statewide, an average of 270 train-car crashes occurred in each of the past five years (1978 to 1982) and an average of 20 persons a year died from those crashes. Complete figures are not yet in for 1983 but preliminary statistics show 11 fatal accidents involving 15 deaths. There were 123 crashes in just 10 months involving 32 injuries. The period of highest incidence is during the winter months from November through February.

What can be done about the problem? That's the question being addressed by "Operation Lifesaver," a national grade-crossing safety program. In Minnesota the program is spearheaded by the Minnesota safety council and the Minnesota railroads association.

Operation lifesaver began in Idaho (where, at the end of the first year, grade-crossing deaths were down 39 per cent) and was adapted for use in Nebraska (where fatalities dropped 46 per cent). Key to success in each state where operation lifesaver is working has been the cooperation of safety councils, government, industry, the railroads, news media and the general public.

In Minnesota, a governor's grade-crossing safety committee was formed in the 1970s; from that committee emerged the operation lifesaver organization. Carol Bufton, MSC's general manager, is state coordinator.

Components of the Minnesota operation lifesaver program are: a speakers bureau; posters and pamphlets; a portable table-top display available for community gatherings, and films, filmstrips, slides and cassettes available for loan.

All materials are free from the Minnesota safety council through a grant from the Minnesota railroads association. To order, write to the Minnesota Safety Council, Inc., 555 Wabasha Street, Suite 102, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR Marlene Johnson was a special guest of Project Heritage Design of Thief River Falls at a reception, dinner and program Monday evening at the Best Western Inn of Thief River Falls. She praised the state's entrepreneurs and discussed her idea for a cooperative organization known as Minnesota Alliance for Job Creation. The alliance will be a network of communities in the state committed to the development of new enterprises.

Insulation Can Save Heat And Money

Most homes built today have fully insulated walls to limit the amount of heat that can escape through them. But homes built before 1960 are likely to have little or no insulation in the walls, and that means the furnace or heating system works extra hard to keep you warm each winter. And as you know, that can be expensive.

Wall insulation is measured in R values. A wall with no insulation has an R value of R-4, since the materials and air space between the interior and exterior walls do keep some heat from escaping. A standard 2"x4" wall in a typical, newly built Minnesota home insulated with fiberglass batts has an R value of about R-14.

Adding insulation to your home can mean substantial savings in energy costs. By insulating uninsulated walls, you can reduce the amount of heat (and dollars) lost through those walls by almost 70 per cent. By adding insulation you also can increase the resale value of the house.

Payback on adding insulation to most Minnesota homes with currently uninsulated walls ranges from three to eight years. And once insulation pays for itself, it keeps saving money.

Most popular method of adding insulation to existing walls is to have the insulation blown in through small holes drilled in the outside of the home by an experienced contractor. The holes are then sealed and covered with stucco, siding or paint. Insulation can also be blown in from the inside. However, because it can be messy, this method is best used prior to moving into a newly purchased house.

Insulation can also be added in the form of fiberglass batts or rigid insulation boards. Fiberglass batts are a good choice if planning an interior renovation; rigid insulation boards work well when attached underneath a new exterior siding.

If currently planning an exterior project such as a stucco job, new siding or painting, this is an excellent time to also think about adding insulation to your exterior walls. Combining home improvement projects is an effective way to trim the overall cost of making improvements to the home.

Minnesota department of energy and economic development has information that describes the different types of insulation to consider for the home. It lists some guidelines to help make an investment in wall insulation worthwhile, and to help choose a reputable contractor. Department can also provide information on financing home improvements and whether you can qualify for tax credits.

Copies of this information is available by calling the energy information center, 1-800-652-9747. Ask for 'energy.'

Safety Council Gives Advice On Batteries

Subzero temperatures have caused many Minnesotans — and their batteries — to lose their spark. To give cars a boost this winter, the Minnesota Safety Council suggests reviewing battery know-how.

Loose or corroded battery cables and terminals frequently cause cars to fail to start. A solution of baking soca and water can wash away corrosion, but the battery caps must be on tight and the vents covered so the mixture doesn't contaminate the electrolyte. Pour soda solution onto clamps, then brush with a inexpensive wire tool made to clean cable clamps and posts, and rinse with clear water.

If a fast charge is used on a battery still in the car, battery cables should be disconnected.

It's a good idea to keep safety goggles and jumper cables in the car to have them when they're needed. Several thousand people a year are injured when car batteries explode during jump-starting; almost three-fourths of those injuries are to eyes, so wearing safety goggles is important.

Any spark could ignite a charging battery, so don't allow anyone to smoke or to illuminate the engine with a match or lighter during the starting procedure.

First, check the battery fluid. If it's frozen, go no further because the battery could explode. Next, check that both batteries are of the same voltage, and that both negative battery posts are grounded. Make sure vehicles are not touching. Put the cars into park or neutral gear; turn off all accessories and the ignition; put the parking brakes on in both vehicles.

Remove vent caps of both batteries to release gas, then cover the vents with a cloth. Attach one clamp of first jumper cable to the positive terminal of the dead battery and the other to that of the good battery. Attach one clamp of the second cable to the negative terminal of the battery which will be doing the boosting. Then avoid creating a spark near battery gases by making the final clamp connect to the engine block of the stalled car.

When ready, start the engine of the car with the good battery, then the stalled car. Reverse the hook-up procedure to remove booster cables. Don't take off safety goggles until all cables are removed and both car hoods closed.

If driving a diesel or a car that is turbo-charged or has fuel injection, the safety council suggests checking with the dealer and-or the owner's manual for procedures on jumping a dead battery.

Farming Costs And Returns Shown In Book

While U.S. farmers paid only two per cent more for production items in 1982 than they did in 1981, the prices they received for their products dropped 4.3 per cent, according to Carroll Rock, statistician in charge of the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

USDA recently released its 1982 cost of production estimates and Rock's office has compiled data from the report for the Minnesota region and the U.S. into two separate reports, one for crops and one for livestock.

"Costs of 1982 Crop Production, U.S. and Minnesota Region" is being released this week by the service. While record U.S. and Minnesota crop yields in 1982 helped hold down per-acre cost increases for corn, barley, oats, wheat and soybeans, heavy supplies badly pushed down market prices. Highlights of the report show:

Corn: Drops in returns were most severe in the lake states and corn belt area, falling from $129 in 1980 to $83 in 1981 and $59 in 1982.

Soybeans: While U.S. gross receipts fell $16 per acre from 1981-82, a more severe $25 drop occurred in the lake states and corn belt.

Wheat: The nation's five-state hard red spring wheat area, which includes Minnesota, recorded a $4 increase in gross receipts per acre.

Sunflowers: The Dakotas and Minnesota area saw per-acre receipts drop $20 from 1981-82 while total cash expenses gained about $2 per acre, kicking down net returns by $22 per acre.

Oats, Barley: The lake states and corn belt states posted a $22 per acre drop in receipts for oats. For barley, gross receipts per acre fell $9 in the Northern Plains, in which Minnesota is included.

Fall Potatoes: Lower yields were mostly responsible for a $46 drop in per-acre receipts to potato growers in the Red River valley.

Sugarbeets: Gross receipts jumped a sharp $259 per acre in Minnesota and North Dakota from 1981-82.

Single copies of this report are available free from the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service, P.O. Box 70068, St. Paul, MN 55107. The service will release cost of 1982 livestock and dairy production in the next few weeks.

Lt. Gov. Gives Talk In T.R.F. Monday Night

and innovation will be formed soon to help coordinate the activities of the alliance," she said, "as well as develop additional strategies to develop community based, cooperative efforts at new enterprise development. The council will bring recommendations to the governor, legislature and business community next fall."

The lieutenant governor said that Carol Pine, a partner in the professional research and writing firm of Pine and Mundale, Inc., will chair the council. Pine and her partner, Susan Mundale, co-authored "Self-made: The Stories of 12 Minnesota Entrepreneurs". Others on the council will represent a statewide mix of creative entrepreneurs and leaders committed to helping new business efforts.

"We need cooperation among the professionals, educators and business leaders in our communities," Lt. Gov. Johnson added. "It is the best way for our cities and towns to once again take hold of their own destinies — to become self-sufficient.

"Where other states often experience stalemate in policy-making, we have a reputation in Minnesota for looking ahead, for taking responsibility with our productive, energetic, creative people."

She noted that for smaller, newer businesses, the greatest need is often when the business is least able to afford assistance with sound business planning, marketing expertise, financial planning and improvement of management skills. The cooperative effort she is proposing is intended to meet those needs.

AREA FARMERS discussed strategy outside the FmHA office in Thief River Falls this morning, after literally circling the front parking lot of the building with tractors and other farm equipment. Most said the move was made to draw attention to problems which they face in dealing with the federal bureaucracy to obtain emergency loans. After multiple years of disastrous crops, many claimed that loan applications dating back to 1982 had not been processed yet by FmHA offices in Thief River Falls and Warren

FARM MACHINERY was used to encircle the front of the Farmers Home Administration office in Thief River Falls early this morning, as a means of protesting what local farmers say have been unnecessary delays in processing applications for emergency loans. Farmers noted that a task force from the national FmHA office had conducted an investigation showing that 729 loan applications, some of them dating back to 1982, remained unprocessed in the Warren and Thief River Falls FmHA offices.

against local manager Koehmstedt. "Butch is probably the best of the managers in the four offices," Brunelle hastened to note. "We didn't inform him ahead of time that we would be here today, but we are sure he understands our situation and will be understanding of what we are doing here."

He also added that Thief River Falls was selected as the protest site as a convenience matter for local farmers and because of the airport here. Some participation had been anticipated from outside sources who might have needed the airport facility, he said.

Koehmstedt said the tractors began arriving shortly after he arrived for work at 6:45 a.m. Brunelle said he had cleared the demonstration with the Pennington county sheriff's department and considered the protest to be "serious but friendly". The demonstration was expected to continue throughout the day but nothing further had been planned by noon today.

Weekend Race Planners Say Track Is Fast

at Annandale.

According to Erickson, the pro-class drivers who were leading the pack at his last notification included: Steve Houle, Forest Lake, on a Yamaha, with 194.59 points; Doug Lamon, Pelican Rapids, Polaris, 186.59; Loren Wolff, Annandale, Polaris, 180.04; Todd Elmer, Evansville, Ski-Doo, 169.93; John Bosek, Alexandria, Polaris, 156.38; John Wicht, Anoka, Polaris, 142.28; Darrel Vick, Blaine, Polaris, 136.91; Harley Doebbler, Parkers Prairie, 123.32; John Nicholson, Center City, Polaris, 96.49; and Steve Strandlund, Cedar, Yamaha, 89.92.

Grand Finale in Thief River Falls will have those drivers competing in a "round robin" at least three times against each other before the final race to determine the champion.

In addition to pro classes, there will be amateur sport and junior classes for any year or size of machine. Entry fee for these classes will be $15. Qualifications will start at about 9:30 a.m. Saturday on the river. Further information is available from the Chamber of Commerce.

Jerry noted that last weekend's race at Annandale drew over 100 entries and between 1,000 and 2,000 spectators. "And that race was held under less than ideal conditions," he added, noting that race had been held as a cross country, allowing limited visibility for spectators.

"Viewers in Thief River Falls will be able to see the whole track from either one of the parks on both sides of the river," he commented. "If the weather is like it is now, they should almost be able to watch it in shirt sleeves. With no admission charge, I expect a tremendous crowd."

Erickson noted that test drillings indicate between three and four feet of ice on the river in the track area. "However, if the weather is warm, the machines will probably be kicking up a pretty good roostertail of water behind them, so the drivers will get wet, but the spectators should just get to watch a really good race."

Mrs. Minnie Hellquist Rites Held At Viking

Funeral services for Mrs. Minnie Hellquist, 90, of Thief River Falls and formerly of the Rosewood area, were held Tuesday at 2:00 p.m., at the Viking Covenant church. Mrs. Hellquist died Friday at Northwestern hospital.

Rev. Dale Van Deusen officiated at the services. Mrs. Wallace Hanson was the organist and Nancy Hanson, the soloist. Interment will be in the Wildwood cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

The family considered all of Mrs. Hellquist's friends, who attended the services, as honorary pallbearers.

Active pallbearers were Jeffrey Hellquist, Richard Hellquist, John Hagberg, Robert Hagberg, Steven Kjome and Daniel Kjome.

Mrs. Hellquist, the former Minnie Markel, was born Aug. 8, 1893 in Russia to Anton and Anna Karskey Markel. At the age of 10 years, she immigrated to the United States with her family. They settled in Manning, N.D., where she grew to womanhood.

On Nov. 18, 1912, she was married at New Hradec, N.D., to John A. Hellquist. The couple farmed in that community until moving to Newfolden on July 20, 1920. Later, they moved to the Rosewood area and farmed there until retiring in 1952. In 1974, they moved to Minneapolis where they lived until the spring of 1977, when they came to Thief River Falls to make their home at Valley Home.

Surviving are three sons: Clarence Hellquist of Hammond, Ind.; Victor, Anaheim, Calif.; and Walter, Roseau; four daughters: Mrs. Willard (Lydia) Fox, Hotchkiss, Colo.; Mrs. Graham (Clara) Boyd, Santa Monica, Calif.; Mrs. Roy (Inez) Hagberg, Hibbing; and Mrs. Stanley (Lorraine) Campbell, Singapore; 24 grandchildren, eight great-grandchildren, a sister, Mrs. Agnes Markel, Dickinson, N.D., and a brother, Tony Markel, also of Dickinson.

She was preceded in death by her husband, who died July 19, 1977; a son, Alvin, two daughters: Florence and Mary Jane; and her parents.

Services Set For Alfred L. Rasmussen, 92

Funeral services for Alfred Rasmussen, 92, of rural St. Hilaire, will be held Thursday at 2:00 p.m., at Calvary Lutheran church in St. Hilaire. Rasmussen died Saturday at his home in River Falls township, Pennington county.

Officiating at the services will be Rev. Gary Moore and Rev. Steven Tangen. Patti Nelson will be the organist and Rev. Gary Moore, the soloist. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers will be Charles Hasnedl, Harlow Johnson, Peter Justesen, David Sorvig, Skip Swanson, Arthur Vik, Marvin Wangsness and Edward Wik.

Serving as active pallbearers will be Glenn Anderson, Doug Dehnert, Jerry Hasnedl, Craig Holmstrom, Clarence Skiblicki and Joel Sorvig.

The body is reposing at the Green Funeral home and will repose at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

Alfred Laurence Rasmussen, a son of the late Frederik and Hedevig Pedersen Rasmussen, was born Jan. 3, 1892 in Blooming Prairie. As a young child, he moved with his family to Norcross. He lived there for three years, before moving to Grygla where he grew to manhood. Later, he worked in the Moorhead area.

He was a veteran of World War I, entering the service on July 24, 1918. After training at Camp Wadsworth, S.C., and in Virginia, he went overseas with the Fourth Anti-Aircraft Machine Gun Battalion. While overseas, he was stationed in France. He returned to the United States in January of 1919 and received his discharge at Camp Dodge on Jan. 23, 1919.

On June 1, 1924, he was married at Grygla to Emma Hylland. The couple farmed in Benville township of Beltrami county until 1944, when they moved to St. Hilaire. Since then, they have made their home on a farm in River Falls township.

He was a member of Calvary Lutheran church and a former treasurer of the congregation. He was also a former member of the VFW and WW I Barracks.

Surviving are his wife, at home; one daughter, Mrs. Dennis (Helen) Tangen, Duluth; four grandchildren: Rev. Steven Tangen, Dickenson, N.D.; Michael Tangen, Bemidji; David Tangen, Paris, Ill., and Laurel Tangen Foster, Moscow, Idaho; and nine great-grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by three sisters, Carrie, Agnes and Laura; and three brothers: Martin, Arnold and one who died in infancy.

Feed Grain And Wheat Signup Ends Friday

Feed grain and wheat farmers have only this week left to sign up for the 1984 farm program in Minnesota, and they had better start running for cover, said Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols, calling attention to the February 24 sign-up deadline.

"If the drop in market prices during the past month hasn't encouraged farmers to make the trip to their local county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service (ASCS) office, then the 1984 planting intentions report released Thursday should result in a stampede," Nichols said.

Corn prices had already dropped to a 10-month low before this past week's planting intentions indicated a whopping 36 per cent increase in national production this year. Prices on other crops are at five to six-month lows and dropping.

"As of this date, the loan and target prices offered in this year's national wheat and feed grain program are the only guaranteed return farmers have in 1984. The 81.8 million acres farmers intend to plant to corn could become an 8.3 billion bushel crop in the fall. With the falling export markets, due to the strong dollar, we will have markets for only seven billion bushels. A surplus crop of over one billion bushels could mean $2 corn at the local elevator next fall. While soybean acres are down, the wheat crop also indicates a surplus and every farmer in the state will be money ahead if he signs up for the program.

He noted that during the past month the cash market prices on corn, wheat and soybeans dropped the value of carryover inventories on Minnesota farms as of January 1 by more than $130 million.

If farmers carry out their planting intentions filed nationally on February 1, this year's corn crop could be of near record size and depress market prices by as much as $1 below the federal support offered. One economist has calculated that if 70 per cent of the corn growers stay out of the program and plant fence row to fence row, that the market price will drop at least 60 cents a bushel below the guaranteed target price for cooperators.

POSTED SCORES were checked by Lincoln high school students (from left) Robbie Hogan, John Kinsman and Jeff Ross Rosetta, who competed in District 10 Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) conference events recently at the University of Minnesota Crookston (UMC). Areas of competition for students from northwestern Minnesota included advertising, apparel and accessories, finance and credit, food marketing, general merchandising, restaurant management and marketing.

Surplus Food Distribution Is Next Week

Surplus cheese, butter and cornmeal will be distributed to families meeting income guidelines in the Thief River Falls area next week. Commodities will be distributed at various locations on a first come, first served basis.

Eligibility should be determined in advance, so that required cards can be issued. Maximum annual gross income allowed is $8,326 for a household of one; $10,887 for two; $16,012 for four; and $22,097 for eight. Further information is available to residents of Clearwater, Pennington, East Polk and Red Lake counties by calling Inter-county community council, Oklee, 796-5144. East Marshall county residents should call outreach aide Karen Skadsem at 222-3309. Written permission will have to be presented to pick up commodities for another household.

Distribution will be made to East Marshall county residents from 1:30 to 4 p.m. Monday, February 27, at the following locations: Grygla community center, Holt senior citizen center, Gatzke senior citizen center, Middle River community center and Strandquist community center. Beltrami county residents may also use the Grygla distribution site.

Residents of Clearwater, Pennington, East Polk and Red Lake counties may pick up commodities at the following times and locations on Tuesday, February 28: 9 to 10 a.m., St. Hilaire council rooms; 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., Thief River Falls auditorium; 3 to 4 p.m. Goodridge senior center; 9:30 to 10:30 a.m., Ecksteins in Red Lake Falls; 1 to 2 p.m., Emardville Hall in Plummer and Brooks town hall; 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Fosston civic center; 1 to 2 p.m. Gully church and Trail VFW hall; 12:30 to 2 p.m., Clearbrook senior center; and 1:30 to 2:30 p.m., Gonvick city garage.

On Wednesday, February 29, commodities may be picked up from 2 to 3 p.m. at the Oklee municipal building; and from 10 a.m. to noon at the McIntosh municipal building and Erskine dial room.

Northwest Regional Development Commission and the Minnesota Board on Aging and support of local communities.

Barley Council To Be Elected Tues., Mar. 13

A new Minnesota barley research and promotion council will be established on Tuesday, March 13, in conjunction with this year's annual elections to fill expiring terms on the Minnesota beef, dairy, soybean and wheat research and promotion councils, according to Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols.

Barley producers are the eleventh Minnesota farm commodity group to petition for establishment of a producer financed and governed research and promotion council. The seven directors to be elected March 13 will have the responsibility for drafting a proposed barley marketing order for submittal to producers in a later referendum in crop reporting districts one and four in northwestern Minnesota.

Contests are assured for all 31 positions on the five councils to be filled in the March 13 elections — 11 on the dairy research and promotion council, five each on the respective beef and soybean research and promotion councils, and three on the wheat research and promotion council. A total of 64 candidates has been nominated by the producers.

The commodity council election this year falls on the same date as the annual township government elections. However, separate polling places will be maintained, and voting hours will vary.

Polling places for the barley, beef, dairy, soybean and wheat research and promotion councils will be the local county agricultural extension service offices statewide, except in Cook and Lake counties. Also, 14 additional polls have been designated in 13 counties.

Voting hours for the council elections will be 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Among special polling places will be: Corner Garage in Blackduck and the co-op creamery in Grygla.

Mail balloting will be conducted in May to fill expiring terms on the respective Minnesota egg, paddy wild rice, dry edible bean and Area I potato research and promotion councils. Last month mail balloting was completed by the turkey research and promotion council. Minnesota's new corn research and promotion council directors will hold over until the 1985 commodity council elections.

St. Benedict Counselor Here Feb. 29

Chuck Vilina, admissions counselor from the College of Saint Benedict, will be at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls at 1:15 p.m., Wednesday, February 29 to talk with students interested in attending the College of Saint Benedict.

Parents are also invited to meet with the counselor. Persons wanting to know the location of the meeting are encouraged to call the school counselor or secretary.

Recall Issued On Buttermilk Baking Mix

Minnesota department of agriculture has announced that General Mills, Inc. has initiated a voluntary recall of one of their food products because samples were found to contain concentrations of Ethylene Dibromide (EDB) in excess of Environmental Protection agency allowable guideline levels.

Recalled are 20-ounce boxes of Bisquick Buttermilk Baking Mix, Betty Crocker brand, Code C309X.

This is the same product code that was recently voluntarily removed from sale in North Dakota. Minnesota retailers and wholesales are asked to remove the above products from sale for return to the manufacturer.

Consumers who have this product with the above identification and code number should return it to the place of purchase.

Teleconference Courses To Be Held Here

Bemidji state university (BSU) is offering courses in criminal justice, psychology and the humanities to residents of the Thief River Falls area via teleconferencing, a two-way communication system linking off-campus classes with on-campus instructors.

Procedures and evidence is a four-credit criminal justice class concentrating mainly on basic criminal procedural law, with an emphasis on constitutional criminal procedure. Class will meet Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday from noon to 12:50 p.m. beginning March 6. Cost of the course, including tuition, text and fees, will be $118.75.

Human services program management is a four-credit offering in psychology concerning general program management in public service settings, including administration, evaluation, and grant writing. The class will meet Tuesdays from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. beginning March 12. Cost of the course, including tuition, text, and fees, will be $104.45.

In the humanitie, "Canada: The International Actor," is a general introduction to Canada's history, geography, economy, environment, politics, literature, and mass media. Class will meet Mondays from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. beginning March 12. Cost of this special course, including tuition, text, and fees, will be $115.40 for undergraduates and $141.60 for graduates.

All teleconference courses will meet at Northland community college in room B-37. Pre-registration for teleconference courses is recommended at least one week prior to the first class meeting in order that texts, course materials, and teleconference information can be sent before the first class.

For more information regarding registration, costs, or teleconferencing, contact the center for extended learning, Bemidji state university, Bemidji, MN 56601 (218-755-2068).

4H CLUB

City View

The City View 4-H club met on February 13 at the city auditorium meeting room. Flag pledges were said and roll call was taken. Coreen and Chris Larson were presented with certificates for participating in the 4-H public speaking contest; Coreen placed first in the senior division and will compete at the Red River Valley Winter shows on the district level. 4-H carnival is scheduled for March 16. Motion passed that our club will have the lollipop wheel and we will paint faces. The 4-H banner was discussed. Share-the-Fun is tentatively set for April 13 and favorite food show is March 3.

Our next meeting will be held on March 12. We will meet at the roller rink for roller skating. Motion to adjourn was made by Colleen Belmont and seconded by Andy Melby; carried. Jenny Haugen gave a demonstration on how to make deviled eggs. There were 18 members, nine parents and four guests present at our meeting.

Tours Arranged On Hazardous Waste Study

When discussing measures to deal with Minnesota's hazardous wastes, members of the Minnesota waste management board — the agency developing solutions to the state's hazardous waste problem — often refer to a variety of waste treatment and disposal technologies. These technologies are not easily understood or visualized, even for board members themselves, according to board chairman Robert Dunn.

Some examples of the technological terms are "emulsion breaking," "ion exchange," "electrolysis," "carbon absorption," "stabilization," and "leachate collection." These processes, unfamiliar to the layperson, are commonly used at many existing hazardous waste management facilities throughout the nation, Dunn said.

Beginning this month, the board will conduct a series of visits to hazardous waste management facilities operating in other states. They will provide board members, including eight new board members representing potential hazardous waste disposal or retrievable storage sites and other representatives of special citizen's committees in the siting areas, an opportunity to view such facilities firsthand.

The tours, which continue through late March, will include visits to hazardous waste management facilities in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Texas, Idaho and California. Many of the facilities currently treat or dispose of hazardous wastes generated by Minnesota businesses and industries.

Among the types of facilities to be toured are:

—Aqueous treatment plants, which include a variety of chemical and biological processes — such as "emulsion breaking" and "ion exchange" — to detoxify, reduce or solidify liquid hazardous wastes, in Niagara Falls, Cleveland and Philadelphia;

—Waste oil and heavy metal recycling centers in Idaho and near Houston, TX.

—Several types of hazardous waste incinerators in Philadelphia, Midland, Michigan and Martinez, California;

Temporary and long-term storage facilities for hazardous wastes and trench and mound-type landfills in Niagara Falls, Philadelphia and Idaho; and —Long-term underground storage facilities constructed in granite and shale in New York.

Two years ago, the nine original waste management board members visited several hazardous waste management facilities in other states to get a better idea of how such facilities actually operate. Since then, the eight new board members have been added and the governor appointed citizens' review committees in the local siting areas to work with the board in solving the state's hazardous waste problem.

"This new series of facility visits will enable the citizen representatives who have more recently become involved in the board's hazardous waste management activities to obtain a much better understanding of the types of facilities the board is considering for Minnesota," Dunn said. "Information gained by these representatives should help them to directly participate in the board's work to develop a comprehensive hazardous waste management system for our state.

For further information about the tours or the board's activities, write the board at: 7323 58th Ave. No., Crystal, MN 55428; or call (toll-free) 1-800-652-9747.

LUCNICA — pronounced lootch-nit-sa and translated to mean "beautiful meadow — is the title of the Czechoslovak folk ballet which will perform for the Thief River Falls concert association Tuesday evening. The dance program will be presented at 8 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium and admission is by season membership only. Considered one of the leading folk ensembles in the world, "Lucnica" is directed by Stefan Nosal. Half of its performances are in Czechoslovakia and the remainder are presented on four continents. As older members of the group retire each year, new members who have been in training since their youth replace them. Choreographer Nosal has created over 60 dances for the company which includes musicians as well as dancers. Care has been taken not to weaken the folk character of the dance and music. Having twice performed coast-to-coast in the United States, "Lucnica" is being hosted for the third time in such cities as Los Angeles, San Francisco, Denver, Chicago and New York. Lavishly colorful costuming adds to the performance of this first national ensemble of Czechoslovakia.

Conservation Corps Summer Jobs Available

Minnesota Conservation Corps Summer Program (MCCSP) is recruiting applicants for 1984. MCCSP is a work-education program designed to acquaint youth with the state's parks, forest and wildlife management.

Summer program provides summer employment for youth between 15 and 18 years of age, inclusive. Youth are employed 35 hours per week for which they receive $3.35 per hour. In addition, they receive five hours of environmental education instruction each week.

In 1984, MCCSP will be operated by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and will have 50 residential camp openings. A residential camp is one where youth live at the camp and engage in conservation work on state lands nearby.

All youth who are residents of Minnesota and who meet the age criteria above are eligible to appy. Applications may be obtained from your Job Service Office located at 318 Knight Avenue North in Thief River Falls. Recruiting period begins February 20 and ends March 30. All applications must be returned to the Job Service Office.

Explore Water Policy In Red River Basin

International coalition for land and water stewardship in the Red River drainage basin voted in January to work for a basin-wide water policy process.

The 1983 Red River Valley international water summit conference on December 8-9 at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks concluded with a resolution requesting that the coalition: (1) Become a steering committee for the establishment of a body that will formulate basin-wide land and water policy; (2) propose an ongoing coordinating structure for the Red River Basin and bring proposals to another conference to be held within one year; (3) develop a program of public awareness and support; and (4) develop a way to finance the operation.

"The conference demonstrated that our friends and neighbors in this Red River basin are pretty nice people," says Lance Yohe, Perley, president of the international coalition. "It showed that by coming together in the spirit of basin unity, we can create a forum for sharing ideas and resolving problems."

Yohe added that the task for the year ahead is monumental, but the goal of creating a basin-wide policy guidance process will be worth the effort.

"This valley has been fragmented for so long that this new initiative is like a breath of fresh air," Yohe said. "Few doubt that we have the technological capabilities to solve our water problems. The problem is not water, it is people. If basin people come together in a spirit of unity, we can solve most any problem that we face."

The coalition is organizing the staff and structure that will accomplish the conference resolution, Yohe said.

The international coalition is a basin-wide citizens organization founded in 1979 for the purpose of solving problems relative to land and water resources.

State Senate Ag Committee Hears Remarks

State Senate agriculture and natural resources committee last Monday heard testimony from farm officials and two U.S. Congressmen concerning the failure by the U.S. department of agriculture and the Reagan administration to help distressed farmers in northwestern Minnesota.

"Many of us at the State Capitol, and in Washington, D.C. among some in our Congressional delegation, are quite concerned about the lack of action by Agriculture Secretary Block and the administration to get the $600 million in emergency relief farm loans sent to our area, where they are sorely needed," State Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer said.

A member of the Senate agriculture committee, Stumpf has joined other state legislative leaders and U.S. Congressmen in calling on the Farmers Home administration (FmHA) to release this emergency relief and to maintain the current moratorium on foreclosures and FmHA farm mortgages, expected to expire soon.

"This funding was approved by Congress and has been ordered released by the federal courts," Stumpf stated. "The administration should quit dragging its heels on this issue and start doing something to help our farmers before they face the disastrous economic consequences being forecast for them next year.

"In our area of the state, farmers lost over $300 million in crop damage alone from 1979 to 1983 due to the severe weather," Stumpf said. "Also, an estimated 3,000 farm families from three counties in the region (Red Lake, Pennington and Marshall) lost an average of $100,000 per farm operation over this time.

Farmers from other counties in the region have lost an average of over $8,000 apiece in net worth during this time, according to a survey conducted on 443 farms in the 13-county area by the Thief River Falls A.V.T.I. adult farm management class.

Statewide, it has been estimated that over 16 per cent of all farmers in the state could face some serious financial difficulty over the next two years unless they receive some effective loan assistance from the federal government.

"U.S. Rep. James Oberstar noted during our hearing that the FmHA is trying to get a 22-page application form approved by the administration for use in farm loan applications, which could cost farmers between $250 and $500 apiece to complete," Stumpf added.

Noting that thousands of Minnesota farmers have joined a nationwide class action lawsuit against the FmHA to get relief funding already approved, Oberstar said it was "the first time in post-World War II that farmers have had to sue for disaster relief."

Regarding the emergency loan program, Rep. Oberstar noted that, while other states have received millions in relief before the program "was shut down," only one Minnesota farmer was approved for a $23,000 direct loan.

A federal judge's order barring the foreclosure of 1,600 farms in 44 states is about to expire, even though a 1978 law requires the deferral of loan repayments if a farmer is in financial trouble through no fault of his own. Although one-half of farmers eligible for FmHA aid have applied for loan deferrals, FmHA has not been willing to process these claims, Sen. Stumpf said.

The first profit sharing plan in American industry was introduced by Albert Gallatin, who was Secretary of the Treasury under Presidents Jefferson and Madison, at his New Geneva, Pa., glassworks, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's "Labor Firsts in America."

PRECISION LINE formed from participants in the Thief River Falls recreational skating program has performed at Lincoln high school Prowler hockey games and will be featured in the Fantasy on Ice skating show later this spring. The group recently participated in competition with 12 precision teams at the Fargo (ND) coliseum and placed second, moving up from the third place finish earned last year in its first year of organization. Brainerd's precision line placed first. Members of the group (left to right) include, front row, Jana Fessler, Becky Leander, Terese Tranby, Twyla Svendsgaard and Siri Spong; second row, Karina Krepp, Kimberly Peterson, Rebekah Bortnem, Pamela Maki, Stacie Hansen, Hillary Peterson and Colleen Johnson; back row, Brenda Ode, Petrina Kuyath, Kay Kainz, Shelly Minar, Dena Sund, Loralee Iverson and Jenny Nelson. Unable to be present when the photo was taken were Heidi Tofte and Lanae Broten. Photos of individual skaters who placed in competition at Fargo will be published in Monday's edition of the Times.

Country Music Talent Contest Again Offered

Country music talent contest for performers throughout the area will be conducted Sunday, March 25, at 4 p.m. in the Meadowbrook ballroom west of Middle River. Radio station KKAQ and Westside Motors in Thief River Falls are local sponsors.

First place winner will receive cash and a trophy while second and third place winners will receive trophies. First place winner will also advance to the state contest where the state winner will receive $1,000 cash, the use of a van for a full year and entry into the national contest.

Competition is open to any country performer or group who does not have a national recording contract. Two years ago the local winner, "The Back Behind the Barn Boys," won first place in the state contest. Last year "The Last Resort" placed third in the state contest.

Persons interested in competing or who would like rules and entry forms may contact Linda Reierson at 681-4900.

Stock Market Fearful Of Budget Deficit

by Walter W. Heller
'U' M Economist

Why did the stock market keep slip-sliding away in response to President Reagan's budget, economic and state-of-the-union messages? Bascially, because the market looks beyond this election year to the day of economic reckoning.

Except for Mr. Reagan's last-minute call for a bipartisan effort to shrink the next three year's deficits by about one-sixteenth, his budget proceeds as if there were no tomorrow. But tomorrow is exactly where the stock market lives — and her it doesn't like what it sees.

Even taking the president's figures at face value, it sees deficts running at a $180 billion clip for the next three years. To be sure, there is lots of wishful thinking and brave talk about the line-item veto and the balanced-budget amendment. But there is no decisive call to action to boost taxes or curb middle-class entitlements, even in the face of a 14 per cent jump in military spending next year alone.

Even more upsetting is the return of the shady lady, Rosy Scenario. We saw her some three years ago in Mr. Reagan's promise of steady economic growth and a budget surplus this year of over $90 billion — over-optimistic by a quarter of a trillion dollars.

This time around, the deficit forecasts are based on the rosy prospect of economic growth holding above four per cent a year and inflation holding below five per cent right through 1987, while short-term interest rates fall to six per cent. This six per cent forecast reminds George Will of the Havana museum claiming to have two Christopher Columbus skulls.

No wonder the bipartisan Congressional budget office, using more realistic assumptions, projects deficits far bigger than Mr. Reagan's — over twice as big by 1989. And no wonder the financial markets and the 22 Republican senators who come up for election in 1986 are worried.

Wall Street still likes Mr. Reagan. But its attitude on his deficits comes close to fear and loathing.

Schwandt Says No Emergency In EDB Scare

Russel G. Schwandt, president of the Minnesota Agri-Growth council, has praised last week's action by William Ruckelshaus, administrator of the federal Environmental Protection agency (EPA), in "making it clear to the American consumer that there exists no health emergency in the use of food products because of ethylene dibromide (EDB)."

Schwandt said that Ruckelshaus, "by setting reasonable safety limits for the presence of EDB in grain and food stuffs, has stemmed the growing tide of unnecessary public concern that was being fueled by scare stories and headlines related to EDB.

"By stepping in and establishing these badly needed guidelines, Ruckelshaus has restored the confidence of the American consumer in our nation's agricultural produce," Schwandt said.

Schwandt, a former commissioner of agriculture for Minnesota, noted that "by scolding those who have fanned the fires of public concern into a national scare over the presence of minor levels of EDB in grain and food, Mr. Ruckelshaus has performed a significant public service. He has reminded us that there are those among us who would readily remove all food products from the shelves and recall all grain stocks from storage that had ever been exposed to any of our proven-safe agricultural chemicals."

The Minnesota Agri-Growth council is the umbrella trade association serving Minnesota's agricultural industry from the farmer's field through the processor and retailer to the consumer's table.

Rent Property Standards Are Hearing Topic

Proposed revisions to energy efficiency standards for rental property will be the subject of a public hearing at 9:15 a.m. Tuesday, February 28, in room 715, American Center Building, 150 East Kellogg Boulevard, St. Paul.

If approved, the revisions would clarify existing standards and require landlords to further improve energy efficiency of their rental property. Revisions would also allow landlords of larger buildings to choose between following prescribed standards or installing a combination of energy conservation measures to achieve a minimum 25 to 30 per cent reduction in energy consumption.

Under proposed revisions, owners of rental property would be required to:

— Modify heating systems in one-to-four-unit buildings to achieve a minimum efficiency of 75 per cent;

— Insulate all attics to R-38 and all rim joists, walls and floors to R-11; and

— Caulk interior or exterior cracks, joints and gaps.

Owners of buildings with 12 or more units could either perform all of the prescriptive improvements, or install any combination of the measures that achieve a minimum 25 per cent reduction in energy consumption. Owners of buildings with 5 to 11 units would have the same option, but must achieve a minimum consumption reduction of at least 30 per cent.

Proposed revisions require rental property owners to install only those measures that will be cost effective, (if savings in energy costs will exceed installation costs in 10 years or less).

Rental property owners would still be required to follow provisions of the standards adopted in January 1980 and July 1983 that require them to: weatherstrip windows and doors; install storm windows and doors; install positive shutoffs on fireplaces and stoves; and insulate accessible attics to R-19, and accessible walls, rim joists and floors to R-11.

According to Deputy Commissioner Tony Perpich of the energy division of the Minnesota department of energy and economic development, the new standards will prompt significant reductions in energy use in Minnesota. "By adopting these revisions it is entirely possible for us to reduce energy use in the residential sector by as much as 40 per cent," Perpich said.

Rux Among Top Sales Leaders In Record Year

Gary L. Rux, CLU, Thief River Falls, was one of the top sales leaders who helped the Robert W. Chapman general agency of Duluth to set all-time sales records in 1983.

Chapman said his agency of Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company exceeded sales by premium over the previous record set in 1982 by 44 per cent. Other sales leaders in the agency were located in Fergus Falls, Duluth and Brainerd.

Social Security Men Here Tues.

Ted Hoversten and Neil Rowe, field representatives of the Grand Forks social security office will be in Thief River Falls at the city auditorium on Tuesday from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

National Guard Unit To Train In California

Minnesota army national guard 2nd Battalion, 136th Infantry, headquartered in Moorhead, has been selected to participate in a three-week training program with the active army 1st Infantry Division April 19 to May 8 at the army's national training center (NTC) at Fort Irwin, CA. This battalion was chosen because of its achievement of 101.6 per cent of authorized strength and its outstanding training posture.

The battalion, with subordinate units in Wadena, Fergus Falls, Thief River Falls, Crookston, Bemidji, Park Rapids and Detroit Lakes, is a "roundout" battalion for the 1st Division, headquarters at Ft. Riley, KS. "Roundout" means that the unit would become an organic part of the division in the event of a national emergency.

Company B consists of two parts — Thief River Falls and Crookston — and is commanded by CPT Allyn D. Roley of Warren with 1LT Richard D. Thomtom of Thief River Falls as the executive officer. Co B is made up of part time soldiers from over 30 communities in northwestern Minnesota and eastern North Dakota with the largest concentration of soliders coming from Thief River Falls and Crookston.

Fort Irwin is the army's largest military training site, with thousands of miles of rolling, arid desert terrain. Units stationed there full-time function as the opposing or aggressor troops — called OPFOR forces — and are among the best trained in the army.

"This is a real honor that has been bestowed upon the Minnesota guard and this fine battalion," states Major General James G. Sieben, adjutant general. "The 807 members of the battalion will get the experience of a lifetime and witness first hand how a large-scale combined arms team functions."

The battalion will work with a myriad of army units, including armor, engineer and artillery forces. In addition, they will be calling in tactical air support during the exercises, just as they would in a combat situation.

According to CPT Roley, "... from the moment we get there, the company will be in the thick of things. It will be a challenge and something that we have been preparing ourselves for mentally, physically and emotionally."

One of the most interesting aspects of the battalion's training will be use of the army's new MILES systems; MILES stands for Multiple Integrated Laser Engagement System. All of the unit's weapons will be equipped with devices that shoot harmless laser beams at the opposing forces. Individuals and vehicles will also be equipped with sensors that react to the lasers as either a "kill" or wounding blow. Lights and-or sirens go off on the sensors when a laser hit is scored. Exercise evaluators then take the "killed" or "wounded" person or vehicle out of the action, simulating the reality of casualties in combat.

State Potato Stocks Down From Year Ago

Estimated stocks of potatoes in Minnesota as of February 1 was 6.9 million hundredweight, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. This is one per cent below Feb. 1, 1983. The disappearance during January totaled 900,000 hundredweight. Estimate of stocks by type show 16 per cent red, 48 per cent white and 36 per cent russet compared with 16 per cent, 49 per cent and 35 per cent last year.

In the Minnesota-North Dakota Red River Valley, stocks are estimated at 15.2 million hundredweight, up nine per cent from a year ago. The January disappearance totaled 3.1 million hundredweight, compared with 2.8 million hundredweight in 1983. Stocks by type are estimated at 20 per cent red, 62 per cent white, and 18 per cent russet compared with 22 per cent, 60 per cent and 18 per cent a year earlier.

February 1 potato stocks nationally totaled 135 million hundredweight, down 10 per cent from a year earlier and two per cent below two years ago. By variety, potatoes were 75 per cent russet, 22 per cent white, and three per cent red, based on data from the 11 objective yield states.

Production Of Taconite Grows 3 Million Tons

Operating at about 40 per cent of their capability, Minnesota's eight taconite plants increased production by 3,000,000 tons in 1983.

According to Alfred E. France, president of the Lake Superior industrial bureau, a survey of members shows that the Minnesota taconite industry produced 25,000,000 tons in 1983, up from 22,000,000 tons in 1982. In addition, the range's one remaining natural ore operation produced 850,000 tons.

Average employment in the taconite industry during 1983 was about 6,000. Total payroll costs exceeded $207,000,000. Reduced work schedules and sporadic layoffs occurred throughout the year.

Purchases of goods and services by the taconite companies totaled more than $452,000,000 last year.

France said that 1984 taconite production is expected to show further improvement and should be around 35,000,000 tons. This is due to an improving economy and a need to increase pellet inventories.

The steel industry continues to lag behind other sectors of the nation's recovering economy. Retrenchment in steel, encroachment by imported steel and autos, a glut of ore in the world market, all adversely affect domestic ore production, according to France.

Minnesota producers are making an all-out effort to reduce costs so that traditional ties with lower lakes steel producers will not be lost to cheaper ores offered by offshore competitors, France said.

Response Noted To Survey About Hazardous Waste

A few more pieces of the hazardous waste management puzzle fell into place this month with the help of representatives of state businesses that generate hazardous waste, according to the Minnesota waste management board.

Their response to an informal survey conducted by waste management board staff indicated that many of them point to incineration, solvent recovery and transfer or storage facilities as the hazardous waste processing facilities most needed in Minnesota. The approximately 300 businesses that responded also supported tax credits for installation of pollution control equipment and technical assistance from the state as the two most important programs the state could provide to help them with hazardous waste management.

This kind of information about the needs and preferences of Minnesota industries is one of the keys to the development of a comprehensive state hazardous waste management program, according to Patrick Hirigoyen of the board staff. It helps the board to determine the measures and facilities needed in Minnesota to effectively deal with hazardous wastes.

Why single out this group for their views? Business and industry are compelled by their position in the marketplace — and by their day-to-day dealings with hazardous wastes — to take a practical, cost-effective and responsible approach to the issue of hazardous waste management. To them it is more than just an issue to be debated on an emotional or philosophical level: they need concrete plans and answers, and look to the waste management board to provide them, Hirigoyen said.

That is why the waste management board staff recently mailed this questionnaire to over 1,000 state firms that have reported generation of hazardous waste to state and county officials.

The responses received to date indicate genuine interest in this issue by firms in several areas of the state. Responses were received from a wide range of businesses, including small repair shops that need to find ways to dispose of their waste oil and several giants of Minnesota industry.

The results indicate that an overwhelming majority (75 per cent) of the firms believe there is a need for a commercial hazardous waste incinerator in Minnesota.

Respondents also expressed extensive support for new facilities to collect waste shipments from businesses for later transfer to treatment or disposal facilities (64 per cent); a secure hazardous waste landfill (55 per cent); and a waste solvent recycling plant (55 per cent).

Waste oil refining was chosen by 46 per cent of the respondents and 41 per cent cited a need for an aqueous treatment facility. Metal recovery, fuel blending and PCB treatment facilities were indicated as necessary by a third or less of the respondents. These figures must be considered, however, along with the fact that many of the firms that responded checked only those facilities that they themselves would require for their specific kinds of waste.

In addition, the questionnaire asked hazardous waste generators to specify programs the state should provide to help them better manage their wastes. The two programs chosen most often by respondents were tax credits for the installation of pollution control equipment (65 per cent), and technical assistance to help businesses reduce their hazardous waste generation (60 per cent).

The questionnaire also provided the firms an opportunity to comment on the state's waste management efforts and suggest other hazardous waste measures not listed on the form.

The comments also reflected an understanding on the part of the companies that hazardous waste management requires the integration of many programs rather than just a single solution. Several respondents noted that reduction and treatment of hazardous wastes need to be combined with public education programs.

A company official from Minneapolis wrote, "A big help would be non-threatening information on the hazards and best alternatives to handling pre-treatment and disposal in a readily accessable central location." "Educate management to the ways of reducing pollution and conserving supplies of limited resources" a Minnetonka firm's representative offered.

The interest and participation of these firms is gratifying — and necessary, Hirigoyen said. New hazardous waste management programs will be developed, and the board will take into account comments such as these as it makes its decisions, working with business and industry — and all the citizens of Minnesota — to improve the state's waste management system.

For additional information about the questionnaire results or any of the board's hazardous waste management programs, write the board at: 7323 58th Avenue North, Crystal, MN 55428; or call (toll free) 1-800-652-9747.

Children Are Warned About Snow Forts

A snowplow driver was whizzing down the snow-covered streets of a Minnesota community recently. Suddenly, just ahead, he saw a pair of feet emerging from a snow-fort built in the snowbank!

Unable to retract the blade in time, he covered the little feet with snow before being able to bring his heavy vehicle to a halt. He and his assistant dug out the feet. They belonged to a four-year-old boy who, miraculously, was uninjured.

The near mishap made such an impression on that employee that he wants the word to get out to all Minnesota children — snowforts built close to the curb are dangerous!

In another Twin Cities suburb, the idea of that same danger prompted William Hunt, personnel officer of the city of Fridley, to issue flyers warning local school children about snowforts.

"Even when built in the back yard, snowforts have the potential for danger through suffocation or injury from pieces of falling ice and snow," Hunt says. "But although the temptation of hard-packed snowbanks is great, children never should be allowed to build snowforts curb-side, where there is the added danger of injury or worse from the blade of a plow."

Lawyer Trust Fund Board Sets Program

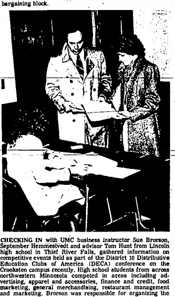
Minnesota supreme court has established a program to use the interest on lawyer trust accounts to improve the delivery of legal services to the poor, promote the development of law related education for the public, and develop programs to enhance the administration of justice.

When lawyers deposit funds nominal in amount or held for a short period of time in a pooled trust account, the interest on those funds is remitted to the lawyer trust account board, which administers the program.

The lawyer trust account board has announced a grant program to distribute up to a total of $250,000 to projects in any of the three program areas. The board will not only support traditional approaches, but will encourage projects that show innovative approaches to recognized needs throughout the state.

The board is soliciting proposals through its Executive Director, 300 Legal Education Center, 40 North Milton Street, St. Paul, Minnesota 55104. The application deadline is March 15.

GRAIN SIGN-UP to organize a bargaining block in an effort to secure a higher price took place at a meeting in Thief River Falls city auditorium Monday afternoon. Ron Kotrba, grain department representative in this area for the National Farmers Organization, explained the program to approximately 25 farmers and others in attendance at the meeting. In the photo above he discusses the contract with one farmer while another fills out a contract to supply grain to the bargaining block.



CHECKING IN with UMC business instructor Sue Brorson, September Hemmestvedt and advisor Tom Hunt from Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls, gathered information on competitive events held as part of the District 10 Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) conference on the Crookston campus recently. High school students from across northwestern Minnesota competed in areas including advertising, apparel and accessories, finance and credit, food marketing, general merchandising, restaurant management and marketing. Brorson was responsible for organizing the event.

Label Change In Non-Dairy Products Made

A new state law implemented on Jan. 1, 1984, by the Minnesota department of agriculture will make it possible for consumers to readily identify imitation dairy products, according to agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols.

The new law enacted by the 1983 Minnesota legislature and signed last May 20 by Governor Rudy Perpich, authorized the manufacture and sale of artificial dairy products after Jan. 1, 1984, provided they are properly labeled.

Such products, distinguished from "real" products in this fourth leading dairy state, must bear the bold type statement "An Artificial Dairy Product" on the principal display panel of each package or container.

Also, the principal display panel must state the difference in fat or oil used and the major difference in the basic ingredients used to replace non-fat milk solids in artificial dairy products.

Labels must also show the nutritional quantitative differences between the artificial dairy product and the real dairy product that it resembles.

The only artificial or imitation dairy products exempted from Minnesota's new law are individual servings of less than one-half ounce or one-half fluid ounce for use in restaurants, institutions or passenger carriers and not otherwise packaged for retail sale; also non-liquid toppings, dry coffee whiteners, frozen liquid whiteners, dips, dressings and margarine type products.

Artificial dairy products are any food, which by its composition, intended use, sensory qualities, physical properties, package or label description, purports to resemble or imitate any dairy product. The primary differential in artificial dairy products is usually a substitution of vegetable oils or animal fats for butterfat. Artificial dairy products may also contain fillers of non-dairy origin. The new law requires that all of these ingredients be identified.

All-Time High Turkey Total Noted In 1983

Minnesota poultry ranchers raised 27 million turkeys in 1983, a new all-time high for the fifth straight year, but they intend to reduce production this year to the 1982 level of 26 million turkeys, according to agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols.

Last year's turkey production was higher than in 1982 by three per cent nationally, and provided a bargain for consumers at the expense of the farmers. Here in Minnesota, Commissioner Nichols noted, consumers were able to buy oven ready turkeys during the holiday season for as low as 46 cents a pound.

The preliminary annual market price received by Minnesota turkey growers last year, based on the mid-monthly published farm prices for all major farm commodities, was only 33.4 cents per pound, the lowest average since 1977.

Commissioner Nichols said that while the official estimates on the gross income of Minnesota poultry producers in 1983 are not scheduled for release until April 10, it is likely that report will show the state's turkey growers received the lowest gross cash marketing receipts since 1977. In 1982 Minnesota turkey growers grossed an estimated $172.9 million, an all-time high.

Latest official production and 1984 intention estimates show that North Carolina continued to increase its hold on the national turkey title wrested from Minnesota in 1981. North Carolina raised 28.7 million turkeys in 1983, and growers filed intentions to increase that to 30.6 million of the birds this year.

Although turkey growers nationally filed intentions to raise 1984 production by about two per cent above the 1983 output, the annual December 1 survey revealed the carryover inventory of turkey breeder hens was eight per cent lower than a year earlier. Minnesota's hen inventory was lower by 15 per cent, third leading California down 20 per cent, Texas down 50 per cent, while leading North Carolina reduced its breeding hen count by less than seven per cent.

Grain Producer Meet Thursday In Crookston

A mammoth, nationwide meeting for grain producers will be held Thursday by the National Farmers organization (NFO) in a drive to improve prices for farmers.

"Meeting simultaneously in 40 locations, an estimated 5,000 producers in 15 states will be able to communicate directly with each other through a special telecommunications network being set up by NFO especially for this project," said Ronald Kotrba of Goodridge, NFO grain representative for this area.

The meetings will center in the heaviest grain producing areas of the nation. States in which meetings are planned include Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Montana, Idaho and Washington. The meetings for this area will be held in Crookston at the Northland lodge at 1:30 and 7:30 p.m.

Focus of the meetings will be on the volume sales grain blocks now being put together by NFO. Prices in these grain blocks are set at $4.50 per bushel for corn and $10 per bushel for soybeans (both basis Gulf) and $5 per bushel for hard red winter wheat (basis Minneapolis or Minneapolis equivalent). Blocks for barley and oats are also in the initial stages.

"All producers and business people interested in improving grain prices should plan to attend the meeting," Kotrba said. "Grain prices are artifically low. Parity for grain now at 54 per cent is at an all time low. Farmers' cash flow is drying up but together we can change that."

Richard Farmes Named Sailor Of Quarter

Electronics Technician First Class Richard S. Farmes was recently named sailor of the quarter aboard the USS Glenard P. Lipscomb for professional achievement in the superior performance of his duties while serving as logroom yeoman from July 1 to September 30.

Citation which was issued by Captain Thomas W. Evans, commander of Submarine Squadron Six, read in part: "Petty Officer Farmes consistently performed his duties in an exemplary and highly professional manner. Displaying exceptional organizational ability and attention to detail, he has been invaluable to the efficient administration of the engineering department. He additionally applied his superb technical ability to the successful resolution of reactor controls division's material problems and unselfishly devoted many extra hours in assisting ship's personnel in qualification."

Farmes is a 1973 graduate of Lincoln high school and a 1975 graduate of Northland community college in Thief River Falls. He was previously honored in 1982 as sailor of the year aboard the nuclear powered attack submarine, which operates out of Norfolk, VA.

NOTICE TO HAULERS

The Pennington County Sheriff's Office has been notified to strictly enforce load limits this spring. Severe road damage occurred last year due to wet conditions.

Truckers and farmers are reminded to do as much of their hauling as possible before the load limits go on. Limits will be in effect at the same time restrictions are on Trunk Highways. If the roadway is not posted, the legal limit is 10,000 pounds gross weight per axle.

Heavy loads are proven to be the major factor in road damage. Please notify the Sheriff's Office or County Engineers Office if you know of any overloads - it will protect roads your money helped build.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

A current country western song has lyrics to this effect: "Dig a little deeper, dig a little deeper in the well, Boy." Keep digging, Mr. Lundin, you might find big news in them thar offices of USDA.

I, for one, must say I thoroughly enjoyed the two recent editorials centered on USDA information; they were good pieces of investigative journalism. Perhaps you've just touched the tip of the iceberg.

Nonetheless, since you will be doing follow-up pieces, try a few more questions at USDA. Here are some items which have aroused my curiosity:

(1) Why are elevators paid almost double the storage rates that farmers receive for CCC grain?

(2) Since ASCS keeps no "roll-over" records of grain and supply statistics are based on the crop reporting service, how do they arrive at current carryover bushels in grain? I especially wonder when in the January soybean stocks report, USDA "lost" 40 million bushel of what they "found" 10 days earlier in the final crop estimate.

(3) If the media isn't "fed" through the main wire services, which are also controlled by large multinationals, why doesn't USDA push through the media the huge amount of imports in food commodities we must absorb in this country which also serve to make U.S. production the so-called surplus?

In 1980, '81 and '82, for example, we imported four times as much red meat as we exported and imported three times as much dairy products as we exported. In dairy, that means one of two things: We either do not produce enough to feed our own country or the inventory we have on hand is a result of imported products. This builds an inventory to give the impression that the American dairy farmer overproduced.

Another example: In 1982 we exported 85,669 metric tons of veal but we imported 662,233 metric tons.

(4) Perhaps the USDA could publish the carryover stocks in "day supply" terminology for all to understand, rather than in millions and billions of bushels. These reports are used to depress farm prices.

(5) Why don't our imports have to meet the same strict federal standards for consumption that U.S. products must meet? Pork is an excellent example of this double standard.

(6) This very "efficient" farmer can now feed 78 other Americans based on farm numbers of 2.4 million vs. U.S. population of 225 million; who feeds the other 38 million?

(7) While farmers in the past four decades have dwindled by 60 per cent, USDA has grown to the point where we have one USDA person for every 20 farmers. By industry standards that's alot of chiefs for so few Indians. Let's see the USDA budget published. What percentage for administration, what percentage for agriculture, what percentage for SBA loans, what percentage for community projects, etc.

(8) USDA continually publishes the amount of dollars spent on agriculture. If, indeed, they have a balance sheet, let's see the income side, the billions of dollars farmers pay to USDA for interest on CCC loans, fees paid for grazing stock on government land, dairy tax assessments paid by farmers, etc.

The markets are 60 per cent psychology; they can be talked up as well as down. In daily grain or cattle sold, how many times is each animal counted before it is slaughtered or each box car of grain counted before it finally reaches export markets?

Today, the new catch phrase is "cash flow". Let's remember that half a crop at full price generates the same cash flow as a full crop at half the price. (Perhaps more because of decreased production costs).

Between 1981 and 1982, Minnesota farm income dropped 27 per cent and Minnesota lost 9,000 farmers with hogs, beef or dairy operations, not to mention grain farms which were sold out.

A profitable farm operation as a business should be able to accomplish three things: (1) make a family living; (2) retire a percentage of debt; and (3) allow for savings. How many farms are in this category?

Mrs. Alfred Solem, Rt. 2,
City, 681-3897

Friday dinner guests at the home of LaVerne and Olive Rondorf were Raymond and Irene Rausch.

Gabrielson Funderal

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Moe, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Vatsaas, Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Hamre, and Mrs. Bernice Vatsaas attended funeral services for Reverend Thomas Gabrielson Saturday, February 18 at the Little Norway Lutheran church of rural Fertile. Rev. Gabrielson was father to Pastor David Gabrielson, a former minister at the Oak Ridge Lutheran church and the Zion Lutheran church of Viking.

Mrs. Alfred Solem accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Peter Solem and Andrew to Grand Forks Thursday and spent the afternoon visiting at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Stanley and Dagny Wick.

4-H Judging

Congratulations are extended to the Pennington county 4-H general livestock judging team, who placed first in the competition of 18 teams at the Red River Valley winter shows Saturday, February 18. Team members were Todd and Troy Carlson, Daryl Rupprecht and Cindi Solem. Cindi was top beef judge, top sheep judge, and top judge over all. A second 4-H Pennington general livestock judging team placed 13th out of the 18 teams. Members were Susanne and Paul Johnson and Twyla Svendsgaard. They did very well considering the short time they have participated in judging. Two teams of 4-H Pennington county dairy judging teams also participated in the event. Members on team No. 1 were Wayne Rausch, Edna Johnson and DeDee Grandbois and on team No. 2 Melissa Rausch, Kristen Sorteberg and Tim Carlson. The dairy teams were coached by Scott Muzzy and Dale Rupprecht. There were 12 4-H dairy teams in the contest.

Coffee guests at the Lloyd Larson home Wednesday forenoon last week were Orville and Lenore Harstad and Jerry and Lynnet Swaser, all of Viking.

Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Rondorf were Saturday afternoon visitors and luncheon guests at the Everett Yonke home in Thief River Falls.

Melissa Rausch participated in the 4-H clown project at the Red River Valley winter shows on Saturday. Jennifer Ose and Karla Rupprecht received blue on their team demonstration entitled "Food For The Future," which they presented Saturday. Jennifer Ose also participated in the 4-H speaking contest. Among those that participated in the talent festival auditions Sunday were Jennifer Ose, Mike Jorde, Lisa Anderson, Lisa Edington, Nikolena and Courtney Mostrom-Ose.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Moe accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Reierson to the civic center in Grand Froks Sunday afternoon to hear three groups present "Blue Grass" music. In the evening they enjoyed the spaghetti supper sponsored by the Luther League at the Oak Ridge Lutheran church. Others attending the supper were Mrs. Bernice Vatsaas, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Solem, Mrs. Ethel Moe, and Mrs. Ida Omlid.

Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Rondorf enjoyed a telephone conversation with their son Donald at Grand Island, Neb. Sunday. He said they had gotten 15 inches of wet snow beginning Friday night and on Saturday, which was a record accumulation at one time. Donald also reported they have had the coldest winter on record.

Mrs. Harryet Larson attended a meeting of the Nazareth Lutheran church Esther circle at the home of Mrs Verna Lunke Thursday afternoon. Lloyd Larson was also a visitor at the Lunke home.

Mrs. Ethel Moe left by bus from Thief River Falls Saturday morning for Moorhead. There she boarded the "Jack Rabbit Line" destined for Bradley, S.D. but at Breckenridge the bus was ordered to return to Moorhead due to blizzard conditions further south. Ethel caught the bus going to Thief River Falls and was an overnight guest at the home of Mrs. Bernice Vatsaas.

Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rausch were guests at the Leonard Yonke home.

Sunday afternoon visitors at the Lloyd Larson home were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kleinwachter, Kent, Hope, and Stacy from Strandquist. Later in the afternoon the Kleinwachter family and Mr. and Mrs. Larson joined Jim and Darlene Muzzy at the Pizza Hut in Thief River Falls, where they all enjoyed the "$25 Pizza Party" gift won by Mrs. Kleinwachter on station KKAQ for her birthday.

Steiner 4-H Club Meeting

The Steiner 4-H club had their February meeting Friday evening, the 18th, at the Terry Courneya home. Following the business session and the lunch, they enjoyed roller skating at The Place.

Curt and Carol Johnson spent Sunday afternoon visiting his aunt, Mrs. Agnes Sigurdson, at her home in Oklee.

Mrs. Clara Jaennette accompanied Mrs. Carol Johnson, Jeff and Sheryl to Grand Forks Monday, when there was no school.

BIZARRE EFFECTS were achieved by art students at Franklin middle school who had the opportunity to learn from professional artist Seitu Jones last week. Jones visited the school under the COMPAS artists in the schools program. Students learned that photographic techniques can be used artistically without investing in a lot of expensive equipment. This print was made by a student who smeared his face with vaseline and then made a direct contact print on photographic paper. When the paper was developed, the film of vaseline kept developing chemicals from affecting the areas which had touched his face.

GENUINE EMERALDS weighing 30 pounds are held by Phil Hess of the Jewel Box, Inc., Thief River Falls, at a recent meeting of the Independent Jewelers organization recently in Orlando, FL. Hess was invited to participate in this group because of his knowledge and expertise with diamonds and other precious gemstones. The organization includes more than 800 stores from the United States, Canada and Australia and is the largest buying group of independent jewelers in the world. Gemologists estimate the value of the emeralds Hess holds at $300,000 when cut and polished.

Ripley Winter Training Camp Breaks Records

When the winter training season ends in March, Camp Ripley will have taken an even tighter grip on the title of premier site for cold weather military operations training in the continental U.S.

Some 665 men and women from Army National Guard units in five southeastern Minnesota communities will report there February 25 for two weeks' annual encampment. Their stay will bring to more than 17,100 the number of troops to pass through the state-owned facility this winter, a new single season high since the winter training program's inception in 1964. Total exceeds last year's record by roughly 5,000 and is nearly four times greater than the number of troops attending as recently as 1980.

Members of the 47th "Viking" infantry division's first battalion, 135th infantry, will travel from home armories in Rochester, Albert Lea, Red Wing, Faribault and Owatonna, staying until March 10.

Intensive training sessions include cold weather survival techniques, cross country and downhill skiing, winter bivouacs, weapons firing and winter warfare tactics and operations.

Mother Nature has cooperated with a vengeance, so far this year, dumping some five feet of snow on the sprawling, 53,000-acre site north of Little Falls and loosing blasts of air with wind chills reaching the minus 80s on troops in training and bivouac areas in the field.

National Guard members make up only a portion of the armed forces personnel taking part in two-week training sessions conducted by Minnesota Guard instructors. Virtually all components of the U.S. military, including active and reserve units, have sent contingents to the camp. One of the most recent developments at the facility was completion of an all-weather, tactical air strip. This enables four-engine, transport aircraft to land at the camp with troops who can march directly to their billets.

The site can accommodate 2,500 personnel during a winter training period in 13 company-sized, winterized barracks, each with self-contained administrative offices, supply rooms and dining facilities. Woods and trails provide ideal terrain for maneuvering, mock battles and battalion-sized exercises.

This year, the Minnesotans of the 135th will be joined in their training by 86 members of the Norwegian Home Guard as part of an exchange program that has been an annual event since its inception in 1974. Under the program, Home Guard personnel from Camp Torpomoen in northcentral Norway come to Minnesota to train for two weeks while a contingent of U.S. National Guard members, the majority from Minnesota, go to Norway for their annual encampment. This year 88 Minnesotans will be making the trip.

Girls Basketball Pairings

Coaches of the six girls basketball teams in North Sub-Region 8AA will meet tonight (Wednesday) in Detroit Lakes when pairings will be determined for post-season play.

Regular season standings will be used to determine the match-ups, with the top two seeded teams drawing first round byes and teams finishing third and fourth having home court advantage against the No. 6 and No. 5 teams, respectively for first round games Monday.

Defending champion Bemidji has nailed down first place and will be the tournament's No. 1 seed. Park Rapids, Fergus Falls and Detroit Lakes are expected to compete for the No. 2 spot, with Thief River Falls and Moorhead likely to be on the road Monday night.

Thief River Falls won just once in six starts against North Sub-Region 8AA teams, beating Moorhead 55-48 back on Jan. 3. The Prowlers lost twice to Bemidji 66-45 and 57-54, while losing single meetings with Park Rapids 49-35, Detroit Lakes 65-55 and Fergus Falls 63-52 last night.

After opening the season with a 7-2 record, the Prowlers went just 2-8 the second half of the year to finish 9-10 overall.

Monday's first round playoff winners will be at the sites of the top two seeded teams for the semifinals Thurs., March 1. Highest-seeded team will be the host school for the North Sub-Region 8AA finals Sat., March 3.

Boys Basketball Pairings

While the girls determine their playoff positions tonight, boys basketball teams in North Sub-Region 8AA will announce their pairings next Wednesday.

It should be an interesting situation to see how the seedings wind up. There is a definite two-division separation among the six teams this winter, with Bemidji, Fergus Falls and Moorhead all legitimate title contenders, with Detroit Lakes, Thief River Falls and Park Rapids all closely grouped in the second division.

Thief River Falls is winless in six games against North Sub-Region 8AA competition, losing twice to Bemidji by scores of 84-39 and 70-54, along with single losses to Detroit Lakes 45-41, Moorhead 66-48, Fergus Falls 43-38 and Park Rapids 39-38 last night.

Like the girls, the Lincoln high school boys will make their tournament debut on the road Tues., March 6. The boys will use the same six-team format as the girls. Semifinals will be played Thurs., March 8, and championship game will be played Sat., March 10.

LHS Skaters On 27-0 BSU Team

Lincoln high school graduate Bob Fitzgerald scored twice Saturday as the Bemidji State University hockey team completed a perfect 27-0 regular season record with a 9-0 win over Mankato State.

"As far as I'm aware, there has never been a collegiate hockey team which finished the regular season unbeaten," BSU coach Bob Peters told Pat Miller of the Bemidji Pioneer. "As far as I know, we have made history."

Fitzgerald, a BSU tri-captain, told Miller, "We played hard, we played our best tonight. We wanted the unbeaten season awful bad, especially the seniors. We played hard for it and we had fun."

Dave Geatz, another Lincoln product, is a defenseman for the Beavers. Both Fitzgerald, a forward, and Geatz are seniors.

Bemidji, the No. 1 team in the West Division, will host University of Alaska-Fairbanks, the No. 2 team in the West Division, in an NCAA Division II semifinal series, tentatively scheduled March 10-11. The winner will face the representative from the East Division in the NCAA-II finals March 17-18.

Section 8 Teams Shorthanded

Only Bemidji is expected to enter the 1984 Section 8 high school hockey tournament at full strength this weekend in the Thief River Falls sports arena, according to a release received today (Wednesday) from Section 8 publicist Frank Fee in Crookston.

Russell Palm of Roseau is out with a back injury; Jeff Falconer of Moorhead is out with a broken hand and Steve Dorsey remains hospitalized after an early-season collision into the boards; Monte French, Jim Schwab and Craig Stahlecker (collarbone) of Crookston are all sidelined; Steve Wiskow of Thief River Falls is out with a broken kneecap; Matt Knox (thigh bruise), Mark Boucha (pneumonia) and Mike Johnston (swollen knee) of Warroad are all questionable for Saturday; Blaine Rude (broken rib) is questionable for Fergus Falls; while Lonnie Little and Jeff Bast (rules), along with John Schmidt (knee) and Chad Weisel (shoulder) of Alexandria are definitely out.

In the first round matches, Roseau and Moorhead have not met this year; Thief River Falls beat Crookston twice (6-3 on Jan. 10 in TRF and 3-2 on Jan. 31 in Crookston); Bemidji beat Warroad (6-4 on Jan. 24 in Warroad); and Fergus Falls beat Alexandria (5-3 on Dec. 20 in Alexandria).

Section 8 Hockey Tournament Starts Friday

Opening round quarterfinal doubleheaders will be played in the Thief River Falls sports arena this weekend as the 1984 Section 8 high school hockey tournament gets underway.

Friday night games feature Roseau vs. Moorhead at 6:30 p.m. and Thief River Falls vs. Crookston at 9. On Saturday, Bemidji plays Warroad at 6:30 p.m. and Fergus Falls meets Alexandria at 9.

Single semifinal games will be played Monday and Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. The Friday night winners will be back in the sports arena Monday, and the Saturday night winners will play on Tuesday. Section 8 championship game will be played here Friday, March 2, at 7:30 p.m.

Roseau, Bemidji, Fergus Falls and Thief River Falls were awarded Section 8 tournament berths by a vote among all 19 head coaches, and their seeding positions corresponded with their order of finish in the final regular season standings — 1. Roseau; 2. Bemidji; 3. Fergus Falls; 4. Thief River Falls. The others advanced through sub-sectional eliminations Saturday and Monday and were matched up this weekend based upon their won-loss percentage in the regular season standings, with Thief River Falls drawing the highest finisher — Crookston — and Roseau drawing the lowest finisher — Moorhead.

Monday's sub-section results found Warroad beating Lake of the Woods 9-5; Crookston handled Hallock 7-1; Moorhead edged Brainerd 3-2; and Alexandria defeated Detroit Lakes 4-1.

Those Saturday scores showed Lake of the Woods routing East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 16-1; Warroad handled Indus 10-2; Hallock doubled Red Lake Falls 6-3; Crookston eliminated East Grand Forks 6-2; Moorhead shut out Little Falls 10-0; and Detroit Lakes sidelined Bagley 11-3. Brainerd drew a first-round bye.

Tickets for the Section 8 tournament games will go on sale in Thief River Falls beginning Thursday. The general admission tickets (there are no reserved seat ticket sales for the Section 8 tournament), priced at $3 for adults and $1 for students, will be sold at the Lincoln high school gym ticket window and at the Franklin middle school main entrance.

Lincoln ticket window will be open Thursday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Friday from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.; and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 12-noon. The window will reopen Monday and Tuesday next week from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Tickets will be on sale at Franklin Thursday from 7:45 to 8:15 a.m. and from 3 to 4 p.m.; and on Friday from 7:45 to 8:15 a.m. and from 3 to 3:30 p.m. Those Friday hours will be repeated Monday and Tuesday next week.

There are tickets available for all five Section 8 tournament sessions, but the number of tickets available for the championship game is limited to 300 and they will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis at the Lincoln ticket window only, with a limit of four per customer. If the Prowlers reach the finals, an additional 1,100 championship game tickets would go on sale here beginning Thursday, March 1.

Approximately 1,000 tickets will be available at the arena ticket window each night of the tournament. Arena doors will open at 5:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and at 6:30 p.m. for the semifinals and finals.

All advance sale ticket holders are asked to use the first set of doors on the east and west sides of the arena in addition to the front entrance.

PARK RAPIDS forward Andy Nyhus went over the top of Thief River Falls defender Jeff Hamerlinck for this first half field goal attempt during Tuesday's high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym. The Prowlers lost their final home game of the 1983-84 season 39-38 in the final seconds. Jeff Langan (15) of the Prowlers and Kevin Long of the Panthers looked on.

First Round Section 8 Pairings Feature TRF-Crookston Game

by Mike Lundgren,
Times Sports Editor

A Thief River Falls-Crookston match-up appears to be the most interesting first round game for the 1984 Section 8 high school hockey tournament, scheduled to get underway with quarterfinal doubleheaders Friday and Saturday in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Third meeting of the season between the two long-time athletic rivals will take place Friday at 9 p.m. The Prowlers swept the Pirates during the regular season, winning 6-3 in Thief River Falls on Jan. 10 and escaping with a narrow 3-2 decision at Crookston Jan. 31.

Elsewhere this weekend, Roseau will be expected to beat Moorhead in the 6:30 p.m. tournament opener Friday, and Fergus Falls will be expected to do likewise against Alexandria in the 9 p.m. first round finale Saturday. Some figure Warroad will give Bemidji a strong test in the Saturday 6:30 p.m. game, but the Lumberjacks will still be a decided favorite.

Thief River Falls-Crookston, though, is a toss-up. Despite the two wins in the 1983-84 series by the Prowlers, the teams appear to be very even. They did, in fact, finish with identical 12-7-1 regular season records, but the two Thief River Falls wins over Crookston earned the Prowlers a No. 4 tournament berth and an automatic seed into the Section 8 quarterfinals while the Pirates had to advance through two rounds of sub-sectional eliminations. And to make it even tougher for the Pirates, they were matched up against East Grand Forks in a first round draw. But Crookston dominated the Green Wave 6-2 and then added a 7-1 victory over Hallock to reach the Section 8 field.

Coach Wendell Grand of the Prowlers has plenty of respect for the Pirates. "We feel Crookston is the best team to advance from the sub-sections," he said. "We're going to have to play a good hockey game to beat them. It should be a really good game."

Crookston long ago lost the services of top scorer Monte French to a broken leg and the Pirates have been hampered by a series of injuries throughout the season. But in Mike Hastings, Rick Dahle and Mark Lyczewski they have three outstanding hockey players, pointed out Grand.

"Hastings is as good as any top defenseman in Section 8," warned Grand, "and Lyczewski and Dahle are very skilled forwards."

Another area of concern for Grand is a very productive Crookston power play. It'll be important, he said, for the Prowlers to stay out of the penalty box against the Pirates.

Thief River Falls, after losing just once in 12 previous games, was blown off the ice by Fergus Falls 8-2 in the regular season finale last Friday, but Grand doesn't think that one-sided loss will affect the Prowlers going into post-season play. Instead, he figures the team will receive a real boost with the return to full-time status of senior forwards Tim Bottem and Rick Spong. They were both sidelined with shoulder injuries a good portion of the middle of the season and appeared only in part-time roles on power plays and penalty-killing units in the final two games.

"We may be in our best physical shape of the season right now," pointed out Grand. The Prowlers started the year without senior defenseman Brian Johnston, who missed eight games with a leg injury, then played eight games without Bottem and six without Spong. It was a compliment to the rest of the team members, pointed out Grand, that the Prowlers did as well as they did without those three starters.

But while Grand was saying the Prowlers looked to be in their best physical shape of the season Tuesday morning, that evening he reported that senior forward Steve Wiskow was sidelined with a broken kneecap.

Grand had hoped to revert back to a season-opening look with freshman Scott Novak centering Bottem and senior Mitch Semanko; senior Ryan Bakke centering Spong and Wiskow; with Bob Breiland centering Joe Blankenfeld and Bob Huot on an all-junior line.

Wiskow's absence, however, may cause wholesale line changes.

Five defensemen will remain intact, including seniors Jim Geatz, Gary Cornell, Al Ness and Johnston, plus sophomore Bill Desrocher. Junior Steve Solheim will again start in goal.

State Basketball Tournament . . .

Worthington Is First Round Northland Foe

Chet Engelman hopes his luck will hold out this week when his Northland community college basketball team will make an appearance in the 1984 Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) state tournament in Bloomington.

Northland was involved in a three-way second place tie behind pennant winner Fergus Falls in the final Northwest Division standings, and that deadlock with Brainerd and the University of Minnesota-Crookston was broken by a coin flip Saturday, won, obviously, by Northland.

Engelman hopes that luck involved in winning the coin flip carries over onto the court at Normandale community college, site of the three-day, eight-team state tournament featuring the top two finishers in each of the four MCCC divisions across the state.

First round quarterfinals Thursday feature Northwest Division champion Fergus Falls vs. Southern Division runner-up Rochester at 1 p.m.; Northeast Division winner Vermilion vs. Central Division runner-up Normandale at 3 p.m.; Central Division titlist Anoka-Ramsey vs. Northeast Division runner-up Itasca at 6:30 p.m.; while Northland, entered as the Northwest Division runner-up, takes on Worthington, the winner in the Southern Division, at 8:30 p.m.

Loser's bracket consolation round games will be played Friday afternoon with the Thursday afternoon losers playing at 1 p.m. and the Thursday night losers playing at 3. Tournament semifinals will be played Friday night, with the Thursday afternoon winners playing at 6:30 p.m. and the Thursday night winners meeting at 8:30.

Saturday's schedule includes the consolation final at 12-noon, the third place game at 2 p.m. and the state title game at 4.

Anoka-Ramsey and Normandale are considered the pre-tournament favorites, but Engelman figures the title is up for grabs.

"At this stage of the game, I don't think anybody is out of it," he said. "Anything can happen. If we play well, we'll be in it."

Winning the opener is naturally the first objective, and Engelman figures a Northland - Worthington match-up should be even. During the regular season the Northmen beat a Willmar team 83-76 in the first round of a four-team holiday tournament in Minneapolis that Worthington beat twice by the narrowest of margins. Worthington also lost a close decision to Fergus Falls, a team that won the Northwest Division with a perfect 11-0 record, including 97-73 and 82-76 wins over Northland.

Northland's eight-man state tournament roster includes starters Kyle Ramsey, a 6-4½ sophomore from Milwaukee, Wis.; Shorty Johnson, a 6-4½ sophomore from Kenai, Alaska; Jon Neumann, a 6-4½ sophomore from Middle River; Kevin Sanders, a 6-1 sophomore from Thief River Falls; and Rodney Scales, a 6-7 sophomore from Inkster, Mich. Seeing playing time off the bench will be Rick Van Camp, a 6-1 sophomore from Newfolden; Dan Flanagan, a 5-7 freshman from Edinburgh, N.D.; and Pat Burke, a 6-3 freshman from Inkster, Mich. All eight have had moments of individual glory this winter.

Health status of Ramsey, the team's leading scorer, is still a concern. He is hobbled by an ankle injury that sidelined him in the late-season 82-76 loss at Fergus Falls and limited his playing time in the final three games.

"Ramsey is not 100 per cent," acknowledged Engelman, "but we'll tape him up and he will play."

Northland, 6-5 in the Northwest Division, will take a 12-8 overall record into the tournament, but after a slump toward the end of the year that produced three straight divisional losses to UMC, Brainerd and Fergus Falls, the Northmen turned things around in a regular season finale at UMC to play well in a 60-57 victory that would eventually gain them a state tournament trip.

"If we play as well as we did the last couple of games, we'll be as good as anybody in the tournament," offered Engelman. "We're going down there with a positive attitude; we're not going down to lose."

Northland finished third in last year's state meet.

Panthers Edge Prowlers 39-38 In Final Seconds

Park Rapids' Dean Horejsi connected from the corner with eight seconds remaining Tuesday to lift the Panthers past Thief River Falls 39-38 in a low-scoring high school basketball game played at the Lincoln gym.

Thief River Falls had a final crack at the lead, calling a time-out with six seconds left and getting the ball downcourt in a hurry. But Jeff Hamerlinck's shot from about 15-feet out hit the rim, bounced high in the air and fell to the side at the buzzer.

It was close from start to finish. Park Rapids led most of the way, but never by more than four points. Thief River Falls would take the lead on occasion, but the Prowlers never led by more than three points. The lead changed hands 10 times and there were 11 ties.

"These are two fairly even teams," confirmed Park Rapids coach John Dailey. "We were just fortunate to win."

Park Rapids led 13-10 at the end of the first quarter and the Panthers had their biggest lead of a sluggish first half, 19-15, at intermission as 6-2 senior forward Andy Nyhus scored on a base line drive with 28 seconds left.

Pace picked up in the second half and a string of six straight points by Thief River Falls guards Mark Bondy and John Brandt erased a 23-19 deficit as Bondy scored on a base line drive to give the Prowlers a 25-23 lead with 4:11 remaining. It remained a one-basket game the rest of the night.

Brandt swished one from long range with 31 seconds left in the third quarter to tie it 31-31 and it stayed that way until two minutes had elapsed in the final period when the Prowlers' Randy Erickson sank two free throws. First field goal of the fourth quarter didn't come until Horejsi hit a long jumper with just 2:46 remaining, giving the Panthers a 35-33 edge.

Bondy tied it on a short jumper, Erickson took a feed underneath from Jeff Langan to make it 37-35 and Hamerlinck made one of two free throw attempts with 1:24 remaining to give the Prowlers their biggest lead of the night, 38-35.

But Steve Hanke, a 6-5 junior who was not in the starting line-up, scored off a rebound after a Langan block with 1:14 to play as the Panthers pulled to within 38-37.

Brandt, the game's leading scorer with 14 points, had a chance to increase the lead, but missed the front end of a bonus free throw opportunity with 20 seconds remaining, and Park Rapids controlled the rebound — setting up the game — winning shot by Horejsi, a 6-0 junior guard who finished with 10 points.

Bondy and Park Rapids' 6-3 junior center Kevin Long matched that 10-point figure.

Thief River Falls fell to 6-12 with the loss in the Prowlers' final home appearance of the 1983-84 season. They close out the schedule on the road the next two Fridays at East Grand Forks and Warren. Park Rapids has a similar 7-10 record, but Dailey said that after some early season problems the Panthers have been playing well of late. A slow start because of Park Rapids' advancement into the state Class A football playoff finals, a number of early-season weather-caused postponements and then a teacher's strike all took a toll on the Panthers' play, pointed out Dailey. "We're just putting it back together now. We've played some pretty good basketball our last five games."

Final statistics were about as even as the game itself. Thief River Falls was 16-for-47 from the field (34 per cent) and Park Rapids was 17-for-44 (39 per cent). The Prowlers wrre 6-for-11 at the free throw line (55 per cent) and the Panthers were 5-for-9 (56 per cent). Park Rapids had one more rebound, 27-26, and Thief River Falls had one more turnover, 11-10.

Cards Defeat Eagles 69-51

It was a match-up of two teams coming off one-sided Friday night losses when the Cardinals fell to Stephen 79-53 while the Eagles lost to Roseau 76-36, and resulted in less-than-perfect late-season basketball. There were 63 turnovers, 46 fouls and 55 free throw attempts during the much-interrupted game.

"We did everything worse than they did," surmised Grygla coach Vern Johnson.

It was a 15-15 stalemate at the end of the first quarter and Plummer had a 36-32 halftime lead thanks to a 13-for-17 first half showing at the free throw line. The Cardinals broke it open in the third quarter, opening up a 55-38 lead.

"The third quarter killed us," noted Johnson. "We had a very poor third quarter. Plummer just out-played us in the second half, that's all."

Tim Gagner scored 20 points and Gene Fisher had 19 for the winners, who climbed to .500 for the year at 9-9 going into the regular season finale Friday at Warren. Jeff Klein led Grygla with 12 points and Wayne Byklum had 10.

Plummer won by being more aggressive, according to head coach Jim Baron. "We really attacked the basket," he said. That approach played a big role in the Cardinals stepping to the free throw line for a busy, and productive, 23-for-35 night (66 per cent). They were 23-for-56 from the field (41 per cent).

Grygla, meanwhile, was 13-for-20 at the line (65 per cent) but just 19-for-68 from the field (28 per cent).

Plummer doubled the smaller Eagles on the boards, 50-25, but also had more turnovers, 34-29.

MCC . . . . . . . . . . . . . 61

A fourth quarter Marshall County Central rally fell short Tuesday as the Nordics lost a 68-61 game at Warren.

Warren led by as much as 14 points in the second half, but Marshall County Central cut the margin to five points and had three shots at making it a three-point game with about two minutes remaining. Warren held on, though, as Marshall County Central saw its record fall to 12-7.

"We made a good run at them," noted Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland.

Warren had quarter leads of 11-10, 31-25 and 53-41.

Ken Krohn of Marshall County Central and Pete Mysakowski of Warren shared game-high scoring honors with 16 points each, and Krohn's play inside drew post-game praise from Ueland. Randy Dahl and Brent Magner both contributed 12 points to the Nordics' offense and Kevin Boe had 11. Mark Carlson scored 14 points for the Ponies and Mike Turgeon added 12.

"The game was a little ragged," explained Ueland. "It wasn't real smooth. We didn't have a real good shooting night. We missed a number of perimeter shots, but Krohn did a nice job inside."

Marshall County Central shot just 38 per cent from the field (21-for-55), but shot 73 per cent at the free throw line (19-for-26). Warren shot 53 per cent from the field (25-for-47) and 64 per cent at the line (18-for-28). Many of those 54 free throws came in the fourth quarter. Warren had a 29-22 rebound advantage and also topped the turnover figures 13-10.

Final regular season outing for the Nordics will be Friday at Hallock.

Badger . . . . . . . . . . . . 49

Freshman Reed Engelstad, in his first varsity starting assignment, scored 13 points Tuesday to lead Grygla past Badger 51-49 in North Border Conference play.

Grygla snapped a six-game losing streak with the victory, putting the Eagles' record at 6-13 heading into a regular season finale at home Friday against Strandquist.

"It feels good to win one for a change," mentioned Grygla coach Vern Johnson, who admitted he was far from satisfied with the Eagles' performance. "But at this point, we'll take any win we can get. Badger really deserved to win, though."

Grygla led 18-6 at the end of the first quarter, but watched the margin shrink to 29-25 at halftime. The host Eagles took a 45-39 edge into the fourth quarter.

Winless Badger gained a 47-47 tie with 3:40 left, but Grygla's Tim Irlbeck came up with two baskets down the stretch to put the Eagles back in front. He scored with 42 seconds left to make it 51-49, and the Eagles managed to sweat out three Badger shots before the final buzzer sounded.

Wayne Byklum joined Engelstad in double figures for the winners with 10 points. Paul Hamann of Badger led all scorers with 15 points.

Grygla shot just 32 per cent from the floor (22-for-68), but that was still the highest figure the poor-shooting Eagles have had in their last three starts. Badger shot 45 per cent (23-for-51). Grygla was 7-for-16 at the free throw line, where Badger was 3-for-9. The Rockets had a 44-41 rebound edge and topped the turnover figures 26-14.

UMC, Hibbing Play For State Hockey Crown

Defending champion University of Minnesota-Crookston and 1983-84 regular season league winner Hibbing will meet this weekend in the 1984 Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) state hockey playoff finals.

It'll be a two-game, total-goal series, with the two teams meeting Friday at 7:30 p.m. at Hibbing and Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Coleraine.

Winner of the series will advance to the national finals next month at DuPage, Ill., with the state runner-up playing NDSU-Bottineau for a chance to advance to the national tournament as the second team from Region 13.

In first-round playoff series last weekend, UMC eliminated Rainy River and Hibbing ousted Rochester. The Trojans and Voyageurs skated to a 6-6 Friday night tie, but UMC won Saturday by a 9-3 score to take the total-goal series by a 15-9 margin. Hibbing swept Rochester 8-2 and 13-4 to win the series 19-6.

Hibbing and UMC split a pair of regular season series. UMC wins came by 7-5 and 8-4 scores, while Hibbing wins were by 4-3 and 11-7 scores.

All-Section 8 Team Selected

Roseau senior Paul Broten was the only repeat selection in the 1983-84 All-Section 8 high school hockey team announced today.

Broten, a first team All-Section 8 a year ago as a junior, was the leading vote-getter among the 19 Section 8 coaches who were asked to pick a goalie and five best skaters, regardless of positions. Coaches did not vote for players on their own teams.

Rest of the first team selections were goalie Steve Ebinger of Brainerd, defenseman Mike Hastings of Crookston, defenseman Tom Pederson of Roseau, center Bob Caulfield of Detroit Lakes and defenseman Bob Smith of Bemidji, a junior and the only underclassman in the group.

Thief River Falls' Brian Johnston, Tim Bottem, Ryan Bakke, Steve Solheim and Mitch Semanko were among the players given honorable mention status in the All-Section 8 voting.

All-Section 8

Lincoln Girls Lose Final Regular Season Game

Losing its fifth straight game, the Lincoln high school girls basketball team closed out its 1983-84 regular season schedule Tuesday with a 63-52 setback at Fergus Falls.

Thief River Falls, finishing at 9-10, will begin post-season North Sub-Region 8AA play Monday. Pairings and sites for the six-team tournament will be determined at a coaches' meeting tonight (Wednesday).

Fergus Falls owned narrow quarter leads of 13-12, 31-26 and 46-42 before putting the game away in the final eight minutes. Thief River Falls was still within striking range early in the fourth quarter before center Michelle Puetz, plagued by early foul trouble, picked up her fifth personal. The Otters promptly opened up a 13-point lead that wound up as an 11-point win.

Michelle Olson scored 15 points for the Prowlers and Connie Grovum had 13. Five Fergus Falls players reached double figures, led by Holly Farrar with 20.

Thief River Falls shot 36 per cent from the field (20-for-55) and 43 per cent from the free throw line (10-for-23). Fergus Falls shot 43 per cent from the field (24-for-56) and 48 per cent from the line (15-for-31).

"Offensively, Fergus Falls has a pretty fair basketball team," pointed out Thief River Falls assistant coach Howard Thorson. "Defensively, they're not quite as strong, but we missed a number of easy shots, especially in the third quarter."

Brenda Russell scored 18 points as the Thief River Falls junior varsity finished its season with a 47-40 victory over Fergus Falls and a 12-5 record.

Freshmen Win 69-29 Contest In Grand Forks

Lincoln high school freshman basketball team ended a frustrating string of three consecutive one-point losses Tuesday in abrupt fashion by routing Grand Forks South junior high 69-29.

South led 15-14 at the end of the first quarter, but Thief River Falls went ahead 33-23 at halftime and opened up a 47-27 third quarter spread before out-scoring the host team 22-2 in the fourth quarter.

Five Thief River Falls scorers reached double figures, with Jarred Kalaness getting 15 points, Jim Hahn 14, Griff Newland 12, Tom Knoff 10 and Paul Brandt 10.

It was the final regular season outing for Thief River Falls, 5-13. The team will be involved in Grand Forks League post-season playoff activity beginning Thursday at an unnamed site. League playoff semifinals and finals will be held Saturday at East Grand Forks.

Park Rapids JV Beats TRF 46-35

Park Rapids broke open a close game in the fourth quarter Tuesday en route to a 46-35 junior varsity high school basketball win over Thief River Falls.

It was a 10-10 tie after one quarter and Park Rapids owned narrow 21-20 and 28-25 leads at the next two quarter stops before pulling away in the final eight minutes.

Kevin Nelson scored 17 points for Thief River Falls, 4-11 for the year.

Bowl-a-thon Is $1,000 Project For Local OEA

Over $1,000 was raised by participants in a bowl-a-thon for Special Olympics Thursday at the Family Bowl, under sponsorship of the Office Education Association from Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute.

Fifty members of the local OEA chapter participated, raising approximately $900 in pledges. They were joined by about 20 trainable mentally handicapped (TMH) and educatable mentally retarded (EMR) students of elementary through high school age from Thief River Fall area schools who will benefit directly from the effort as participants in the special olympics. One of those high school age TMH students brought in over $185 in pledges, according to Polly Reed, who teaches the class at the center school along with Lee Cerkowniak.

Elementary students were supervised by their teachers Eleanore Erickson and Patty Malberg, with assistance from [illegible] Arlette Defreece and Johanna Desrocher.

Money raised by the bowl-a-thon will be used to send the handicapped students to regional and state Special Olympics events, which are supported as a national project of the Office Education Associations of America.

Skippers Rally To Beat Cardinals . . .

Middle River Girls Finish With Perfect 19-0 Record

Middle River overcame a nine-point third quarter deficit to defeat Plummer 51-44 Tuesday as the Skippers completed a perfect 19-0 regular season record.

Host Plummer, down 15-12 at the end of the first quarter, went ahead 26-25 at halftime and led by as much as 36-27 in the third quarter before being out-scored 24-8 the rest of the way as the Skippers pulled within 38-37 at the end of the third quarter.

"We started taking them full court man-to-man," said Middle River coach Tom Neibauer in explaining the Skippers' rally. "Our guards (Jody Christofferson and Vonda Peterson) did a real good job on defense."

Plummer coach Rick Koivisto called it a good effort by the Cardinals, who finished their schedule 10-8. "They're an aggressive team, and we didn't do a very good job holding onto the ball at the end."

Paula Rantanen scored 23 points for the winners, getting 13 of those in the first quarter, and Christofferson had 12, but Neibauer said the Skippers' offensive efforts were sparked by Lisa Maertens, who came off the bench to score all nine of her points after Middle River had fallen behind by nine. "She really had a good effort down the stretch," he said.

High-scoring Jody Pahlen led Plummer with 16 points, with Sheila Sorenson getting 10.

Middle River put up just 35 shots, but the Skippers connected on 20 of them for an impressive 57 per cent shooting night. They were 11-for-17 at the line (65 per cent). Plummer was 21-for-46 from the field (47 per cent) and just 2-for-4 at the line. The Cardinals had a 29-23 rebound edge, but also topped the turnover figures 18-13.

Oklee 37

Goodridge out-scored visiting Oklee 41-14 in the second half Tuesday as the Huskies closed out their 1983-84 regular season schedule with a 69-37 victory.

"We played a nice game," mentioned Goodridge coach Patti Johnson. "Our half-court trap looked really sharp."

Goodridge defensive efforts forced 24 Oklee turnovers, 18 of them steals by the Huskies off their half-court trap.

Jennie Boutain scored 24 points and Lori Sjulestad had 19 in her biggest offensive output of the season for the winners, with Diana Troska adding 10. No Oklee scorer reached double figures.

Goodridge had quarter leads of 12-11, 28-23 and 48-31.

Goodridge shot 41 per cent from the field (31-for-76) and 54 per cent at the free throw line (7-for-13). Oklee shot just 33 per cent from the field (16-for-43) and 31 per cent at the line (5-for-16). Goodridge had a decided 45-33 rebound advantage and turned the ball over just 11 times.

Conservation Corps

Department of Natural Resources has announced it will again offer a work-learn program for the state's 15-18-year-olds.

Through the Minnesota Conservation Corps MCC program, 100-200 youth will be employed for five to eight weeks in state parks, forests and wildlife areas. The youth will work for 35 hours a week at $3.35 an hour and receive five hours of environmental awareness or outdoor education.

Work will include trail maintenance, camp ground development, and soil erosion, wildlife and timber stand improvement projects — described by officials as "hard, healthy outside work."

One residential or "live in" camp will be established and 8 to 10 non-residential, or "commute daily," camps. Interested youth should contact their local Job Service offices (listed under Minnesota State Offices, Department of Economic Security in the phone book) for applications for the MCC summer program.

Applications will be available beginning Tuesday, February 21, and must be returned to the Job Service Offices by March 30.

DNR Public Meetings

Department of Natural Resources has announced a series of six public meetings to be held around the state during March and April to discuss programs, problems and regulations relating to managing wildlife populations.

Wildlife managers from the local areas and from the St. Paul headquarters will present the DNR's views on various wildlife related subjects and answer questions.

Following is the schedule of meetings, with all meetings to start at 7:30 p.m.: St. James — March 1, First Lutheran Church social hall; Faribault — March 8, Faribault State Hospital chapel; Long Prairie — March 22, high school auditorium; McGregor — March 29, VFW Club; Blackduck — April 5, elementary school gym; St. Paul — April 12, McGuires Inn Shannon Room.

Trail Plan

Minnesota DNR trail plan will be presented to the public for its review and comment in a series of meetings around the state in late February and early March, according to Donald M. Carlson, special assistant to the commissioner for the Trails & Waterways Unit of the Department of Natural Resources.

"The planning, writing and review of this document has taken us nearly three years," said Carlson, "but the plan brings some much needed order to the ways in which the DNR and other agencies provide trail recreation."

He said summaries of the trail plan are being mailed to individuals who request them.

"The summaries are so structured as to allow review and comment without the need of reading the entire 255 page plan," Carlson said.

Public meetings to present the plan (all scheduled to start at 7 p.m.), will be held as follows:

Marshall — Feb. 28 in the city council chambers; New Ulm — Feb. 29 in the public library meeting room; Rochester — March 1 in the Holiday Inn Patio Room; Duluth — March 6 in Room 608, Government Services Center; Grand Rapids — March 7 in the city council chambers; Bemidji — March 8 in the DNR Regional Headquarters; Brainerd — March 13 in Room 1 of the County Services Building; St. Paul — March 15 in conference room D, top floor of the Veterans Services building.

DNR trail plan sets forth guidelines on how the DNR's recreational trail system should be managed and under what circumstances additional trails should be developed.

It describes appropriate roles of various levels of government in providing trail recreation, outlines a system for allocating trails to various regions of the state and identifies the need for additional monitoring of use and promotion of trails in Minnesota.

"The three years spent in plan preparation have been an excellent investment for us," Carlson said.

Those wishing a copy of the trail plan summary document should contact the DNR's Trails & Waterways Unit at 612-296-6699.

TIP Arrests

State Conservation Officers made 26 arrests last month with information received through the Turn In Poachers (TIP) program, according to the Department of Natural Resources and TIP president, Robert Larson of Wayzata.

Included in the arrests were two men charged with killing elk. Nearly one half of the arrests for the month (12) were for fishing violations.

DNR's southwest region accounted for 15 of the total arrests for the month under the TIP program.

TIP Inc. paid out $1,300 in rewards to informants during January. TIP program protects the identity of persons who provide information to the department and also offers cash rewards where such information results in an arrest.

DNR has a toll-free number for persons who wish to report violations: 1-800-652-9093.

Bats have been extremely valuable in scientific research that aids mankind, says International Wildlife magazine. Research on bats has contributed to development of navigational aids for the blind, new vaccines, artificial insemination and birth-control methods, and to studies of aging and space biology.
